Stassen Calls Truman 'Presidential Failure' In Kickoff for GOP

Speech in Detroit Cites Candidate's 'Demagogic Appeals,' 'Cheap Complaints'

Detroit, Sept. 7 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen tonight called Harry S. Truman a presidential failure who bases his election hopes on "demagogic appeals" and "cheap political complaints."

In a biting rebuttal to Mr. Truman's one-day campaign foray into Michigan and Ohio industrial areas, Stassen told a cheering crowd of 3000 at Masonic Temple here that Mr. Truman "cannot furnish the essential leadership" for critical times ahead.

Stassen, who lost the GOP presidential nomination to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, spoke in official kickoff of the Republican presidential campaign.

Mr. Truman had told his Michigan audiences yesterday that Republicans were responsible for high prices. He said a Republican victory might bring an "era of fear" and an economic depression.

Blame Put on Truman

Stassen retorted in a prepared address that the President had "set off the inflationary spiral from which this country is still suffering."

He said Mr. Truman had "dishonored labor with an extreme demagogic appeal to set "class against class."

He said the President attacked the Taft-Hartley Act "because he hopes to secure a big political dividend by a cheap political complaint."

Unlike the crowd that listened to Mr. Truman's talk here yesterday, spectators were coached in applauding before Stassen took the air for his national broadcast.

Walter Tibbias, raido man for the Republican National Committee, "warmed up" the crowd, which failed to fill the 4500-seat hall.

When Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) appeared to introduce Stassen, however, he got a prolonged, spontaneous cheer.

Ferguson read a telegram from Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.) which said:

"Deeply believe a Republican victory is necessary next November for the sake of American stabilities at this critical moment in the life of the Nation. If we take the truth to the people, I have no fear of the result."

[Mr. Truman said at Grand Rapids Monday that Senator Vandenberg "is intellectually honest and I like him."—Editors's Note.]

Stassen said Mr. Truman's "scolding, threatening, complaining speeches" were themselves indications that he lacks the leadership "in affairs at home and abroad

Snyder Despairs Of Debt Payment For 10 Months

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder said yesterday the Government will not be able to reduce the 253-billion-dollar national debt during the next 10 months.

Snyder made the statement to a group of farm leaders in launching a move to get farmers to increase their purchases of savings bonds.

He said that the tax cut ordered by the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress had halted the Administration's debt-retirement program which has reduced the liability by $26,5000,000,000 from its 1946 peak.

Snyder said the Government still can put some check on expansion of bank loans by selling savings bonds to farmers and others and using the money to retire debt securities held by the banks.

"Farmers have been, and are, important investors in savings bonds," Snyder said.

Civil Service Workers' Fear Of Wholesale Firings 'Silly'

Editor's Note: This is the second of a series. To find out what kind of a boss Thomas E. Dewey would be to 2,200,000 Federal workers, Jerry Kluttz interviewed New York State employes, their organization leaders, supervisors and civil service officials, at Albany. The third article will appear in The Washington Post Thursday.)

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 7.—When Thomas E. Dewey took over as New York's Governor in January, 1943—the first GOP Governor in the Empire State for 20 years—heavy political pressure was brought on him to "clean out the rascals" in State jobs and to replace them with deserving Republicans.

In a far lesser degree, it was the same sort of pressure he'd be under here if he's elected President; GOP leaders the Nation-over have been hungry for Federal patronage for 16 long years.

Dewey was not without reason to be a bit suspicious of the State employes. He was peeved over the fact that the outgoing Democratic Governor had blanketed into civil service a number of Democratic appointees in key jobs. Also, it was forcefully brought out to him that the two largest concentrations of State employes were in the City of New York and in Albany—both Democratic strongholds and it was presumed that the State employes were an important factor in those Democratic machines.

Similar charges involving Federal workers are being heard now—that the 2,200,000 employes are subservient to the party in power and that they will all vote Democratic out of fear of losing their jobs. They're silly and ridiculous.

Democrats Push Purge Of Dixiecrats

National Party Applies Pressure In Texas, Alabama

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The move to purge Southern Democracy of supporters of the Dixiecrat Thurmond-Wright ticket was extended to Texas and Alabama yesterday. Texas electors were called on to give assurance of their loyalty to the Truman-Barkley ticket by Saturday.

Dixiecrats of the Lone Star State will hold their State convention at Dallas today.

"We are not going to allow any Dixiecrat who takes part in tomorrow's convention to participate in the regular Democratic convention at Fort Worth next Tuesday," W. J. Primm, assistant to National Democratic Chairman Senator J. Howard McGrath said last night.

At the same time Primm made public a statement again calling upon Marion Rushton, Democratic National committeeman from Alabama to resign.

"I would remind Colonel Rushton that he was elected Democratic National committeeman in the party primary in May to represent Alabama Democrats on the National Committee, and was not elected to represent them on any Dixiecrat Committee."

Primm derided a statement attributed to Rushton that the latter could not resign of his own motion—that action had to be taken by the party's State central committee.

"It takes no motion for anyone to resign any office to which he

Truman Back, Terms Trip Very Good One

Starts Work on New Western Swing, Beginning Sept. 17

By the United Press

President Truman returned full of fight yesterday from the first round of his bare-knuckle campaign against the Republicans. He begins a cross-country swing nine days hence.

On the Western tour, starting September 17, the President is tentatively scheduled to visit Dexter, Iowa; Kansas City, Denver, Salt Lake City, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Dallas, Fort Worth and Oklahoma City.

Other stops may be added, particularly in New Mexico where former Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson is engaged in a hot Senate race with former Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley.

It will be a swift trip, however, since tentative plans call for Mr. Truman to return to Washington again October 1.

During the month of October he is expected to extend his campaigning to the deep South, the industrial East and New England.

The President was happy and smiling when he returned at 12:57 p. m. (EDT) from his Labor Day

Obscure Cockpit Dials Blamed For Air Crashes

Boston, Sept. 7 (AP).—A new, major cause of airplane accidents, discovered by the United States Air Force, was reported to the American Psychological Association today.

The trouble is cockpit dials too hard for pilots to read. The blame was put on designers of these instruments. The report was made by Walter F. Grether, Aero-Medical Laboratory, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio.

An instrument whose face looks like a clock, with three hands, is the worst offender. It tells a pilot his altitude. Pilots misread this dial, nearly always make the altitude 1000 feet higher than it actually is.

Phone Equipment Workers Set Sept. 17 as Strike Date

(Other Labor News on Pages 11 and 15)

Chicago, Sept 7 (U.P.).—The Communications Equipment Workers Union (CIO) today authorized a strike of its 25,000 members September 17 and said the walkout would tie up virtually all telephone communications in the country.

The union hinged its strike call on whether a new wage contract is reached with Western Electric Co. by that date. It said negotiations were continuing.

Western Electric is the supply division of the Bell Telephone System. The union's members work in all major telephone exchanges in 45 States.

Union Vice President D. V. Harris said a walkout would tie up communications because telephone operators and other Bell employes "could be expected" to respect picket lines.

Negotiations on a new wage contract have been in progress since May 11 and recently were intensified. Harris said the talks were stalemated but that they were still "on."

The union originally asked for a 31-cent hourly wage increase, but later reduced it to 15 cents. Harris said Western Electric was standing firm on an 8-cent offer.

The union's strike date was set last month, but was kept secret until today. Meanwhile, the dispute has been marked by frequent work stoppages at telephone exchanges in major cities, all of which the union said were unauthorized.

A Western Electric spokesman said the company was not surprised, but was "still hopeful of a peaceful settlement."

Man Admits Rape in Auto, Police Say

Elvid H. Perrell, N. C. Farmer, Confronted By Victim, Wife of Park Policeman

A visiting farmer from North Carolina last night was charged with the rape of the 31-year-old wife of a park policeman.

He was booked as Elvid Hampton Perrell, 26, of Bear Creek, N. C. Police said he admitted the crime and had been identified in a special lineup by his victim.

The woman he attacked, a telephone operator at the Greyhound Bus Terminal, was forced into a car near her home in the 3200 block of Brothers pl. se. at about 1:30 a. m. yesterday, driven to a secluded spot and raped.

Remembered Numbers

She had enough presence of mind when her attacker released her to make a mental note of the license tag numbers on his car. The car bore North Carolina tags 219-426.

The car, a light green 1947 Dodge coach, and its telltale tags were spotted shortly after 4 p. m. by Detective Sergts. Alec Kapsol and Frank Ashley of the sex squad on a parking lot in the 900 block of H st. nw.

Kapsol and Ashley were joined by Detective Sergts. William Sparshott and Thomas Harty of the robbery squad and the four men hid nearby.

Perrell was seized when he returned to the car at 5:15 p. m. He said he had been attending a movie. He offered no resistance and was taken to police headquarters for questioning.

Inspector Robert S. Bryant, chief of detectives, said the woman attacked had been summoned to headquarters and picked Perrell from a line-up of six men.

Bryant declined to say whether Perrell had actually signed a confession. However, one detective present during the questioning said Perrell admitted the crime before being placed in the line-up.

"He didn't seem to be aware of the seriousness of the charge," said one detective. "He acted like he had been picked up for disorderly conduct."

However, Perrell must have become aware during the questioning that rape is a capital punishment offense, for when he was led down a corridor, there was a pinched and dazed look on his face.

Perrell is a slightly built man of no more than 120 pounds, about 5 feet 4 inches. Even so, he is larger than the woman who was raped. She is only 5 feet tall and weighs 110 pounds.

Description Given

He has a large nose and a prominent Adam's apple, two distinguishing characteristics described by the woman victim. He has tousled blond hair.

He was wearing a white shirt, open at the neck and khaki trousers.

One police officer said that after admitting the rape, Perrell said: "If anybody did this to my wife, I'd kill him."

Police said Perrell told them he is married, has two children and owns a 160-acre farm in North Carolina. He said he arrived here last Saturday for a "rest" and had been staying at the home of a cousin in Alexandria, Va.

Police quoted Perrell as saying he was "half drunk" when he raped

Reds Entice 19 German Police From City Hall, Kidnap Them; Truman Meets With Advisers

National Security Council Parley Reflects Grave Concern Felt Here

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

President Truman called his top foreign policy and defense advisers to the White House yesterday afternoon for a special meeting on the new Berlin crisis.

He convened a rare special session of the National Security Council almost immediately after returning from a weekend political sortie into Michigan. The council, formed last year, serves as a sort of special cabinet on military and foreign policy matters.

No hint was given afterward as to what decisions, if any, were made, or what specifically was discussed. But the meeting reflected the concern felt here over the last few days' developments in Berlin.

Pessimism has replaced the optimism of a week ago that a settlement would be reached there. Officials in touch with the Berlin situation now are of the opinion that Russia would not have permitted the city hall disorders of the past two days had the Kremlin really wanted an agreement on Berlin now.

Officials Attending

They fear that further talks between the four military governors of Germany are futile and the whole question may have to be taken up again at government levels in Moscow.

The only statement as the ranking officials left the White House came from Press Secretary Eben Ayers.

"This was a special meeting in connection with the Berlin situation," he said, adding that there would be no further comment.

Riots End Optimism

Until last weekend, officials here were rather optimistic of a settlement regarding Berlin which would lift the two-and-a-half-month-long blockade and ease the situation there at least temporarily.

Then came the city hall riots by Communist mobs, unhindered by the Soviet-controlled German police of eastern Berlin, the invasion of American liaison quarters at the hall by Russian-led police, opening of United States files and the seizure of anti-Communist police attempting to protect Berlin city officials.

Schuman's New Cabinet Falls On First Test in Chamber

Paris, Sept. 7 (AP).—Premier Robert Schuman's French government resigned tonight 64 hours after it had been laboriously put together.

Members of the cabinet submitted their resignations to President Vincent Auriol when they failed to receive a majority vote on a technical question in the Chamber of Deputies. The cabinet went under on its first test of strength.

During its short life the cabinet, the second headed by Schuman, ordered a cost-of-living bonus of 2500 francs ($8.33) to almost all French office and industrial workers.

The bonus had been accepted by labor unions, but with protestations that it was not enough.

The vote which caused the cabinet's downfall in its first test in the Chamber of Deputies was on a technicality. Demands had been made for the right to question the Premier on the make-up of the government and its general policy. Schuman asked that such a request be delayed. The motion was worded in such a way that the deputies were polled on their confidence in the government. The official tally was 259 for and 295 against.

Schuman's government was defeated by a combination of Communists, de Gaullists, members of the rightist Republican Liberty Party, independents and about 15 members of the Radical Socialist Party.

Members of Schuman's own party, the Popular Republican Movement (MRP), Socialists and the rest of the Radical Socialists voted for the government. Those three groups held 22 of the 24 cabinet posts.

There have been other French governments which lasted even less time than Schuman's. The record was established in 1935 when the government of Fernand Buisson fell in 2 hours. Two other cabinets have survived only 48 hours.

Addressing the deputies before the vote, Schuman said:

Robertson Named D. C. Roads Chief

Plans to Continue Capt. Whitehurst's K st. Express Pike

(See "People in the News," P. 2)

John N. Robertson, 48, yesterday was appointed District Director of Highways.

Robertson, deputy director of the highway department, was promoted by the Commissioners to succeed Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, who died September 1.

He promptly pledged himself to carry out the program developed by Whitehurst, including the K street express highway through the city.

First link of the K street speedway is being built from Rock Creek Park to Key Bridge as a elevated express route for traffic bound for Virginia via the bridge, or northwest Washington via Canal Road.

Second link will be construction of a depressed roadway from 27th st. to 21st st. under Washington Circle. Later K street will be remodeled for express traffic.

The appointment was made at a meeting of the District Commissioners shortly after 3 p.m.

He will be sworn into the new job at 10:30 a. m. today in the office of Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, District Engineer Commissioner.

Mad at Car, Owner Smashes Window, Bleeds to Death

Toronto, Sept. 7 (AP).—Angered when his automobile broke down, Gordon Metcalf, 29, smashed his fist through a rear plate glass window and died of wounds today.

Coroner Fred Ticket said several arteries were severed in the forearm of the 200-pound man, and he had suffered fatal loss of blood when he reached the hospital in a taxicab. An autopsy was ordered.

As he stood at the hospital door with blood pouring out of his wrist and forearm, the taxi driver demanded $12 from him to clean the blood off the upholstery.

The 1927 model car had given Metcalf considerable expense and trouble since he bought it a few weeks ago, police said.

Czechs Break Police Lines To See Benes

Armed Officers Clear Square of Thousands Waiting to View Body

Prague (Wednesday), Sept. 8 (U.P.).—Police armed with tommy guns cleared Wenceslaus Square of waiting thousands early today after rioting crowds had broken through police lines in a desperate effort to view the remains of the late President Eduard Benes as it lay enshrined at the Liberation Monument.

Thousands of citizens who had waited in the early morning chill to pay their last respects to their beloved leader at the National Museum in the square, where funeral services will be held later today, were forced into side streets by the heavily armed police.

Benes' body was brought to the National Museum in a hearse at 1:45 a. m. from the Liberation Monument on the outskirts of the city, scene of an hour-long riot by angry Czechs who had waited for hours to get a last glimpse of their nation's founder.

At 11 p. m. last night while tens of thousands waited to file past the bier, police tried to cut off the line and close the door. Fighting broke out and within minutes angry citizens had smashed through the police cordon, witnesses said.

The battle ended only with the arrival of police reinforcements, some of whom were armed with

Quiet Reported In Holy City After Outbreak

Haifa, Israel, Sept. 7 (U.P.).—United Nations officials said tonight that Jerusalem was "all quiet" after an outbreak of fighting provoked by Jewish forces last night and early today.

A cable to truce headquarters from the U. N.'s senior observer in Jerusalem said that "exceptional calm" prevailed in the Holy City until Israeli troops opened fire on Arab positions last night, starting an exchange of shots that lasted two hours.

Another exchange of mortar and machine gun fire between Arab and Jewish positions occurred at 4 a. m. but subsided at dawn, the U. N. report said.

A 13-month-old girl was killed yesterday afternoon in front of her home while her mother, unaware of the tragedy, stood just 15 feet away.

The little girl was Jeanette Clement, the only child of David L. and Nadine A. Clement, 1329 Belmont st. nw.

Driver of the striking automobile, Benjamin Robinson, 57, of 1104 Monroe st. nw., was booked last night as "held for action of the coroner."

At the time of the accident, however, police broadcast a lookout for a "hit-run driver," because, police said, Robinson left the scene, apparently unaware he had struck the child.

A ticket seller for the Washington Senators, Robinson was taken into custody about 8:30 p. m. by Pvt. Horace W. Carmichael of the Accident Investigation Unit. A sketchy description furnished by witnesses to the accident, Carmichael found Robinson's car parked at Florida ave. and 13th st. nw. Where He Once Worked

Ex-Federal Employe Leaps 11 Stories to His Death Here

A 56-year-old former Federal employe who was out of a job because of a "nonstatus, nonveteran" rating, leaped to his death yesterday afternoon from the eleventh floor Longfellow Building offices in which he once worked.

He was George B. Harrison, whose home is at 1648 Mount Eagle pl., Parkfairfax, Va. An accountant, Harrison was employed in an analytical capacity by the Public Housing Administration for about three years, and had been working for them on a contractual basis until last June. Since that time he had been unemployed.

Yesterday, police said, Harrison went to the eleventh floor offices of PHA in the Longfellow Building, 1201 Connecticut ave. nw. at about 1 p. m. He entered Room 1108 and asked Dr. H. M. Colvin, a member of PHA's legal staff, for permission to use one of the tables in the room.

Dr. Colvin, whose office is partitioned off from the main room, said he nodded his permission and went back into his own room.

Members of the Homicide Squad who investigated the case said Harrison apparently then entered another partitioned area in the room, not in use yesterday. His hat, glasses and brief case, containing personal papers and his PHA job application, were found on a desk there.

Also found was a pencil-scrawled note, on PHA stationery, unsigned and unaddressed. The note, apparently written by Harrison, said he planned to take his own life because of ill health. It also reportedly mentioned his long rec-

Western Sector Group Had Left Building Under Soviet Guarantee

Berlin (Wednesday), Sept 9 (AP).—Nineteen western zone Berlin policemen were kidnaped by rival Russian-backed police and Soviet tommy-gunners today as they left the Berlin City Hall under a Russian safe conduct guarantee.

Their release had been negotiated by the French with the Russians.

They had been cornered in the city hall—in the Soviet sector of this divided, blockaded city—since Monday, when they were brought in to help protect the anti-Communist city council against Communist-led demonstrators. They had taken refuge in the Western Allies' liaison offices in the building.

Halted by Russians

About three blocks from the City Hall, after they were released along with 11 American, British and French liaison officers and correspondents, they were flagged down by two jeep loads of Russian soldiers.

As the convoy stopped, about 20 Soviet zone police jumped out from behind a building and surrounded the western zone group.

Another four jeep loads of Russian tommy-gunners drew up from behind. Then another truck carrying about 65 more Soviet sector police roared up. It seemed obvious the affair was a carefully planned trap.

"Those who have papers may go on," a Russian officer said. "Those who don't will have to come with us."

French officers protested and explained that Maj. Gen. Alexander Kotikov, the Russian commandant for Berlin, had agreed to give the western zone policemen safe conduct to the French zone of the city.

They argued for an hour. There was a promise made to call Rudolph Wagner, deputy to the Soviet zone police chief, Paul Markgraf, but he never arrived.

Photographer Also Taken

The Soviet sector police then loaded their 19 rival officers into an empty truck, which rolled away.

A German photographer, employed by International News Photos, also was taken. He had been lying hidden at the bottom of a truck, but was found.

As the western zone police were hauled into the Soviet zone truck, a French officer declared:

"The Russians are pulling some funny business."

"You mean," said an American correspondent, "that this is a plain double cross, don't you?"

"Yes," replied the Frenchman.

The Russians ended their hunger seige of city hall a short time be-

Robertson, Pilgrim of D. C. Pavements, Is Popular Highways Director Choice

There are those who claim that Jack Robertson, newly appointed highway director here, is familiar with every inch of the 988 miles of streets in the Nation's Capital.

That may be stretching the asphalt a bit, but still the purple praise offers firm ground for the widespread belief in the District Building that Jack Robertson loves streets as the philatelist loves stamps, as the mumismatist loves coins.

JACK ROBERTSON
A popular choice

It being impractical to collect streets like so many stamps and coins, Robertson lavishes his enthusiasm on the local highways and byways by making long, daily tours of inspection. During the past eight years, in which Robertson was street engineer—No. 2 post in the Highway Department—he's spent half of each working day, and many of his days off, on a pilgrimage of the pavements.

Is Popular Choice

Appointment of John N. Robertson to succeed the late Capt. H. C. Whitehurst as director of highways is a popular choice. More than 30 years ago Robertson began his career in the department as a waterboy with the road gangs. It was a hard haul up to the $10,000 post he takes over today.

A leather-tanned face is the lone visible evidence of the 48-year-old engineer's rigorous past. Silvery hair, graying mustache, rimless spectacles, and sartorial nattiness give him the appearance of a movie-style bank executive; and completely camouflage the street builder.

But street builder is the word for Robertson, who is regarded by his associates as "the most conscientious employe" in the District government. It's a rare year, they say, that Robertson takes all his vacation leave; and it's a common practice of his to drive out of his way, from and to home, in order to get an expert's eye view of more and more streets.

A native Washingtonian, born and bred in the Capitol Hill area, Jack quit school in 1917, two months before high school graduation to take a full-time job with the Highway Department at $650 a year as chainman—"lowest job in a survey party." He supplemented his "education by experience" with courses in mathematics, drafting and engineering. He rose steadily through the ranks, and in 1941 succeeded to the post of street engineer on the death of his brother, Leonard P. Robertson.

Thereafter, Jack served as "the eyes and legs" of "Cap" Whitehurst, the highway director, and a friendship of mutual admiration developed between them. Before his death last September, Whitehurst had often expressed the hope that Jack Robertson would someday fill his shoes.

Hopes to Realize Vision

Fulfillment of the wish has materialized, and now Robertson hopes to realize "Cap" Whitehurst's vision: Conversion of K st. into an express highway through the heart of the city. It will take the next five to eight years to complete other Whitehurst projects: Two new bridges over the Potomac, and a third spanning the Anacostia.

As head of the Highway Department, Robertson takes charge of an eight-mililon-dollar a year budget, a force of 900 men, and the problems involving the city's bridges, trees, electrical department, and municipal garage, as well as streets.

Street division officials point (with pride) to Washington having been selected by the American Automobile Association as having the best kept streets in the country for cities of equivalent size. They say that the new highways director will tear into his new duties and responsibilities and establish more records as quickly as you can say Jack Robertson.

Electrical Workers Back No Candidate

New York, Sept. 7 (AP).—The CIO United Electrical Workers convention today adopted a resolution that put the union on record as not supporting any presidential candidate.

The 4-to-1 vote automatically eliminated a resolution proposed by James B. Carey, CIO national secretary-treasurer, calling for outright support of President Truman.

Carey, who testified before a House Labor subcommittee last week on alleged Communist influence in the union, had asked the convention to support the stand of the CIO Political Action Committee. The committee has indorsed Truman.

The vote was a victory for Albert Fitzgerald, president of the union and chairman of the National Labor Committee of Henry Wallace's Progressive Party.

Feared Union Split

Fitzgerald supported the resolution refraining from support of any presidential candidate because, he said, indorsement of any candidate would split the union "wide open and weaken it next year."

He said union members had a right "to be for whatever candidate they want to be" and added: "That, in my opinion, is in the best tradition of this country."

Carey had argued that the third party will "only serve to split and divide the labor movement, liberals and progressives" and said Wallace gives "little more than lip service" to his ideals.

Carey lost another round today when the convention voted down his minority report criticizing the union's politics and asking that the union take back "even those who have expressed anti-Communist views."

Before the vote on the presidential issue, Fitzgerald told the convention that anyone who says the union's funds are being spent for any presidential candidate "is a damnable liar."

Questioned by Delegate

His statement followed a question from a delegate, who asked whether passage of the resolution would mean the union would stop spending its funds to support the Wallace candidacy.

Discussing his role in the Wallace party, Fitzgerald said: "You cannot question my rights to do that without endangering your own right to free political expresssion."

He also denounced as "damnable liars" newspapermen and unnamed CIO officials who, he said, spread reports that he and Julius Emspak, UE secretary-treasurer, tried to get the CIO national executive board to indorse Wallace.

He said he and Emspak, both of whom resigned from the board last March, argued only against "the lack of wisdom" of the CIO's taking any political position in 1948.

Transport Workers Indorse Truman

New York, Sept. 7 (AP).—The executive board of the biggest local of the CIO Transport Workers Union tonight voted 25 to 9 to indorse President Truman's candidacy.

The action by local 100, which claims New York City transit workers as members, followed bitter attacks Sunday on both Truman and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey by the TWU international board.

The local 100 board also voted to censure what was termed "the Communist bloc in the international executive board" for attacking Quill and CIO President Philip Murray.

9 Canadians Barred From CIO Convention

By The Associated Press

The Immigration Service said yesterday nine Canadians who sought to enter this country to attend a CIO union convention have been "temporarily excluded."

John T. Boyd, deputy commissioner, said they were denied admission "on the ground that they were members of the excludable classes" under an act of October 16, 1918. Such persons, Boyd said, included those affiliated with the Communist Party.

The nine were headed for the convention of the CIO United Electrical, Radio and Machinery Workers at New York. Among them was C. S. Jackson, international vice president of the union and head of its Canadian affiliate, District 5.

Jackson was removed from a Trans-Canada Airlines plane when he arrived at La Guardia Field in New York yesterday. He was taken later to Ellis Island.

Boyd said the others excluded were John H. Betts, jr., Edward M. Chambers, John Osborne, David Wallace, Thomas Davies, Thomas E. Spears, Edward Pritchard and Patrick Cullion.

Princess, Countess Among 37 Taking Oath of Allegiance

The Washington Post

PLEDGE ALLEGIANCE—Mrs. Charlotte Zichy (left) and Mrs. Dolores Reeves leave District Court yesterday after renouncing their foreign titles and becoming naturalized Americans.

A princess of Afghanistan and a countess of Hungary renounced their titles yesterday in District Court to become naturalized citizens of this country.

They were among 37 aliens who pledged allegiance to the United States during a naturalization ceremony before Judge F. Dickinsan Letts.

After renouncing their titles under oath, the Afghanistan princess, now Mrs. Dolores Catherine Reeves, and the Hungarian countess, now Mrs. Charlotte Zichy, broke into smiles and gaily shook hands.

A native of Germany, Mrs. Reeves married Prince Oberdullah, brother of King Amanullah at the afe of 19. She was divorced in 1947, and married her present husband, Col. Louis Paul Reeves, in Miami last June.

She will sail shortly for Rio de Janiero, Brazil, to join her husband, who works there for the International Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Mrs. Zichy was born in New York City, but married her husband, Count Edward Zichy, 26, years ago, losing her American citizenship. They lived for many years on his estate near Budapest, Hungary, but became displaced persons during the war.

Mrs. Zichy soon will rejoin her husband, who is still in Europe. She said she hopes he too will become an American citizen someday.

Others who became citizens yesterday were:

Mrs. Yee Wong Shee, Chinese, 917 New York ave. nw.; Mrs. Anne Margarette Koch, German, 1324 Vermont ave. nw.; Mrs. Blanche Marie Ritchie, Belgian, Great Neck, Long Island, N. Warren Trial Is Continued

Philip Warren, lawyer and Franklin Park orator, yesterday warned Municipal Court Judge Aubrey B. Fennell that the court was in for lengthy proceedings at Warren's trial for soliciting alms and disorderly conduct.

The attorney appearing on the charges yesterday, declared his trial would take at least three months.

"In that case," said the judge, "we will have a special judge assigned," and he continued the case until November 22.

Earlier, Municipal Court Judge Armond Scott reduced Warren's $1000 bond to $925. The lawyer had been under $600 bond for the grand jury on charges of intimidating a witness; and $100 bond on each of two charges of soliciting alms and two charges of disorderly conduct.

All the charges stemmed from Warren's speechmaking activities in behalf of his "Franklin Park Civic and Humane Society." Gallinger psychiatrists have certified that he is of sound mind.

Warren asked that:

1—Judge Scott order an investigation of the United States Attorney's Office.

2—Investigate Assistant United States Attorney Frank Reifsnyder, whom Warren charged, "railroaded" him to Gaslinger.

3—That the United States Attorneys office "stipulate" that he (Warren) had "10,000 character witnesses."

4—That his $1000 bond be cancelled and he be released on personal bond.

It's Talmadge vs. Thompson In Georgia Election Today

Atlanta, Sept. 7 (AP).—Homespun Herman Talmadge and Doctor of Philosophy M. E. Thompson climaxed a sizzling campaign for Georgia's Governorship tonight and awainted a verdict from voters Wednesday in a strange, 20-months political drama.

A Democratic primary with a record-breaking 1,195,183 registered voters was the court of last resort in a turbulent battle that began when both claimed executive power early in 1947.

Thompson, orphan son of a tenant farmer, who washed dishes to prepare for an educator's career, won the first round and the title of Acting Governor from the Georgia Supreme Court.

Young Talmadge, who had sat in the Governor's office illegally for 67 days, departed with a promise and threat: "I'll be back."

His first campaign has been pitched faithfully to the tune that won the Governor's chair four times for his late father, famed and fiery Eugene Talmadge.

Court Upheld Thompson

"Old Gene's" death before his scheduled inauguration in 1947 led to the double-governor dispute. Herman was elected in a tumultous post-midnight legislative session to fill the vacancy. Thompson claimed the office by rightful succession from lieutenant-governor.

A court decision for Thompson, after days of confusion, set the stage for Wednesday's contest for the remaining two years of the elder Talmadge's unexpired term.

Tobacco-chewing Herman, 35, has shed his coat, snapped the same scarlet suspenders his father always wore, and in a rural drawl assailed President Truman's civil rights program as the only issue in the campaign and the greatest threat to "white supremacy" and Southern traditions since Reconstruction days.

Thompson, 45, lashed at "hoodlums, thugs, goons and drunks" he said installed Talmadge by force in the 1947 row.

Talmadge is banking on Georgia's cunty unit system for victory. Under the unit system, each of 159 counties is assigned 2 to 6 unit votes. The candidate with a plurality of popular votes gets all a county's unit votes. A majority of the unit votes wins the primary, equivalent to election in Georgia.

United States Senator Richard Russell is unopposed. Veteran Representative Eugene Cox of the Second District is opposed by J. Neely Peacock, Albany attorney, his foe in 1946. Representative W. M. Wheeler of the Eighth faces former Congressman John S. Gibson of Douglas, and Country Johnston of Valdosta. Representative James C. Davis of the Fifth District has opposition from former Congresswoman Helen Douglas Mankin and Wyman C. Lowe.

Waving Big Knife, Woman Robs Club

A woman held two men at bay with a butcher knife last night while she robbed the Club Frances, 910 5th st. nw., of $30.25, it was reported to police by Richard Holbert, owner of the club.

Holbert told police the woman had been a waitress in the establishment until Thursday.

She came into the club about 7 p. m. walked to the kitchen and picked up a butcher knife, police were told. The woman then held off Luther Smith, 1871 California st. nw., manager of the club, and Norman Banke, 4932 Nash st. ne., identified as a cook, while she robbed the cash register, according to the report.

Police were investigating on the basis of a name and description furnished by the men.

is elected in Alabama," Primm said. "All he has to do is simply to resign."

Primm also replied to Rushton's denial that he was Alabama's campaign manager for the Dixiecrat ticket. He quoted from the Birmingham Post of August 25 as evidence that Rushton was active for the Thurmond-Wright party:

"The States' Rights Organizing Committee already has organizations set up in 40 Alabama counties, Marion Rushton, State chairman, told a group of North Alabama leaders at a conference here," Primm quoted the Birmingham Post as saying.

"The group's members are on the executive committee of the State organization." Primm then remarked:

"I do not know what Rushton's official title may be with the Dixiecrats, but it makes no difference to the Democratic National Committee whether he is State campaign manager or chairman of the States' Rights organizing committee. It all adds up to the same thing.

"He is actively engaged in fighting the regular nominees of the national Democratic Party; therefore I think he should resign as Democratic National committeeman.

Texas Electors Queried

In Texas Robert W. Calvert, State Democratic chairman, queried all 23 Texas presidential electors as to whether they intended to support the Truman-Barkley ticket. One of these telegrams, addressed to former Representative Maury Maverick, a Texas elector, was released by Maverick yesterday. The telegram read:

"When the State convention at its nominees for presidential elec- Brownwood selected you as one of tor, it also adopted a resolution pledging you to support all the nominees of the Democratic Party.

"In order that the delegates to the State convention to be held in Fort Worth September 14, may be advised as to whether or not you intend to carry out this pledge, please wire immediately: first, whether you recognize and agree that Harry S. Truman and Alben Barkley are the duly and legally selected nominees of the Democratic Party for President and Vice President, and, second, whether, if elected, you will cast your vote in the electoral college for the said Harry S. Truman and Alben Barkley."

Maverick's Reply

In replying that Truman and Barkley were the "best men in the race" and that he would support them, Maverick added:

"As for the Dixiecrats, all they are doing is lending aid to the Republican Party. The delegates who participate in the Dixiecrats' convention at Dallas tomorrow have no more right to take part in the regular Democratic State Convention in Fort Worth September 14, than have the Republicans or the Wallaceites, and, in my opinion, should be barred from our regular party convention.

"The Dixiecrat movement is the same old story. Long before the civil rights issue came up, their leadership had already perfected plans to aid the Republican Party. The leadership of the Dixiecrats represents nothing but a bunch of sectional soreheads who have always been local Democrats and national Republicans. The people are not going to be misled by them."

Other developments in the Southern race include:

1. A group opposing the South Carolina Democratic Party's pledge of its electors to the Dixiecrat ticket will meet in Columbia, S. C., today to name eight new nominees for electors to the Truman-Barkley ticket. Dave Baker, a spokesman for the regular Democrats, said the group also would discuss the "two vacancies" on the Democratic National Committee. They are the places held by Gov. Strom Thurmond, Dixiecrat candidate for President, and Mrs. Anne Agnew of Columbia.

2. Circuit Judge Miles W. Lewis at Jacksonville, Fla., held that a presidential election is legally a free agent in determining whom to vote for President. He said he believed the Democratic Party pledge required of candidates for electors was intended to maintain loyalty within the party, but that it had no force of law.

Four Florida Democratic elector nominees have said they will cast their votes for Thurmond, the States' Rights Democratic candidate for President. Four others have said they will vote for the national party nominee, President Truman.

In Indiana a court issued a temporary order preventing the State election board from giving the Dixiecrat ticket a place on the Indiana ballot.

Dewey Holds Fire, Maps His Campaign

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey today coached from the sidelines in the Detroit kickoff of the Republican campaign and then mapped his own plans to carry the ball.

The man who four years ago romped onto the gridiron against "The Champ" the day after Labor Day is in no such hurry on this anniversary of that distant campaign.

Relaxed from a three-day rest at his Pawling farm, Governor Dewey all but ignored President Truman's robust Labor Day sally into Michigan.

Instead of slapping back, he turned the floodlights brightly on Harold E. Stassen's opening punt in Detroit tonight and then quietly discussed plans for his own late September West Coast dash, with a picked group of 10.

No Comment on Truman

Asked for comment on Mr. Truman's Michigan run, his only reply was:

"I shall listen with great interest to Mr. Stassen's speech tonight."

Governor Dewey was not only intimately familiar with what the Minnesotan was going to say, the two were working together as few teams of former party rivals ever had.

Before and after President Truman's Detroit blast, Governor Dewey and his top men here held many a long-distance telephone huddle with Stassen in perhaps the first cue to the new Dewey strategy of uniting once diverse elements within the party.

Today's late afternoon conference on Dewey's itinerary was preliminary to the first formal announcement, possibly Thursday, of a cross-country trip to the Coast slated to start between September 17 and 20.

Beyond unconfirmed reports of a date to speak in San Francisco September 24, very little has "leaked" on the still closely guarded itinerary. There has been some speculation here on a fast trip to the Coast with the Governor making most of his speeches on the way back.

Some surprises turned up today in the little group who sat in with the Governor on campaign transportation and itinerary—one in the shape of Michael F. Reilly, former chief of White House Secret Service, who made many trips with the late Franklin Roosevelt.

Reilly, and another former Secret Service man, George F. Booze of Detroit, are not working for the Republican National Committee, and will precede Dewey west as advance men.

Quinn, Fink Present

Two Republicans formerly active in the primary campaign of Harold Stassen—John B. Quinn of Lincoln, Nebr., and Walter H. Fink of Minneapolis, also sat in on the conference.

Others in the itinerary huddle: Paul Lockwood, secretary to the Governor, handling campaign transportation; James C. Hagerty, Dewey's executive assistant; Charles LaFond of the New York Central Railroad; George G. Berry, New York lawyer, and Mrs. Rebecca McNabb, a member of the Republican State Committee, who will accompany Mrs. Dewey on the trip.

Earlier, Eddie Cantor, stage and radio comedian, called at the State Capitol and stayed to lunch with the Governor.

"I told him some jokes," said Cantor. "He's about to get down to serious campaigning and I thought he needed a laugh."

Cantor is speaking in Schenectady tonight for the United Jewish Appeal drive.

Stassen Says Truman Fails in Leadership

so vitally needed in these next crucial years."

Mr. Truman's Detroit address "silhouetted the reasons why this Administration has failed in these critical postwar years," Stassen declared.

"He failed when he had a Democratic Congress to work with.

"He failed when he had a Republican Congress to work with.

"It is high time to elect a President who can work successfully with others as an American team.

"His complaints remind one of the out-of-step marcher who protests that he is not out of step; all of the rest of the marchers are out of step with him."

Planned With Dewey

Stassen, whose appearance here was planned in talks with the Republican presidential candidate, Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York, called for election of a Republication Administration "carried on in keeping with the sound principles of a truly liberal philosophy."

The speaker pictured the President making "a transparent attempt to create disunity and to benefit politically by deceiving labor" before an audience "built up with labor boss threats of a $3 fine for nonattendance."

Mr. Truman spoke before a Labor Day rally sponsored jointly by the AFL and CIO which was attended by an estimated of 100,000 to 120,000 persons.

"Labor will not be the tail on the political kite of any one candidate or any one party," Stassen said.

He declared that Mr. Truman "began to make a record of failure at home and abroad" when he had a majority of 15 in the Senate and 51 in the House.

He went to Potsdam for the conference of Allied victors "without taking with him a single representative of our Republican Party, even though the bipartisan foreign policy had been well established," Stassen stated.

A notable omission from the party was Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, now GOP chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Stassen noted—"and Potsdam was a colossal failure for the United States."

And here at home, the speaker went on, Mr. Truman "took a whole series of inflationary steps. On his own initiative he set off the inflationary spiral from which this country is still suffering."

"This is the inflation," Stassen added, "which he now tries to blame on the Republican Party."

Links Truman, Wallace

The speaker linked Mr. Truman with Henry Wallace in that early postwar era. Wallace then was Secretary of Commerce, who later was dismissed by Mr. Truman in a disagreement over policy toward Russia.

Mr. Truman and the present Progressive Party presidential candidate "were in agreement on the erroneous, misconceived appraisal of postwar America," Stassen said. They both believed, he declared, that the end of the war would be followed by a depression.

Mr. Truman released "major wartime controls" in August, 1945, Stassen said, and this was followed by an inflationary upswing.

Mr. Truman's action and his speeches brought on "an all-time high record of strikes and work stoppages," Stassen said.

And the President still is following "erroneous economic advice with "miscalculations consistently based on a pessimistic view of the future of America," he added.

"With a record of little judgment and less faith, he once again sets himself up as a prophet and attempts to arouse in America an unreasoning, nameless fear of future depression, unemployment and chaos if he is not retained in office," Stassen said.

What Truman Said

Mr. Truman yesterday told labor that it could elect "a reactionary Administration and go into an era of fear."

Stassen defended the Taft-Hartley law, repeal of which is demanded by Mr. Truman.

"Every day additional thousands of members of organized labor are realizing that what the law has done is to require a few labor officials to be less arbitrary with their own members and with management," he said.

"It has required labor's leadership to be more thorough, more fair, more conscientious in their bargaining and negotiations without strikes."

He said it was passed with the support of the majority of Democrats in Congress.

Stassen said he anticipates that Governor Dewey, in his forthcoming addresses, will make it clear that he will be fair to labor and "seek the best interests of the people as a whole." That has been his record as chief executive of New York, Stassen added.

Stassen laid the blame for high prices on:

1. World-wide shortages in the wake of the war.
2. "Unsound policies of the Administration after the war."
3. The "further urgent necessity" of sending goods abroad to help other peoples get on their economic feet.

"It is a tragedy," he said, "that this essential rebuilding of other nations and their peoples has been made so difficult by the unsound nature of our own international agreements after the war and by the destructive and aggressive tactics of the Soviet Union of Russia."

But giving to the Government "the extreme powers of centralized control requested by the President" won't solve our problems, Stassen said. He recommended:

1. "Wise and careful" use of credit and financial regulations now on the law books.
2. Administering purchases for European countries "in a sound manner."
3. Combating hoarding.
4. Penalizing profiteering.

He predicted that Dewey will manage things "to prevent a bubble boom and also to avoid the sickening bust of sudden deflation."

Stassen took a jab at Mr. Truman's charges concerning the current congressional spy investigation. The President has called it a "red herring" to turn attention of the country from Congress' own record.

"The Republicans are not pulling red herring across his trail," said Stassen. "They are driving the red herring out. Too many red herring had been in Washington for too long a time. The President should help man the red herring nets."

Earlier, Stassen told a news conference that President Truman has made a 180-degree turn in his attitude toward labor since Mr. Truman asked authority in 1946 to draft railroad strikers into the Army.

He said Mr. Truman's speech yesterday "brought back for me memories of another speech he made to Congress on May 25, 1946, when the President asked for the most totalitarian power over labor ever proposed in time of peace."

HAROLD E. STASSEN
Starts a Campaign

Dewey Telephones Praise to Stassen

Detroit, Sept. 7 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican presidential nominee, told Harold E. Stassen in a telephone call from Albany tonight he liked what Stassen had to say about President Truman and the Democrats.

"He said he had listened to the speech, liked it and thanked me for it," Stassen told a reporter. He added Dewey had commented on the crowd's cheering reaction to Stassen's words.

D. C. Recreation Board to Hear Park Segregation Opponents

Members of the District Progressive Party and the Young Progressive Party are expected to attend the next meeting of the Board of Recreation as part of their campaign to end segregation in public playgrounds here.

A delegatio nof Young Progressives had planned to confer yesterday with Harry S. Wender, chairman of the Recreation Board, on the playground situation, but they were informed by Wender that he could not represent the board at such a meeting, according to William Capitman, Progressive Party executive secretary.

The Recreation Board meets at 2:30 p. m. next Tuesday at the Recreation office, 3149 16th st. nw.

The antidiscrimination committee of the Young Progressives has staged two demonstrations and attempt to take Negroes into the "white" Rosedale Playground at 17th and Gales sts. ne., in the past two weeks.

120 Dead, 25 Million Loss in Italian Storm

Rome, Sept. 7 (AP).—Northeast Italy began today the gigantic job of mopping up after weekend storms which left an estimated 120 dead and caused 25 million dollars damage.

Flood waters receded after rains which lashed the Piedmont and other areas of Italy for 40 hours. Asti, a city of 50,000, today was partly submerged. Thousands were homeless.

Civil Service Workers' Fear Of Wholesale Firings 'Silly'

People who make those statements apparently have no knowledge of the Civil Service system, the Hatch "no politics" Act, and the simple fact that the Federal worker is a plain and average citizen who has a mind of his own.

Anyway, suffice it to say that Dewey rejected the advice to fire wholesale the State's officials and employes. The Governor set out on his goal to make the State Civil Service Commission the outstanding body of its kind in the Nation. As members of that commission, he had in mind this type of person:

Beardsley Ruml of tax plan fame; Thomas I. Parkinson, president of the Equitable Life Insurance Co., and Arthur S. Flemming, who was then serving as the GOP member of the Federal commission. For one reason or the other, he failed to get hard-hitting men of this type to accept the jobs, a keen disappointment to him. Eventually, he picked a commission of relatively unknowns.

Somewhere along the line Dewey's once supreme confidence in civil service must have been shaken. Instead of bringing more State jobs in under civil service as he had promised, he exempted some jobs on the recommendation of his commission. A recent report of the National Civil Service Reform League says "the number of positions in the State service excepted from competition is now at the highest point in over 25 years." This condition, the league describes as "alarming."

It points out that the exemptions "further limit opportunities of those in the service to attain more responsible posts, discourages many from continuing in the service, and makes it unattractive to those who might otherwise be persuaded to seek careers in it."

The league blames the exemptions on pressure on the commission from "prejudiced operating officials combined with urgent demands of patronage-minded political leaders for a share of public positions for their faithful partisan followers."

In an earlier report, the league blasted the State commission as "suffering from lack of leadership." It went on to say that the Dewey commission "has exhibited conspicuous failure to fulfill its obligations to the public . . . Confusion and delay, divided and vaguely assigned responsibility and low staff morale has long been apparent."

While it's true that more State jobs are exempted from competition than at any time in years, it's also true that the number of jobs in the competitive service also is at a record high. The percentage out of competition hasn't changed much under Dewey's regime because the number of State jobs has increased in recent years.

As pointed out here yesterday, Dewey did not fire a single civil service employe for political purposes. He went much further, in fact, and kept in his high command several holdover Democratic appointees whom he considered to be competent and able—and he kept them despite heavy political opposition. Among them were:

Col. John A. Warner, chief of the State police, who is a son-in-law of the late Al Smith, a former Democratic Governor. He resigned during the war to enter the military service; Milo Maltbie, chairman of the Public Service Commission who has since retired; Frederick A. Moran, chairman of the parole board, a career man who was reappointed; John A. Lyons, another career man who was commissioner of correction, and Dr. Edward S. Godfrey, another career man who was appointed commissioner of health and who has since retired.

Godfrey, incidentally, was succeeded by a Federal career man, Dr. Herman E. Hilleboe of the United States Public Health Service.

A Dewey spokesman underlined these two points: (1) that no top job held by a career man had been touched since Dewey became Governor, and (2) that no political appointee had been given the job of any career employe anywhere along the line.

I explained to the Dewey aides with whom I talked that a number of Federal career employes had been promoted in recent years to top policy-making jobs. I asked if Dewey could be expected to retain them if he's elected. This was one reply:

That the political pressure would be too great to keep a Truman-appointed career man in the Cabinet, but that independent and able career people in other high-placed jobs would likely be asked to remain.

Repeatedly, it was brought out that Dewey was interested primarily in competence in Government; that the employe who had ability and followed his leadership had no reason to fear for his job under Dewey. Also, that he moved in swiftly and cleaned up offices that were overstaffed, bogged down by red tape, and where officials and employes undercut his policies.

Tomorrow Jerry Klutz will report on what New York State employes think of Dewey as a boss.

Truman Ends 'Good Trip'

shake-down run into Michigan and Ohio.

"It was a very good trip, I think," Mr. Truman told reporters as he stepped from his special train.

He said the schedule for the next trip should be ready in a day or two. The White House already has announced that it will start officially with a speech September 18 at the sixth annual national plowing contest at Dexter, Iowa.

Until then, Mr. Truman and his political advisers will put together a series of speeches to be used on the swing to the West Coast and through the Southwest.

Mr. Truman promised that it would be a fighting campaign. He set the pace in a series of six Michigan speeches during which he accused the Republicans of everything from "plain, outright bribery" of the electorate to bowing to the wishes of "a lot of lobbyists."

The bribery charge was based on GOP literature suggesting that taxpayers should contribute to the Republican campaign chest some of their savings from the tax cut passed by the Republican-controlled Congress over his veto.

The President cited the Taft-Hartley law as an example of how the GOP bowed to lobby pressures.

He told his Michigan audiences that they were hearing only the beginning of a long series of blistering attacks against the Republican leadership, particularly in Congress.

In his final speech of the day, to a train-side audience at Toledo, Ohio, he described the 1948 electioneering as "the most important political campaign since the Lincoln-Douglas debates."

Communist Ban Voted By Lawyers

Seattle, Sept. 7 (AP).—The American Bar Association decided today that lawyers who refuse to say whether they are Communists will not be welcome among its membership.

The issue has come before the House of Delegates, the ABA's policy-determining body, on both days of the convention.

Yesterday a surprise resolution proposed both expulsion from the ABA and disbarment proceedings against any lawyer refusing on constitutional grounds to answer if asked: "Are you a Communist?"

The resolution was adopted by 54 to 50.

Today, however, Thomas B. Gay, Richmond, Va., moved reconsideration and adoption of a milder resolution. It declared that failure to answer the Communist question would be regarded by ABA governors as "compelling cause" for exulsion. It also dropped directions to State bar associations to launch disbarment proceedings against lawyers declining to answer the Communist question.

The bar association elected Walter M. Bastian of Washington, D. C., association treasurer; James R. Morford, Wilmington, Del., chairman of the house of delegates, and Joseph D. Stecker, Toledo, Ohio, secretary. Frank Holman of Seattle will be installed Thursday as president.

The house of delegates referred back to the board of governors its proposal to reject all applications for association membership from members of the National Lawyers Guild. Delegates assailed it as implied "guilt by association."

Staunton Textile Mill Pay Hike Pact Signed

New York, Sept. 7 (AP).—Celanese Corporation of America today announced it had signed an agreement with the Textile Workers Union of America (CIO) providing for an 8 per cent average increase for all hourly-paid employes at its Staunton, Va., plant.

Actual wage rates and present scales were not given.

VD Drive Shows Effect

New admissions to free venereal disease clincs have increased 44 per cent since the Health Department launched a year-long drive to curb gonorrhea in the District.

Admissions to the three Health Department clinics averaged 1500 a month during July and August, the department reported yesterday. Before the drive started July 1, admissions averaged just over 1000 a month.

Another indication of the apparent effectiveness of the drive's publicity of VD symptoms and dangers has been the two-and-one-half fold increase in telephone calls to the special VD information number, Metropolitan 4600.

Telephone requests for referral to District clinics or private physicians totaled more than 700 during July and August, the department reported.

The department also has distributed free of charge more than 3200 vials of penicillin, each containing enough to treat one case, to 150 District physicians. Requests for penicillin from individual private physicians have ranged from 6 to 250 vials.

isterial crisis in six weeks that is up to you. But I feel it my duty to tell you it is not only a question of the government's fate. You must look at the country and at the consequences a crisis would provoke and the change it would mean for France outside our frontiers. If you wish France to be once more without a government that is your right."

Schuman's cabinet was formed Sunday after France had been without a government for eight days following the fall of Andre Marie's regime. The issue of wages collapsed Marie's government which had tried to hold down wage and price increases in an effort to restore France's economy.

The next move now is up to Auriol. There was no indication what course the President would take.

There has been speculation that a new election might be called. Members of Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Rally of the French People, a predominantly rightist group, have sought an election.

Russians Kidnap 19 German Police

fore this incident and two French trucks bearing the besieged party of western zone officials and newspapermen were permitted to leave.

The city hall has been besieged since Monday when Communist-led demonstrators stormed the building and forced the elected city government to retreat to western Berlin. A heavy guard of Russian troops and Soviet-controlled police still circled the building after the two trucks drove away.

Nineteen Others Carried Away

The 19 policemen freed today were ordered to the city hall Monday to protect it from the demonstrators.

The evacuation began several hours after the besieging force clamped a hunger blockade on the building.

The purpose of the blockade apparently was to starve out the west Berlin policemen who took refuge in the British and French liaison offices there to avoid arrest. Nineteen other west Berlin police were snatched by the east Berlin police Monday and were taken away in chains.

Originally 46 western sector police were cornered in the building. After the Soviet-controlled police invaded the American liaison office Monday night and dragged away 19 of them, 27 remained holed up in the British and French liaison offices to avoid arrest.

Entry at First Barred

As the siege dragged on, eight of the western sector police were smuggled out of city hall. The Soviet-licensed press claimed, however, three of these were caught climbing over the wall behind the building.

Early last night Russian soldiers and Soviet-controlled German police barred entry to the building to all Allied personnel. After four hours, however, British and French spokesmen reported the Russians had given them assurances that Allied personnel could come and go as they pleased.

Taking food into the building was forbidden, however.

The siege began Monday after Communist demonstrators drove the regularly elected city government from the building. Before the siege apparently was relaxed early today to permit free passage by Allied personnel, two American officials were detained briefly by Russian military police.

William Babcock, deputy United States commandant in Berlin, and Maj. John E. Davisson, American liaison officer at city hall, were taken into custody when they attempted to reach the building last night at a time the blockade was most rigid. Babcock is a civilian but was wearing his uniform as a reserve colonel in the Army.

The police took the two Americans to the Russian Kommandatura and released them a short time later. While at the Kommandatura they asked to see Maj. Gen. Alexander Kotiokov, the Russian commandant. This request was refused.

Associated Press Correspondent Richard K. O'Malley and AP Photographer Henry Burroughs were roughed up by the police inside city hall when they aided a German reporter who was being dragged away. They grabbed the reporter from the police and got him back inside the America liaison room. O'Malley received a bruised arm.

The city hall was cordoned off by hundreds of policemen and troops. Babcock said an outer ring of Russian troops guarded all approaches. An inner ring of Russian-backed German police and Russian soldiers was drawn close around the building. He estimated that one out of every five of the guards was a Russian soldier.

Yesterday when the guard was denying entrance to all Allied personnel, the four military governors of Germany—American, British, French and Russian—held a "deadline" conference in an effort to settle the 76-day-old Berlin crisis. After the meeting, the British military government said the governors "will take a few days" recess to study today's proposals."

There was no hint of what the proposals were. The Soviet-licensed German news agency ADN said the recess was called because yesterday's session "showed the need to examine proposals made by the Allied military commanders."

What caused relaxation of the no-entrance blockade was not determined immediately.

A British official protested at the Soviet military government offices after a British liaison officer was not allowed to enter city hall.

It was from the American liaison office that east Berlin police snatched 19 west Berlin police Monday and took them away in chains.

The four-power meeting—the seventh in the Berlin s... started in the tense atmosphere created by the Communist attempts to seize political domination of Berlin possibly by setting up a rump government in the Soviet sector.

Last night Soviet-directed German police broke into the American liaison office in the city hall and carried off in chains the 19 west German police given refuge there.

The west German police had been brought to the city hall to protect the elected city government from the Communist demonstrators. The city hall is in the Soviet sector and is dominated by Soviet-directed German police.

The only protest to the Russians thus far on the disorders and invasion of American rooms came last night from the American major on the scene—John E. Davisson.

Jobless Man Leaps to Death

ord as a "loyal Government employe."

Narrowly Misses Workmen

Harrison then jumped from the window, falling 11 stories to a courtyard in the back of the building. His body narrowly missed two workmen in the area. It struck a concrete block with such force that the block was smashed in two. Harrison died immediately. His body was later taken to the District Morgue. Late yesterday, Acting Coroner Dr. Christopher J. Murphy issued a certificate of suicide. He did not order an autopsy.

Mrs. Florence Harrison, of the Parkfairfax address, was too upset over news of her husband's death yesterday to talk with reporters.

From neighbors it was learned that Harrison had undergone a major operation about six months ago and this, coupled with worries about unemployment, were believed to have caused his suicidal leap.

According to information obtained from neighbors and from personnel records, Harrison had worked in accounting firms in New York and the Midwest before he came to Washington in about 1935 to work for the Farm Security Administration.

He was employed by FSA until 1943, when he was transferred on "reimbursable detail" to the Federal Public Housing Authority. The transfer was made when the subsistence homestead program was transferred to FPHA.

At that time, Harrison was detailed in the management and disposition of homestead projects. In January, 1946, he became disposition and management analyst and held this job until August 28, 1947.

He was then "let out" of the Government in a general "reduction in force" in the agency. Last March, he was rehired on a contractual basis by the Public Housing Administration, to assist in the liquidation of the subsistence homestead projects. The contract was terminated June 30.

Neighbors said the Harrisons have three children, all of whom live on the West Coast.

Alexandrian Held For Grand Jury In Store Slaying

Theodore McCray, 35, of 508 N. Columbus st., Alexandria, was held for the grand jury yesterday in Alexandria Police Court, charged with the murder of General A. Johnson in a grocery store Saturday night.

Johnson, a 24-year-old laborer, died of three bullet wounds in Alexandria Hospital Sunday night.

McCray pleaded innocent to the charge, but did not testify. He was held without bond.

rifles. An undisclosed number of persons were loaded into police vans and ambulances and hauled off.

Police Force Back Crowd

As the hearse bearing Benes' body rolled into Wenceslaus Square, armed police forced back an estimated crowd of 4000 to 5000 who had assembled before the National Museum at the head of the square.

Police vans were lined up bumper to bumper to block any attempt to break through and buses carrying as many as 50 police toured the streets to break up any oversized gathering.

Workers were called out as reinforcements for the police and about 24 were armed with rifles and about 24 were armed with rifles and billeted in the post-office.

When police told those waiting at the bottom of the hill they could not see the body of their beloved leader they shouted, "We want to see our President," and began to spread up the side of the hill.

The stampede breached the police formation at the top of the hill and the Czechs spilled out onto the plateau in front of the stately white building on the outskirts of Prague.

The Communist Central Action Committee earlier had warned ...rs will frustrate" any attempt to stage antigovernment demonstrations during the state funeral tomorrow.

At intervals throughout the day the radio broadcast a special announcement from the Ministry of Interior declaring that police measures will "ensure the dignified and peaceful course of the rites."

Some of the crowd succeeded in squeezing through a side door into the Pantheon, but police, apparently reinforced the inside, blocked off the rest.

When a radio car appealed for order the crowd shouted, "down with the SNB (state police)!" The radio operator gave up trying to quiet them.

A hearse arrived to take the body to the National Museum, where the funeral service is to be held. The police tried to close the doors at midnight. People crushed against the building, pushed by those behind, screamed. A tug of war between police and the weary, waiting Czechs began.

While officials planned security measures in connectio nwith the final rites, more than 100,000 persons filed past Benes' flag-bedecked bier and tens of thousands more queued in front of the liberation monument to pay their last respects.

Polish Leadership Offered to Bierut

Warsaw, Sept. 7.—President Boleslaw Bierut was offered broad power today to strengthen the Communist front, merge with the Socialists and liquidate strong nationalistic and individualistic feeling among Poland's 15 million peasants.

Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz, leftwing Socialist, and Oscar Lange, former Polish Ambassador in Washington, headed a delegation which called upon the President at Belvedere Palace. They told him he had been picked by the Socialists' executive committee as the No. 1 man to head a proposed new Communist-Socialist Workers Party. He long has been the choice of his Communists for the united leadership.

Bierut thanked the delegation for the nomination, which is tantamount to election. Since the Communists and Socialists hold the key controls in Poland, his nomination and acceptance of the prospective post give the 56-year-old chief executive, long identified with Communist activities, exceptionally broad political powers.

The President pushed ahead today plugging the gaps created in the Communist front by Vice Premier Wladyslaw Gomulka's support of "rightist and nationalist deviation."

Yesterday, Bierut faced the possibility of having to perform this task without Gomulka's help.

But within 24 hours Gomulka did a complete about-face. He agreed to go down the line of communism favored by Moscow and the Cominform.

He said he had committed a "mountain of errors" and expressed regret.

His party had thrown a book of charges at him, including backing Mashal Tito and the Yugoslav Communists against the Cominform and opposing the Cominform program of waging "class warfare" among the peasants.

The damage caused by Gomulka's defection, however, appears to be widespread and is centered especially among the peasants.

Gomulka took the view that this damage was temporary and the crisis is past.

Bierut appeared to take a different slant. He said he expected a tough fight with nationalistic-minded peasants, "small town elements" and other class enemies.

The Communist offensive is to be directed principally against the so-called "rich peasant." The Communists figure that by setting up farm machinery pools for common use they can keep a closer check on the harvest of these peasants, and stop hoarding.

Paid a Tithe

Tito Aides Seize Pigs; Kulaks Irked

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Sept. 7 (AP).—Marshal Tito's commisars are raiding the farms of so-called rich peasants throughout Yugoslavia. Tito's men are seizing nearly all the pigs and turning them over to state-owned farms and peasant cooperatives.

Many people coming into Belgrade today from the rich farm country of Vojvodina and Sebria said the peasants were "seething" over the raids. The selzures began yesterday and will continue through Friday.

The official reason given was that the rich peasants, the "kulaks," were hiding the pigs and not selling the required quotas to the government. They were charged with "speculating and sabotaging the economy."

The authorities were reported taking the pigs from rich "capitalistic elements" but leaving each family with at least two pigs.

The government did not say what price they would pay for the swine. Reports from the peasants said it would amount to only one tenth of what they could get on the free market, where the price of pork and fat ranges from $2 to $3 a pound.

Reports have been growing in the last few weeks that peasants have once again taken individual measures of passive resistance against the Communist program of enforced buying and selling.

The raids may be another move by the Tito government to prove the error of Cominform charges that the Communists were being too easy with the peasants.

Taylor, Vatican Envoy, Finds Europe Confused

New York, Sept. 7 (AP).—Myron C. Taylor, President Truman's representative to the Vatican, returned today from Europe and said there is "much confusion" there.

Taylor, who returned with his wife aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth after five months spent mainly in Rome, said his other observations on the European situation would be made shortly in a report to the President.

2 High Hungarian Officials Executed as Western Spies

Budapest, Sept. 7 (U.P.).—Two high Hungarian officials were executed today for spying for a "Western power," the Ministry of Justice announced.

The officials, Col. Pal Hadvany, formerly of the army general staff, and Elemer Lovasz, a high-ranking railroad official, were convicted of high treason in a top secret trial from which even most court officials were barred.

Hadvany and Lovasz were said to have been ringleaders in an espionage ring which included three other persons, two of them army officers. They were identified as Second Lieut. Sandor Szaszi, sentenced to life imprisonment; Imre Gallay, a clerk, who received 15 years at hard labor, and Lieut. Zoltan Csepe, sentenced to one year.

A brief Ministry communique, first word about the case, said that all five were convicted August 28 at a closed session of the People's Court and that Hadvany and Lovasz were sentenced to death for "continuously committing high treason."

The men appealed the verdicts and on September 4, and Supreme People's Court confirmed the verdicts and sentences.

Greek Army Cuts Guerillas' Area

Athens, Greece, Sept. 7 (U.P.).—The army general staff said today that the Morgana Mountain salient along the Albanian border, which reportedly contains the largest remaining guerilla force, has been reduced from 380 to 38 square miles.

All guerilla routes south into Greece from the Morgana pocket have been cut, and only two remain open into Albania, the army communique said.

India-Pakistan War Fear Grows

Lake Success, Sept. 7 (NYHT). Fear of war between the dominions of India and Pakistan developed today, as the United Nations reported failure of its newest effort to bring peace to the 4 million inhabitants of the strife-riven vale of Kashmir.

With casualties running well up into the thousands, Shiv K. Shastri, deputy director of the Government of India Information Services, declared in Washington that Kashmir fighting, "if anything, has been increasing in intensity" during the U. N. peace efforts.

Shastri asserted that the tribesmen who first precipitated the guerrilla war had been giving way before the advance of the Indian army, but were now being "displaced more and more by trained troops from Pakistan."

"It was in order to avoid the prospect of war that India has refrained from exercising those rights to which it was fully entitled by international law," Shastri said. He set forth the view that once Kashmir joined India, India became bound to repel all attacks. When it found tribesmen using Pakistan territory for training and operations, he added, it would have been justified in attacking the bases, but hadn't done so.

Indian quarters appeared to be taking a serious view of a statement attributed by the U. N. Good Offices Commission to Foreign Minister Sir Mohammad Zafrullah Khan, of Pakistan, that the "Pakistan army is at present responsible for the overall command of Azad (free) Kashmir forces," and that this insurgent group's forces were operationally controlled by the Pakistan army. Hitherto, Pakistan had repeatedly denied any responsibility or control over the insurgents.

Road Repairs Take 20% of French Budget, Aide Says

Repair if damaged bridges and roads takes 20 per cent of the French yearly budget, an official of the French Supply Council said here yesterday.

Hubert Treuille, chief of maritime ports equipment for the Council's Mission of Public Works, told an Exchange Club luncheon in Hotel Burlington that despite increased native production France must still look to the United States for the bulk of her rebuilding tools.

He said the Economic Cooperation Administration is helping to supply essential reconstruction equipment and expressed the hope that by next year recovery will be sufficiently advanced so that France can devote a greater portion of "Marshall Plan" funds to fill equipment needs.

Nehru Insists 'for Last Time' Troops Go Into Hyderabad

New Delhi, India, Sept. 7 (AP).—Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru demanded today "for the last time" permission to return Indian troops to Hyderabad.

The Indian press said the Prime Minister's statement in Parliament, in which he referred to possible "grave happenings," amounted to an ultimatum for the Nizam of Hyderabad, wealthy Moslem ruler of the richest and largest remaining princely state in India.

There was speculation major action was imminent against Hyderabad—perhaps the dispatching of troops without waiting for an answer from the Nizam.

Nehru announced tonight tank-supported Indian troops routed attacking Razakars, members of the Nizam's police army, near the Hyderabad border. The action occurred Monday.

The Nizam has resisted demands that Hyderabad—a predominantly Hindu state of 17,500,000—become a part of the Indian dominion. Last month Hyderabad appealed to the United Nations Security Council to settle the dispute.

Both Moslem and Hindu leaders have said failure to settle the dispute might touch off a wave of communal violence.

Sending of troops to Hyderabad would be a violation of an agreement last year in which India agreed not to station troops in Hyderabad except in war and with consent of the Nizam. The agreement runs out November 30.

2 Men Held For Assault

Two Washington men were being held without bond in Prince Georges County Jail at Upper Marlboro yesterday charged with assault with intent to rape a 43-year-old Washington mother of four children.

The men, Paul Courtney Fugitt, 31, of 1105 6th st. sw., and Frank F. Cowens, 41, of 3378 Alder pl. ne., were arrested in Washington after the woman complained to Prince Georges County police that she had been beaten and left nude on the side of a road early Sunday. Cowens, a cab driver, also is charged with use of a taxicab to transport for immoral purposes.

The woman told Prince Georges County detectives she was picked up at her home about 6 p. m. Sunday to go to see Fugitt's sick mother. She was taken to a Kenilworth tavern, she said, where she and Fugitt had several drinks. Then she was taken to an unoccupied house in Cheverly, Md., where Fugitt, a refrigerator installation mechanic, had installed a refrigerator. Here she was attacked, the woman told police.

Later, she was beaten and left nude near Bock rd., Oxon Hill, about 3 a. m. She walked to a home about two miles away where she was given a slip to wear.

Pair in Police Killing Taken

New Orleans, Sept. 7 (AP).—Surrender on the steps of a village store today ended a night-long search for two men who killed a New Orleans detective and abducted the assistant chief of detectives.

The pair—Dale Simpson, 26, of Salt Lake City, and H. E. Miller, 23, of Monticello, Miss.—yielded to three officers at the store in Galvez, La., 65 miles northwest of here.

Sheriff H. H. Waguespack of Ascension Parish said Simpson admitted shooting New Orleans Detective Nicholas Jacob to death yesterday.

Jacob was killed as he and Detective Joseph Tardo were bringing Simpson and Miller to New Orleans from Gulfport, Miss., on a robbery complaint. Tardo also had identified Simpson as the slayer.

"An Example for All America"
—U. S. TREASURY DEPARTMENT

For the tens of thousands of Pennsylvania Railroad employes—in locomotive cabs and cabooses, in signal towers and maintenance shops, behind ticket windows, at desks and on the track—tomorrow will be a day of deserved congratulation.

Employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad are being honored with a citation from the United States Government. The citation commends them for whole-hearted cooperation in the U. S. Treasury's Payroll Savings Bond Plan.

Pennsylvania Railroad employes have rolled up an enviable record of U. S. Savings Bond purchases by means of payroll savings. These bond purchases not only help Pennsylvania employes to save systematically and regularly, but to be of service to our Country as well.

You are cordially invited to attend tomorrow's ceremonies. They begin at 3:15 P.M., DST, in the concourse of Union Station, Washington. Secretary of the Treasury, John W. Snyder, will present the citation before a large group of employes. It will be accepted in their behalf by Railroad and Brotherhood officials. Music by the Army Band.

Rheumatism Research Need Stressed

The need for expanded studies of rheumatism was stressed here yesterday to technicians attending training session of the American Congres sof Physican Medicine, at Hotel Statler.

"Our people suffer 10 times as much from rheumatism as from tuberculosis, yet only five one-hundredths as much money is available for research," declared Dr. LeMoyne C. Kelly, assistant professor of clinical medicine, Yale University School of Medicine.

Dr. Kelly lectured on the "Principles of Treatment of Rheumatoid and Osteoarthritis" at an instruction seminar of the Congress.

He gave figures to show that there are 6,850,000 rheumatic patients in the United States. These, he said, include some three million afflicted with arthritis, of which 130,000 are totally disabled and 800,000 partly incapacitated.

Stressing the need for early diagnoses and treatment of arthritis, Dr. Kelly estimated that 75 per cent of all cases of arthritis "can be greatly benefitted, or cured, if adequate treatment is begun within one year of its onset."

Today, scientific sessions of the Congress are to get under way. First paper of a total of 57 scientific reports will be presented this morning when a group of Northwestern University Medical School scientists will discuss microwave diathermy.

Formal opening of the congress' twenty-sixth annual meeting is scheduled for tonight in the Statler's presidential room. Speakers schedule include Dr. John Minor, president of the District Medical Society; Rev. Paul A. McNally, S. J., of Georgetown University of School of Medicine, and Dr. O. Leonard Huddleston, of the University of Southern California, Los Angeles, who will be installed at tonight's meeting as president of the National Organization of Specialists in Physical Medicine.

Atomic Isotopes Aid Cancer Study

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Radioactive isotopes may light the "dawn of a new area in cancer control," Dr. Murray M. Copeland, tumor specialist, told a meeting of the Washington Civitan Club here yesterday.

Tracer used by the by-products of the atom bomb, he declared, already has shown "absorption differentials" between healthy and diseased tissues, as registered by counters which follow the isotopes in th ehuman body.

Some of these include, he said:

1. A decrease from normal in the rate of absorption of phosphorus in the brain, indicating the presence and location of brain tumors.

2. A slackening in normal absorption rate of iodine by the thyroid gland, in cases of thyroid tumors.

3. The "possibility" that absorption of calcium is similarly retarded in bone cancers and leukemias.

It is in the last-named field that Dr. Copeland, professor of onocology (tumors) at Georgetown University Medical School, is currently carrying out exhaustive research under grant of the United States Public Health Service.

Emphasizing that the use of radioactive isotopes in cancer research is still in the experimental stage, he pointed out that in those experiments to date the absorption rate "has consistently been shown to be less than normal in the diseased areas.

"Finding this out does not give us a cure," he explained, "but it does give us a basis for continuing research."

Tracing the history of cancer research, Dr. Copeland said that "past work has given us the methods of prolonging life comfortably, even in the presene of the disease.

"It may be," he declared, "that we will soon pass this stage into another—that of finding a cure or cures for cancer."

Registering Continues

As draft registration was resumed for the second week yesterday, District Selective Service boards mailed out to 185 earlier registrants the questionnaires on which classifications will be based.

Registering picked up yesterday for the voluniteer registrars, who signed up 643 men born in 1925 at the four city-wide centers. Officials tallied a total of 27,935 registrants since the draft registration started August 30, not including yesterday's registrations.

Most of the questionnaires sent out yesterday went to single non-veterans born in 1922. Today a start will be made on registrants born in 1923.

The questionnaires, containing almost 100 questions, are to be returned within 10 days to the registrants' local boards.

Registration today and Thursday will be for men born in 1926.

During the final week next week, the schedule will be: September 13 and 14, men born in 1928; September 15 and 16, those born in 1929, and September 17 and 18, those born before September 17 and 18, those born before September 19 in the year 1930.

Besides private firms and Government agencies which conduct registration, registration centers are the District Building, Municipal Center, National Guard Armory, American University student center and school of public affairs, all firehouses and police stations in Precincts Nos. 6, 8, 9, 11 and 13.

Georgetown U. Opens Cancer Detection Unit

Georgetown University Hospital here yesterday opened a cancer detection clinic, and the opening found the clinic with a two-month-long waiting list of applicants for examinations.

The new clinic became the fourth and latest of such examination centers operating in private hospitals here.

Like the others, at Garfield, George Washington University and Doctors Hospitals, it is financed in part by the American Cancer Society and operates under the approved plan of the District Medical Society. Donations of $15 are sought from those who can afford to pay for their physical check-ups.

Dr. John C. Sullivan of Georgetown's department of medicine, director of the new clinic, disclosed at yesterday's opening that the clinic facilities are "booked solid" through November 5, but applications for examinations at later dates were being accepted.

The clinic, he said, wil lbe open each Tuesday and Thursday from 3 to 5 p. m., with 10 complete cancer detection examinations scheduled for each afternoon it operates. The examinations are for persons who have no reason to suspect they have cancer but wish the precautionary check-up.

The Georgetown clinic operates under the direction of a committee composed of Drs. C. F. Geschickter, Harold Jeghers and Murray M. Copeland. Dr. Sullivan is aided by a staff comprising other members of the hospital and medical school faculty.

The clinic is located in the outpatient department, second floor, of the hospital at 3800 Reservoir rd., nw. Supplemental funds for staffing and equipping the unit were provided by the District chapter of the American Cancer Society and thriugh a special grant from United States Public Health Service.

D. C. Phone Strike Course Set

Washington installation workers will picket every Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. central office in the city if the CIO Association of Communication Equipment Workers strikes September 17, as scheduled yesterday in Chicago.

The announcement was made by George Lawler, business agent for the Washington division of Local 96, ACEW, which represents about 450 area installation workers.

He reported members "already have voted in favor of a strike—we've been waiting for the national officers to set a date." He also announced that a meeting will be held later this week to assign members to picket duty.

Lawler conceded that effectiveness of an installation workers' walkout would hinge on reaction of other telephone workers here. And spokesman for the Communications Workers of America (Ind.), which represents local operators and plant and maintenance employes, would not commit themselves.

John L. Crull, CWA vice president, said that if the union "is approached by the ACEW, we will give the matter consideration."

Butter Price To Drop Here

A large chain store here will drop prices on best grade butter 1 to 2 cents today.

This local reaction was announced as a 1¼ to 3-cent decrease to 75 cents—low for the year—was reported on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

A spokesman for the chain said that the prices would shift from 85 cents for quartered butter to 83 cents and from 83 cents for solid butter to 82 cents a pound.

This woudl not be low for the year here, he said, citing prices of 81-83 cents last August 28.

A large supermarket said its prices would not be affected for a couple of days yet depending on the fluctuations of the New York exchange. The market quoted current prices of 79 cents for "roll" butter and 3 cents for quartered butter.

A Washington wholesaler declared the New York price would not become effective immediately as far as his business is concerned, because he doesn't adhere strictly to New York fluctuations, getting his supplies from the Middle West.

Row Over Shares Locks Europe Aid

London, Sept. 7 (U.P.)—W. Averell Harriman, Ambassador at Large and general trouble shooter for the Marshall Plan, conferred urgently with high British officials today in an effort to break the deadlock over distribution of American aid funds.

Harriman flew here unexpectedly after a similar hurried trip to Brussels for a talk with Paul-Henri Spaak, Belgian foreign minister and chairman of the council of the Organization for European Economic Cooperation.

Reliable informants said it is possible foreign ministers of Marshall Plan countries will hold an emergency meeting to discuss the political as well as economic aspects of the problem.

The critical situation arose over the OEEC's futile attempts to decide how much each nation will get from the $4,875,000,000 set aside by Congress for European aid through 1949.

The problem has created much hard feelings among OEEC countries. But the toughest phase of the problem is how much Bizonia, the combined Anglo-American zones of Germany, will get.

American representatives of Gen. Lucius D. Clay insist upon more than other countries are willing to allot their former enemy. France, especially, is opposed to granting western Germany what she thinks would be an unwarranted amount.

The United States believes Germany must be the hard core of European recovery. Western Europeans, and especially France, want to be that hard core. There never has been a complete meeting of minds on this issue and it was believed the foreign ministers might have to settle this question before determining economic phases of the problem.

Harriman's quick trips to Brussels and here were at the request of Spaak and British Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Stafford Cripps. The crisis developed when United States representatives of Bizonia refused to accept the 365 million dollars allotted by other Marshall Plan countries. The representatives demanded 100 million dollars more.

OEEC experts, who had been meeting in Paris for a week, finally recessed in despair of solving the problem.

Harriman probably will get a compromise on the specific question of amount of aid for Germany, but the original request has been scaled down to a more workable figure.

Economic Cooperation Administrator Paul Hoffman has the final say as to how much help each European country shall get.

The Foreign Assistance Act of Congress, passed last spring, provides that "the administrator, under the control of the President," shall "review and appraise the requirements of the participating countries for assistance."

The administrator is also required by the act "to formulate programs of United States assistance" and to approve "specific projects which have been submitted to him by the participating countries."

In practice this means that European agreements on how to apportion American aid must go to Hoffman as recommendations for his final action.

Thompson Trophy To the Winner

ANSON L. JOHNSON, 28-year-old pilot on a Miami-New York run for National Air Lines, formally received the Thompson Trophy yesterday in Cleveland. Johnson also pocketed $16,000 for winning the National Air Races, although his winning speed was slower than the record time set last year.

Boos, Cheers For AFL Man In England

Margate, England, Sept. 7 (AP).—Boos and cries of "rubbish," drowned out by cheers, greeted an American Federation of Labor spokesman today when he told the British Trades Union Congress that Communist-controlled labor is trying to sabotage the Marshall Plan.

"No trade union movement ruled by the Communists will do anything else but try to sabotage the ERP (European Recovery Program)," said Edward J. Voltz, fraternal delegate to the congress.

Miss Florence Hancock, chairman of the congress, was among those who applauded.

"If the free trade union organizations of Britain and America cooperate and participate actively in the administration of ERP," Voltz continued, "then economic reconstruction, higher purchasing power and improved living conditions will be assured."

Sir Stafford Cripps, director of Britain's recovery drive, served chilling notice on the delegates that the government opposes efforts to increase wages by cutting into corporation profits.

He said the only way better living conditions could be achieved was through greater individual production by the workers. Even if corporation profits were reduced by one fourth, it would afford an average increase of wages of no more than 8 cents for each $4, he said.

His appeal for a halt in demands for wage increases was met with sharp retorts from shipbuilding and building trade workers.

Civic Federation To Check on Tax On Apartments

The Arlington County Civic Federation wants to find out whether apartment developments are carrying their share of the tax load.

The 50 representatives of affiliated groups attending the season's first fall meeting last night in the Lyon Park Community House also want a study made of the personal property tax situation.

They passed resolutions asking the Arlington County Board to invite the University of Virginia's Bureau of Public Administration to make both surveys and to publish the results.

With a property reassessment expected next year, the federation asked the county board to give widest publicity to the rules governing reassessments and procedure concerning applications for review and appeals, as well as principles followed in drawing up the county's land value map.

The group approved recommendations of its public safety committee for a central fire alarm headquarters with switchboard and for more adequate training facilities and courses for fire fighters. The group also urged hook and ladder companies in North and South Arlington and a fire company near Four Mile Run and Patrick Henry drives.

Cut In Peru's Imports Gets Fund Approval

The World Monetary Fund announced last night it has approved new action by the government of Peru to limit imports into that country "because of domestic inflation."

Also, the fund said it had approved other actions by Peru to give its exporters a higher return, "thus encouraging an expansion of exports" despite rising domestic costs.

The measures were put into effect through a decree scheduled to be issued in Lima yesterday, the fund said.

The measures to limit imports, the fund said, included a surcharge of imports of nonessential and luxury goods to reduce demand in Peru for foreign exchange.

The surcharges also are intended to raise revenue for use in repaying the Peruvian government's debt to its central bank and "to avoid the necessity for inflationary borrowing."

The fund said these steps "can be effective only if they are accompanied by determined efforts on the part of the government of Peru to halt inflation, to secure additional revenue from sources other than exchange taxes, and to limit the expansion of bank credit."

The fund also said the Peruvian government expected the new action to "give it time to take the further steps necessary to stabilize the financial situation" and to bring Peru's international payments into balance.

Dutch Receive 16 Millions in ECA Grants

The Economic Cooperation Administration yesterday approved use of $12,250,000 in recovery funds to buy Japanese cotton fabrics for shipment to the Netherlands East Indies. It is the first Marshall Plan shipment to originate in Japan.

The Netherlands received $16,340,000, more than half the total of recovery goods approved for American financing yesterday. All the shipments will go to the East Indies.

They include used sugar sacks from Cuba, trucks, truck parts and internal combustion engines.

Other authorizations included:

Bi-zone Germany, $6,434,670, including copper from the United States, Belgian tin and other metals, wool rags and skins.

Denmark, $892,124, including farm wagons and various items of industrial machinery.

France, $7,052,765, including shelled peanuts from the United States; machine tool parts, special industrial machinery, antenna towers, industrial equipment and ocean freight costs.

Greece, $1,980,000 worth of evaporated milk from this country.

Italy, $187,205, including tallow and freight costs.

School Repair Plan Asked

On recommendation of Falls Church Building Inspector N. G. Daavid, the Fairfax County school board yesterday asked its architect to draw up specifications for four buttresses to support a cracked wall at the Madison School in Falls Church.

The buttresses, concrete reinforced with steel, will support the east outer wall of the auditorium.

Motorist Kills Infant With Mother Near

arrested Robinson in a nearby apartment.

Robinson was released in the custody of Eddie Eynon, secretary of the ball club.

The accident occurred shortly before 2 p. m., when Mrs. Clement, 28, and a neighbor, Mrs. Rena Fazick, paused in front of the Belmont st. address after returning with clothing from a nearby laundry.

While the infant played on the sidewalk with Mrs. Fazick's child, Barbara Jean, Mrs. Clement took her eyes off her to pick up a large worm that she was afraid the children might notice.

"Just as I raised up," Mrs. Clement said, "Rena yelled, 'Get Jeanette—get the baby!' "

The mother rushed to the child, who was motionless in the street beside a parked car. "I didn't realize she'd been hit until I picked her up," Mrs. Clement related. "Then it was too late."

The child, rushed to Children's Hospital, was pronounced dead at 2:05 p. m. by Dr. Archibald McPherson.

Jeanette's father, David L. Clement, a bartender at the Turf and Grid Club, 3317 14th st. nw., was asleep in their second floor apartment at the time of the accident.

Police are searching for a black sedan with District tags J-5?99. The second figure was not obtained. Police began their search on basis of information furnished by Miss Lucy J. Hunt, 1330 Belmont st. nw., whose car was directly behind the hit-and-run vehicle when the accident occurred.

Miss Hunt, a teacher at Hine Junior High School, told police she was driving west on Belmont from 13th st. immediately behind the car she believes struck the Clement infant.

Both cars were "crawling," she said, apparently looking for a parking place. No other traffic was on the street.

She noticed the baby in the street after the accident, police were told as her auto came abreast. The other car proceeded slowly down the street.

Miss Hunt, who stopped her car, opened the door as Mrs. Clement picked the child up and transported them to the hospital.

The driver of the striking car, meanwhile, had turned around in an alley and met Miss Hunt as he drove east on Belmont st. "I looked right in his face," Miss Hunt said, 'and I waved, trying to get his attention." He didn't see her waving, she said, and kept going.

Robinson last night confirmed Miss Hunt's story, saying he was unaware he had hit the child.

The infant's death raised the toll of District children killed this year in traffic accidents to nine. Ten children died in traffic accidents here in 1947.

Hurt in Other Accidents

Ten persons were injured in other Greater Washington traffic accidents yesterday.

Four suffered injuries in a two-car collision on wet pavement south of Rockville on Route 240, near Rock Crest.

They were Thomas Schumacher, 26, of 1814 28th st. se., a mechanic, who had a severe scalp laceration and head and chest injuries; his brother, Carl, 15, also of the 28th st. address, brush burns, and Roy Seabolt, 30, Gaithersburg tree surgeon, who suffered a possible fractured neck and face cuts. All were reported in good condition at Suburban Hospital.

A passenger in Seabolt's car, Mrs. Elizabeth Reed, 21 of Gaithersburg, suffered minor cuts and was admitted to the hospital for observation.

Pedestrian Struck

A pedestrian, identified as Harry Hill, 62, of 1836 15th st. nw., suffered a possible skull fracture, a fractured left collarbone and scalp lacerations when struck by a car as he crossed 14th st. at U st. nw. at 8:30 p. m., police reported.

His condition was reported as undetermined at Freedmen's Hospital, where he was taken after being hit by a car which police said was driven by William W. Johnson, 42, of 1457 Fairmont st. nw. Johnson was identified as a meat cutter at the Food Fair in Buckingham, Va.

Police said Hill crossed 14th st. against a traffic signal and outside of a crosswalk.

Another Truck-Car Collision

In another accident yesterday, Harry J. Green, 80, of 7525 Alaska ave. nw., was treated at Emergency Hospital for shock and released after the auto in which he was a passenger was struck by a truck at 12:05 p. m. at Georgia ave. and Piney Branch rd. nw.

Operator of the truck was listed by police as Henry S. Greene, 37, No. 6 I st. nw. The car was driven by William J. White, 37, 3933 N. 4th st., Arlington.

Another truck-car collision sent two passengers in the auto to Suburban Hospital for treatment of minor injuries. They were: Elmer Bowe, 43, 1540 2nd st. sw., and Lee Penleton, 64, 433 3d st. ne. Both were released after treatment.

The accident occurred at 9:30 a. m. at Wisconsin ave. and Fessenden st. nw., when the truck, driven by George W. Chinault, 25, of Boulevard Heights, Md., collided with a car driven by Chester L. Rees, 56, of Vienna, Va.

Suspect Charged In Rape Case

Man Charged With Raping Policeman's Wife

the woman. He told them, they said, that he attended a burlesque show at the Gayety Theater Monday night, several hours before the rape.

He related, according to police, that he saw three girls on the corner of 8th st and Virgina ave. sw., as he drove by. He said he stopped and tried to get them to join him in his car, police said, but was rebuffed.

When the three girls got on a bus, police quoted Perrell, he followed the bus, and when one woman got off he followed her.

This woman got off the bus at Nichols ave. and Waclark pla se., two blocks from her home.

A car drove up slowly and the man driving it asked:

"Want a lift, baby?"

The woman ignored his question and started to walk faster. The man jumped from the car and seized her. When she struggled he struck her on the jaw with his fist and placed a hand over her mouth to stifle her screams.

After he had pushed her into the car, she tried to escape while he ran around the car to the driver's seat but she couldn't open the door. She reached over and blew the horn. The man struck her again with his fist.

"If you do that again, I'll kill you," he threatened.

Police said the man then drove about a mile, to a secluded spot at Nichols ave. and Joliet st. se., where he raped his victim in the front seat of the car.

The man then drove back to Nichols ave. and Waclark pl. se., near the woman's home, and ordered her to get out.

"I don't know my way around here very well," he told her, "so you'll have to get out here."

The woman took careful note of the license tag numerals as her attacker drove off, and she repeated them to herself as she ran to her home.

She immediately called park police. A lookout was flashed for the rapist and the woman's husband, who was on duty, was sent to her.

When the husband arrived home, he found his wife's mouth cut and bleeding and her face bruised. He took her to Gallinger for treatment. She was later returned home and placed under the care of a private physician.

Police learned that the rapist had followed the bus on which the woman rode home.

Herman A. Lemon, 26, of 403 B st. se., Capital Transit Co. bus driver, told police he first observed the car following the bus at Good Hope rd. se. Whenever the bus stopped, the car did, too, he said.

Lemon said he asked the four women passengers on the bus if it was anyone they knew. None of them knew the driver, Lemon said.

Army Race Policy Attacked in Report

Immediate establishment of experimental mixed racial units in the Army and the eventual abolition of segregation throughout the armed forces is recommended in a report made public by Defense Secretary James Forrestal yesterday.

The report was submitted by 16 prominent Negro leaders who attended a National Defense Conference on Negro Affairs called by Forrestal last spring. They present a seven-point program to obtain more equal treatment of uniformed members of their race.

Members of the conference reiterated prior statements that they would not serve as advisers to the Secretary of Defense on Negro matters as long as Army Secretary Kenneth Royall and ranking generals hold their present views on segregation.

The report was sharply critical of the Army stand and generally praiseworthy of the attitude of the Navy and Air Force in working toward an end to segregation and equality of all races.

Present Policy Hit

"The Army's present policy, to which it stubbornly adheres, seems to be a grudging adjustment of the original mobilization plans drawn up well in advance of World War II, which contemplated the use of Negroes under the most limited conditions imaginable," states the report.

"These plans were based upon a mistaken conception held by Army staff leaders, both of the intrinsic ability of Negro troops and of their actual record in World War I. That concept was not arrived at accidentally.

"The conferees are agreed that it was the result of deliberate distortions of history, propagated by racially prejudiced individuals, and calculated to present to the public, and to Army leadership as well, a false notion regarding the ability, courage and adaptability of Negro military personnel."

Naval Chiefs Praised

While urging several changes in the Navy's use of Negro personnel, the report generally praises the attitude of Naval chiefs as "significant and heartening."

The report also lauds the Air Force for breaking away "from traditional Army policy." They quote Assistant Air Force Secretary Eugene Zuckert as stating that Air Force leaders accept as an ultimate policy objective the elimination of segregation.

Zuckert, it was said, declared the USAF favors the unrestricted use of Negroes "in free competition for any duty within the Air Force for which they may qualify." He added, it was stated, that "the limit of attaining this end will depend, naturally, upon the degree to which that attainment affects the effective operation of the Air Forces."

Here are the seven specific recommendations of the conference:

1. The so-called Gillem Board report, fixing Army policy on the use of Negro manpower in the postwar Army, should be restudied by the Office of Defense.

2. Establishment of a non-segregated division or other racially-mixed units "as laboratory projects designed to make eventual elimination of segregation thoroughly efficient." The group quoted Army spokesmen as opposing such experiments now.

3. Alteration to Army policy toward segregation in the National Guard, so as to give "hearty and unqualified approval" instead of opposition to States which propose mixed Guard units.

4. Abolition of racial quotas in Army enlistments—now limiting Negroes to 10 per cent of total strength.

5. Elimination of the stewards' branch of the Navy "as a separate division of labor in the service restricted to Negroes, Filipinos and other 'colored' minorities." Abolition of discrimination in rates and pay between members of the stewards branch and the rest of the service, also is urged.

6. Increase the small number of Negro naval officers now in service—four—by appointing reservists now in inactive service as officers of the Regular Navy.

7. Raise the present low percentage of Negroes in Navy enlisted ranks—5½ per cent—by special recruiting drives in high schools and colleges to sell young Negroes on a naval career. Of the 17,740 Negroes now in the Navy, only 4838 or one-third are in the unsegregated general service. The rest are in the stewards and commissary branches, it was said.

Army Record Better

The report conceded that in numbers, promotions and assignments the Army record on use of Negroes is better than the other services. There were 8000 Negro officers during the war and about 1000 in uniform at present. Fifty of the latter are Regular Army officers. Twenty-five per cent of Negro soldiers are in combat forces, compared with 27 per cent of white soldiers, it was said.

There are 26,258 Negroes in the Air Force, the report stated, slightly less than 10 per cent of strength.

Attacking the Army attitude toward segregation, the report said it was based on an "attitude" rather than "acquired experience." By refusing to even try out experimental units of mixed races, it was said, the Army forces on Negroes "a pattern of racial segregation which legally prevails in a minority of the States of the Union."

"The opinion of Negro Americans is united in the belief that racial segregation is especially intolerable when imposed by the Federal Government in any area of citizenship activity. It is even more outrageous when it is carried out in the armed forces, where a citizen stands ready to die, if necessary, for the protection of his country.

"For this reason, the conferees were deeply disappointed, and indeed offended, by the general attitude assumed by some of the spokesmen for the armed forces, notably Secretary of Army Royall."

Praising President Truman's executive order setting up a committee on equality of treatment and opportunity in the armed services, the Negro leaders asked that their report be submitted to that committee when its members are named.

The report was sent to Forrestal by Lester B. Granger, executive secretary of the National Urban League.

The Negro leaders who took part in the conference and joined in the report were: Dr. Sadie T. M. Alexander, Philadelphia; Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, president, National Council of Negro Women, Inc., Washington; Dr. John W. Davis, president, West Virginia State College Institute; Truman K. Gibson, Chicago attorney.

Rev Bishop J. W. Gregg, Kansas City; Charles Houston, Washington attorney; Rev. John H. Johnson, New York City; Dr. Mordecai Johnson, president, Howard University.

P. B. Young, jr., Norfolk, Va., Journal and Guide; Ira F. Lewis, president Pittsburgh Courier; Dr. Benjamin E. Mays, president Morehouse College, Atlanta; Loren Miller, Los Angeles attorney.

Hopson E. Reynolds, Order of Elks, Philadelphia; Dr. Channing H. Tobias, director, Phelps-Stokes Foundation, New York City; Williard Townsend, president, United Transport Service Employes, Chicago, Ill., and Walter White, executive secretary, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Prince Georges Sets Hearings on Public Improvements Districts

Public hearings for two special improvement districts in Prince Georges County, Md., were set yesterday by the Prince Georges County Comissioners for October 5.

A hearing on the petition of citizens of Michigan Park Hills special improvement district No. 34 asking permission for paving, gutters and sidewalk construction on 15th ave. between Jefferson and Kennedy sts., will be held at 10:30 a. m.

A petition by citizens of Newton Village, near Bladensburg, asking creation of a special improvement district for that area will be heard at 11 a. m.

At the same time, the commissioners authorized Arthur W. Tayman county engineer, to prepare specifications and advertise for bids for improvement of 55th pl. between Emerson st. and the end of the District for special improvement district No. 2, Rogers Heights.

The commissioners issued a permit to county police for operation of a pistol range on the property of George Wilson, jr., next to the former right of way of the Chesapeake Beach Railway at Upper Marlboro. Carnival permits were issued to Boulevard Heights Volunteer Fire Department for September 13 to 17 in the 5000 block of Marlboro Pike and to Branchville VFD for this week ending Saturday at Branchville.

The commissioners issued a statement declaring that recent failure to obtain bids on metropolitan district general improvement bonds was not a reflection upon the credit of the county.

The bonds actually were sold at private sale without difficulty after the failure to receive bids, the commissioners pointed out. The bonds were for parks and improvements in the metropolitan district and not general county bonds, they said, and this type of bond often is harder to sell than those which have the faith and credit of the entire county behind them.

"At no time was the issue without prospective purchasers," the commissioners stated.

Bank Bandits Get $8000

Independence, Va., Sept. 7 (AP)—Three armed men robbed the Farmer's Bank at nearby Elk Creek shortly before 3 p. m. (EST) today, escaping with between $8000 and $9000. The men tied and gagged the assistant cashier, Cleve Rhudy, and his son, Grover.

Secret Quiz Called For Spy Witnesses

By the United Press

The House Un-Amercina Activities Committee subpenaed about two dozen witnesses yesterday for questioning at secret espionage hearings to be held daily the rest of this week.

Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) refused to identify the witnesses, and hinted the committee would hear them in a secluded place outside the Capitol to evade reporters.

He said the executive sessions were scheduled (1) to clear up loose ends of testimony at previous public hearings, and (2) to prepare for the new series of public hearings to begin September 15.

Past hearings have been concerned with charges that two Soviet spy rings operated within the Government during the war, and with testimony on an alleged prewar Communist underground network in the Government.

Main feature of the new hearings will be investigation of a third alleged Russian spy ring which reportedly concentrated on trying to get wartime atomic secrets.

Representative John McDowell (R., Pa.), a committee member, disclosed that Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, wartime head of the Army's atom bomb project, will be a key witness when public hearings are resumed.

McDowell said the hearings will bring out the story of a Russian-born French citizen, who apparently tried to beat the U. S. Government to the punch in buying up uranium-bearing lands in the west during the War. McDowell said the man, now living in Paris, bought rights to land principally in Colorado, adjacent to property which the Government planned to mine for atomic ores.

"Not Trying to Be Coy"

Thomas announced the committee's plans after a private session yesterday. He said no witnesses were present at the meeting.

"We are not trying to be coy," he said in explaining the unusual secrecy imposed in connection with this week's hearings. "But for obvious reasons, we cannot give out the names (of the witnesses to be questioned in private)."

He said "between 20 and 25" persons would be subpenaed.

Thomas said the committee might give out the names of some of the witnesses after they are heard.

Among the loose ends which the committee hopes to clean up from its previous hearings is the conflict between sworn testimony of Alger Hiss and Whittaker Chambers.

More on Hiss, Chambers

Chambers, a former Communist, who is now an editor of Time magazine, testified that Hiss, a former State Department official, now head of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, was a prewar Communist underground member. Hiss has contradicted Chambers' story.

Other "old business" on the committee agenda includes the often-postponed public hearings on the case of Dr. E. U. Condon, head of the National Bureau of Standards.

The committee last spring accused Dr. Condon of being "one of the weakest links in our atomic security." Condon denied the charge and demanded public hearings. Later he was given a clean bill of health by the Commerce Department and Atomic Energy Commission loyalty boards.

The committee also may get around to renewing its communism-in-Hollywood inquiry of last October, and look into Communist attempts to infiltrate Negro organizations.

At Rome Parley

U. S. to Hit 'Morality' Proposals

Rome, Sept. 7 (AP).—The United States will oppose draft resolutions on "international morality" to be debated tomorrow by the 37th conference of the Interparliamentary Union meeting, it was learned today.

The proposal contains 15 points covering such controversial subjects as atomic weapons, care of refugees, control of propaganda and "war mongering" and the use of armed forces out of their home country.

Senator Carl A. Hatch (D., N. M.) will head the U. S. effort to modify the resolutions.

"We found at least 25 places in the draft we could not accept," Hatch declared. "The main trouble is vagueness. The draft says states must bear within the limits of their means the burden of harboring refugees. That might mean we would have to take all of them, as our means are greatest."

Another point bothering Hatch was the decalartion that "no state may use its armed forces on the territory of another independent state except for military action authorized by the terms of the United Nations Charter."

"If we voted for that," Hatch said, "we would have to get our Flying Fortresses out of England tomorrow."

The resolutions were prepared by the juridical committee of the Union, which did not have a United States member sitting. Hatch will henceforth serve on the committee.

There is strong opposition in the American group to the resolution on propaganda. It declares "all governments should oppose propaganda and incitement (in favor of war) on their national territories" by all legal means.

"That is censorship," Hatch said.

Senator Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.), a delegate, said that "in my opinion, we ought to look forward to closer cooperation with the Spanish government."

With Senator William J. Fulbright (D., Ark.), Lucas is planning a post-conference trip to Palestine, Yugoslavia, Trieste and the Soviet and Western zones of Germany.

Lucas said he thinks European countries, to make ERP work, should begin to unite.

"I am altogether for European western unity," he said. "One of the biggest results would be a common currency. Unless the Western democracies get on their economic feet to the extent they can sustain themselves, they will find it very difficult to get more aid from the United States Congress after the four years of ERP."

Fulbright said he may not be able to support the European Recovery Program in the next session of Congress unless "there are concrete results."

"It seems to me that the time has come when it is politically feasible to begin the process of uniting Europe," he said. "The only justification for American aid to Europe is that it result in some unity, making for a body that could defend and support itself.

"I am going to find it very hard, personally, to support ERP in the next session of Congress unless there are concrete results."

Britain Gets Soviet Order Refused by U. S.

Southport, England, Sept. 7 (AP).—City Councillor W. H. Russell said tonight a British firm has received an order from Russia for 12 million pounds (48 million dollars) worth of machine tools.

Russell told the council "the only other place the Russians could purchase machine tools was from America, but I understand America turned down the order."

Man Cleared In Slaying

A coroner's jury yesterday cleared Clarence Motgomery, 40, of 1707 Corcoran st. nw., of criminal responsibility in the iron-pipe slaying of Henry Horn, 54, of 1625 Corcoran st. nw., on Saturday.

The jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide after hearing testimony that Montgomery hit Horn with an iron pipe in self-defense.

Montgomery said he was sitting on the steps of his house Saturday afternoon when Horn walked by and slashed him three times with a knife. Montgomery said he rushed into his basement and returned with an iron pipe, with which he bashed Horn on the head, as Horn attempted another attack.

The jury was told Horn threatened to kill Montgomery Friday night over a dispute as to who was to collect junk at an automobile dealer's shop where both worked.

Quirino May Sail to View Volcano Havoc

Manila, Sept. 7 (U.P.).—President Elpidio Quirino may sail to Camiguin Island in the Mindanao Sea to observe for himself the havoc wrought by the new eruption of Mount Hibokhibok volcano, it was announced today.

Dr. Arcuro Alcaraz, Philippine government volcanologist, said the eruption had lessened in intensity, but the mountain is still shooting dense gray smoke 25,000 feet into the air, spewing volcanic rock and red hot boulders. The eruption began September 1.

The weather observer in Surigao Province on eastern Mindanao Island reported a strong quake of six seconds' duration there Monday. This is the area rocked seven days ago when Mount Hibokhibok blew a new crater after lying dormant for 77 years. More than two thirds of Camiguin's inhabitants have been taken off the island, but reports indicated the rest probably will remain. Their homes are said to be in no danger since the lava is flowing in one general direction—north. Both craters are on the side of the mountain.

Gov. Paciencio Ysalina has assured the residents of the western and southern parts of the 92-square-mile area of "the safety of their areas and not to be alarmed," Alcaraz reported.

10 of 11 Safes Defy Masonic Temple Yeggs

Baltimore, Sept. 7 (AP).—Burglars broke into the Scottish Rite Temple last night and got away with lodge relics that included jewels valued at $1900.

They battered away at 11 small safes, but succeeded in opening only one. There was no more than $35 cash in all of them.

'Defend' Rhine

Allies Stage Maneuvers In Germany

Grafenwoehr, Germany, Sept. 7 (AP).—The American crack First Infantry Division and a British paratroop battalion joined in maneuvers today to prevent a mythical enemy from sweeping west to the Rhine.

The "aggressor" force was the United States Constabulary—a highly trained unit that patrols the autobahns anad frontiers in the American zone of German.

The entire force in the mock combat consists of about 20,000 Americans and 1000 British.

The maneuvers, the American Army's largest in Germang since the end of the war, are under the direction of Lieut. Gen. Clarence Huebner, commander of the American ground forces in Germany.

Grafenwoehr is situated in rugged country between Nuernberg and the Czechoslovak border.

The "aggressors," including a Negero battalion and supported by about 24 fighter bombers and some tanks, will have two days to determine whether they can "break through" the defensive line.

Opening Gun

President Truman launched his campaign in Michigan with some fast punches at the Eightieth Congress but without rising above the level of small politics. After his gesture of friendship to Republican Senator Vandenberg, whom he commended for his "intellectual honesty," the President pitched his appeal almost entirely upon a class-against-class basis. His opponents, he said, are following a "boom and bust" policy. In indicting the Republicans in control of the last Congress, he said they "voted themselves a cut in taxes and you a cut in freedom." No where in his speeches did he seem to grapple in a realistic way with the great problems of our time.

In Grand Rapids the President denounced the Taft-Hartley Act as "a dangerous weapon in the hands of the corporations." That seems to us a gratuitous insult to the National Labor Relations Board which administers the act. This newspaper has been critical of many weaknesses in the controversial labor statute turned out by the Eightieth Congress. But the American people, it seems to us, are more interested in hearing reasonable suggestions for its improvement than the type of extravagant smearing in which the President indulged.

The last Congress gave the President plenty of ammunition and he is wholly justified in making use of it for partisan purposes. The failure of Congress to pass any comprehensive housing legislation leaves it especially vulnerable to attack. But when the President tells an intelligent audience of American citizens that "lobbies . . . came to Washington and got what they wanted but the people didn't get anything" he ought to realize that his overstatement reflects upon both his sincerity and his judgment. There are many indications that the rank and file of American citizens, being vitally interested in peace, accept the European recovery program and the strengthening of our armed forces—the issues with which the last Congress was primarily concerned—as being policies for the protection of their interests. Certainly the President, who sponsored these policies, ought not to be writing them off as of no consequence to the people. The effect is to encourage voters to close their eyes to world realities and merely vote for a thicker spread of butter on their bread.

It is natural, of course, for Mr. Truman to appeal to organized labor. That is where his chief strength lies. But Mr. Truman is President of the United States as well as a candidate for that office. We find it difficult to believe that he can enhance his standing with the voters as a whole by holding out a political grab bag to one group.

Self-Incrimination

Morris Ernst has directed the attention of the Committee on Un-American Activities to a New York statute forbidding State employes to duck questions involving their jobs on grounds of self-incrimination when testifying before a grand jury or a legislative committee. Apparently it is Mr. Ernst's thought that a similar Federal statute might be useful in compelling some witnesses to testify in the present investigation of Communist activities. The present technique of numerous witnesses, many of them former Government workers, is to refuse to answer any questions on the ground that they might incriminate themselves.

Mr. Ernst's suggestion seems to us to be entirely reasonable. No Federal employe who refuses to say under oath whether he is a Communist on the ground of self-incrimination should be allowed to hold his job. As we understand the Fifth Amendment, such an employe could be reasonably deprived of his job, but not of his right to refrain from giving testimony against himself. Representative Nixon's hint, as reported by the United Press, that a Federal law similar to the New York statute be applied to all persons, whether or not they are Government employes, appears, therefore, to fly directly in the face of the Constitution.

Under the Fifth Amendment no person may be "compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself." Back in 1857 Congress decided that it was so important to get testimony from reluctant witnesses that it passed a law giving them immunity from prosecution in connection with any acts as to which they testified before an investigating committee. Some criminals thus found confession before a committee of Congress an easy way of securing immunity from punishment. Congress changed the law a few years later to require that witnesses must give testimony before its committees of inquiry, even though it might be incriminating, with the proviso that this testimony could not be used against them in any subsequent prosecution. But the courts have held that a person need not answer any question if the answer might lead to the discovery of evidence against him.

Apparently Congress could compel the silent alleged Communists to testify, but only by guaranteeing them absolute immunity from prosecution for any act thus disclosed. If Congress is unwilling to go that far, it looks as if the Thomas committee will have to be content with the implications that the public readily draws from the refusal of a witness to testify on this subject.

French Vacuum

The spectacle of an unyielding deadlock in France is demoralizing to the free world as well as France and is bound to be giving aid and comfort to the Soviet by way of compensation for the unrest behind the iron curtain. Robert Schuman is a man of fortitude and pertinacity. No man is held in higher regard in the French Assembly. But even his prestige, even his dogged perseverance, cannot avail to reestablish government in France. The Socialists had been paralyzed into noncooperation by their fears of the threats coming from the industrial workers. Mr. Schuman did not rely only on his personality to persuade Socialist collaboration. He revamped the Reynaud economic program to such an extent that the author of it doubtless must have dubbed the substitute a sort of planned inflation. Wages were to be boosted to offset the increase in food prices consequent upon the encouragement to agriculture as "France's first industry." Even this bid, which brought the Socialists into Mr. Schuman's three-day cabinet, has failed to hold the Assembly's confidence in the Schuman administration.

President Auriol may find somebody else to tackle the thankless task of trying to form a government. But there are few optimists left. The Fourth Republic, with the absurd constitution that the Communists foisted upon France, is trembling in the balance. Viewed as a problem in itself, the Fourth Republic invites liquidation, and most people, we fancy, would say good riddance. But the perils of courting change in these trying days are making many Frenchmen hesitate. Yet, if the politicians are indeed reduced to helplessness, there is no choice other than to seek dissolution. Even this way out, however, is blocked by the legalism of the constitution. The Assembly is elected for a fixed period of five years, but it can (though some jurists would not agree) change the electoral law by simple majority, and this would enable it to quit at any time and go to the people. Certainly the government has ceased to be representative. The Communists and the Gaullists, who seem to have brought down the government, share the power, but neither are in the government; and with the inability of government to function, the question in France seems to have become "under which King, Bezonian?"

Employment Peril

In telegrams to President Truman and Governor Dewey, eight distinguished atomic scientists have called attention to an exceedingly grave and difficult problem in Federal personnel policy. Through "irresponsible smears," the scientists protest, the House Committee on Un-American Activities "has created a situation within which it is becoming increasingly difficult for scientists and engineers to function." In the judgment of the scientists, this situation presents "an imminent threat to our national security and entire governmental atomic research program." They are quite right, of course. And the situation is by no means restricted to scientists and engineers. It applies with equal force to Federal employes and job applicants in other fields.

The problem is this: how to take adequate precautions against the employment of untrustworthy or disloyal persons without so recklessly jeopardizing the reputations of workers or applicants as to make a job in the Government seem intolerably hazardous to men of independent outlook. Careful screening is indisputably necessary. But consider what may happen under present procedure.

A college professor, eminent in his field, is asked by a Government administrator to come to Washington and work on some phase of atomic energy for which his experience makes him peculiarly qualified. He agrees to do this provided he can get a leave of absence from his college. With this secured, he rents his house, bids his friends farewell, hurries to the Capital and begins work on an emergency appointment. Meanwhile, the FBI starts its investigation, inquiring about his character among his friends and colleagues. The FBI discovers and dutifully includes in its report what the professor has had no disposition to conceal, that he once belonged to the American Civil Liberties Union or to some other organization deemed subversive by some members of the Un-American Activities Committee. Perhaps he once contributed to the cause of the Loyalists in Spain and even, in a public address, disparaged the Un-American Activities Committee itself.

Now, although the FBI has also reported that the professor pays his bills promptly, worked indefatigably as an air raid warden for civilian defense during the war and is considered thoroughly loyal by his neighbors and college associates, the administrator who hired him feels uneasy; he wants no trouble with a congressional committee. So perhaps he tells the college professor to go back to his college and explain, if he can, why he no longer wants his leave of absence. Perhaps the administrator, being a man of courage, continues the professor on the job only to find subsequently that the Un-American Activities Committee has publicly denounced his new employe as a weak link in the Nation's security chain. In either event, the professor has paid for his brief tenure as a Government official with the loss of his good name.

This situation would be serious enough if its effect were only to injure the individuals concerned. But the effect is also to injure the Government by depriving it of a chance to hire able and honorable men unwilling to run this sort of risk. Security entails much more than the prevention of espionage or subversion, important though this aspect of it unquestionably is. It entails also staffing the Government with the best qualified employes available so that its work can be done efficiently and intelligently. The atomic scientists are quite right in considering this especially vital in respect of atomic research and in pointing to the disastrous consequences of careless character assassination in that sphere. But the plain fact is that every sphere of governmental activity is involved in some degree.

Desperation In Berlin

The outrages committed in and around the Berlin City Hall Monday seem to demonstrate Soviet desperation. First, a mob of German Communists broke into the building, manhandled the plainclothes police of the western sectors who were on guard, forced the Berlin Assembly to cancel its meeting for the fourth time, and took possession of the chamber. Second, Soviet military officers, accompanied by armed soldiers, entered and asked the American, British, and French liaison officers to leave the premises. Third, when the liaison officers refused, Soviet troops surrounded the City Hall while German police of the Russian zone under the direction of Soviet officers scoured the building, invading the American liaison offices by force and "capturing" 19 members of the western zone police.

All the happenings were part and parcel of the same program of intimidation. And to call them outrages is to describe them by a relatively mild word. Actually the whole affair was a deliberate invitation to the three western authorities in Berlin to start shooting if they want to maintain their self-respect. That there was no bloodshed may be attributed to the good sense of the western officers as well as their sense of self-preservation. Under the circumstances, and perhaps fortunately, they could do nothing but enter ineffectual protests. A repetition of the situation, or an intensification of Soviet highhandedness in the tense Berlin atmosphere, may very easily have far worse consequences.

The armory of Soviet diplomacy allows for these short-of-war tactics. If they led to bloodshed and did not succeed in pushing the westerners out of Berlin, they could always be disavowed, and the perpetrators liquidated. The trouble is that if shooting starts, such control is virtually impossible in the western world. This is the hazard in Berlin. The provocations to which our soldiers are being subjected are full of dynamite, and the American people are greatly in the debt of the men in uniform who are putting up with affronts in the interest of a peaceful settlement based upon treaty respect.

Even if the situation changes abruptly for the better, however, the question arises whether the western powers can expect any agreement on paper to be effective. The ambassadors in Moscow and the military governors in Berlin are attempting to achieve a solution of the Berlin crisis and perhaps of the entire German question. But no compromise settlement can last in the face of renewed Soviet actions such as those of Monday. What is needed is a review of the whole policy as soon as western rights have been recognized and the surface blockade lifted. It is evident, meantime, that though the Russians were playing from strength in closing the corridor to Berlin, in carrying out the city hall invasion they were playing from weakness—in the sense that the Russians seem to have little support from the populace of Berlin. The action, as well, seems to betray a desperation over the firmness and patience and lack of provocation with which the westerners are pursuing the cold war over Berlin.

Polish Straw

The wide-open split among Poland's Communists, following on the heels of the break with Tito, shows that Moscow's grip on Communist policy in the satellite nations is proving too tight for comfort. Local Communists, seeking to apply party doctrine in terms of their own national situations rather than in those of Russia's exclusive interests, are becoming restive. They want more autonomy in party matters, a return, that is to say, to original Communist doctrine.

It begins to look as though the Cominform is already in deep water as a result of Muscovite arbitrariness. And the Kremlin knows it. That is the reason for the growth of the suspicion that the architect of the Cominform, the late Andrei Zhdanov, did not die the natural death ascribed in the medical report, but the kind of death reserved for failures in the Soviet system. We said the other day that Zhdanov's known medical history and condition made the official account of his end ring true. We have no proof to the contrary now. But the circumstances surrounding his demise recall those attending the death of the architect of the early Five Year Plans, Sergei Ordzhonikidze, in 1937. He also died a "natural" death—according to the official reports. But Victor Kravchenko, who was one of Ordzhonikidze's subordinates, says in his I Chose Freedom that even then members of the party were skeptical. They doubted whether any Soviet bigwig died a natural death!

Ukraine Separatists

I wish to make some observations regarding Mr. Thomas K. Ford's article, "Exiles Hear No Whispers of Soviet Underground," published in the editorial section of August 29.

Only last month Mr. Kerensky stated in his article, published in the American magazine, that such movements are active in Latvia, Estonia, Lithuania and the Ukraine, and that a "Ukrainian insurgent army of about 200,000 men," operating from its base in the Carpathian Mountains, "constantly wages guerilla warfare on units of the Red army." Now he changes his front and tells Mr. Ford that ". . . there is nothing of th. kind. I wish there were."

It seems that Mr. Kerensky had reconsidered his previous statement and decided it would be better, for his cause, to retract it, even at the risk of inconsistency, rather than tell an objective truth. Why?

Could it be that Mr. Kerensky's inconsistency has a close relation to the fact that the revolutionary groups in USSR—the Estonians, Letts, Lithuanians, Ukrainians—are fighting not only against their present Communist regime, but also for the national liberation?

For example: "pressed for details," these Russian exiles reluctantly admit there exists a Ukrainian movement, but strongly imply that it does not merit a recognition as an anti-Soviet resistance group. Why? Because it is "separatist," "motivated by . . . nationalism rather than anti-communism."

What is wrong with that? Objectively speaking, nothing. It still is an anti-Soviet resistance force. But it does not harmonize with Mr. Kerensky's plan for future Russia.

"Future Russia"—says he—"will be a free federated state." Now, the "separatist" Ukrainian movement, as it is known, strives for the creation of a Ukrainian state, independent of Russia. That is unacceptable to any Russian leader, Red or white. Were that Ukrainian movement "federalist" instead of "nationalist" and "separatist" in nature, it unquestionably would obtain the blessing of Mr. Kerensky and his compatriots. They would then consent to call it an "anti-Soviet resistance movement."

One more point of considerable importance should be touched upon in connection with the Ukrainians. Mr. Ford, no doubt under the inspiration of his Russian informers, relates that the Ukrainian separatist movement had in the past been supported by various foreign powers—Austria-Hungary, Masaryk of Czechoslovakia (of all people!), Nazis, as well as the Ukrainians in the U.S.A. and Canada. But now that all those foreign sponsors have been removed from the scene by history and the American Ukrainians have no means of penetrating the iron curtain, an interesting question arises,—who subsidizes the Ukrainian movement in USSR today? Or can it exist by itself?

Labor And Inflation

Every so often Donald Montgomery, formerly of Consumers' Counsel, and well known as a rationalist of bizarre and ethereal economic views, puts on his record and plays it about how increases in wages do not affect prices. (Letter published August 28.)

Even if Mr. Montgomery's untenable economic views were not a matter of record, his association with Walter Reuther would make him suspect when it comes to arguments of this nature. It was Mr. Reuther who, attempting to show that increased wages would not affect prices, made some intemperate and indefensible statements during the heat of his campaign, and later referred to them as window dressing and arguments meant to influence public opinion.

Recently Mr. Montgomery endeavored to show that the increase in the retail prices of automobiles was much greater than the increase in wages into which the manufacturers were coerced by show of force on the part of Mr. Reuther. He is too conversant with the processes of industry to believe any such claims himself. Even though wage increases were less than the increase in price, he knows very well that wages are only a part of the increased costs of operation.

Insofar as inflation is concerned, it is neither major political party which is responsible, but the labor unions, which have steadily forced increased labor costs while steadily decreasing labor efficiency through the protection of inefficient labor, featherbedding, etc. F. S. WILSON.

"Forgotten Men"

Your editorial of August 30, "Forgotten Men," interested me quite some. Anyone who reads current books, magazines and newspapers is bound to be heartened by pressure from writers for better mental hospital conditions and humane care and treatment for the inmates. However, scarcely a word has been printed about the unlawful and unjust commitments of sane persons. In law, this is termed false imprisonment, abusive process, and malicious prosecution.

The insane asylums contain too many sane, innocent and harmless people, whose only irrationality is that they refuse to conform to someone else's standard of conduct. No greater tragedy, no greater mental torture can be conceived than that of the commitment of a sane and normal person to an insane asylum.

There are over 600,000 unfortunate individuals confined in the mental hospitals of this Nation. A substantial percentage of them are sane. An indictment of appalling force may be justly drawn up against the present lunacy laws. The system of certification, diagnosis and commitment lend themselves to error, conspiracy and gross abuse.

"The World's Oil"

As they appeared in The Washington Post of August 1 and 8, I was interested to read the articles by H. G. Moulton on "The World's Oil." However, my hope that they would say something to help us to make up our minds as a people what we ought to do as a matter of national policy with respect to oil has been dashed. There were a lot of informative statistics for those who feel that statistics can satisfy an appetite for a policy or a principle. But statistics are to carry in a reference book, not in one's mind.

The articles give prominence to the oil man's customary thesis of "free enterprise," and extol the job that we are doing in this country in getting rid of our oil as rapidly as we can, as against, let us say, the Soviet Union, which is miserly with its oil. For instance, the United States, with only 31 per cent of the proved resources of the world, under glorious "free enterprise" produces 61 per cent of the current flow. Or, to put it differently, "the Soviet Union, with a far greater oil potential and a far greater population, accounts for a production rate only one-ninth that of the United States." From this we are apparently asked to conclude that "the scheme of government in a totalitarian country, such as Russia, does not lend itself as well to the development of natural resources as does the free competitive enterprise of the United States."

Mr. Moulton does not appear to be concerned, or, in fact, interested in what might happen to the United States in the event that we should run through with our oil, while Russia would still be holding on to much of what it originally possessed. In other words, if you have money in the bank, be "freely enterprising" about it, and spend it as fast as you can without regard to a possible competitor who is spending what his needs require, while adding every possible cent to an already comfortable balance.

Such a road of "free enterprise" leads, sooner or later, to a denudation of our resources, which should be prudently used, but at the same time husbanded for future generations. Apparently it has not occurred to Mr. Moulton that it might be sound national policy to bring in cheaper oil from the outside, while it is still available, while saving some of our own against some such trifling emergency as a future world war might constitute.

The writer points with pride to the fact that the oil industry as a whole is a tremendous contributor of revenues through taxation. What of it, unless the oil industry is paying more than its fair share? As compared with some other industries, to say nothing of individuals, I suspect that it could be demonstrated that the oil industry as a whole pays less than its equitable share, not only for the public properties on which it thrives, but for the protection and favors of Government.

I wish that Mr. Moulton might have said something about the "depletion reserves" that the oil industry enjoys under our income tax law. He also assures us that "the present tightness of the oil supply is not a matter of shortage in supply, but of an excessive growth in demand." Can it be that, at one and the same time, we can suffer from a shortage while having satisfaction in a shortage?

This reminds me of the sage conclusion given by the late Senator Francis Maloney of Connecticut, who, at the opening session of his special committee in January of 1943 to investigate the oil situation, announced that there was no shortage of oil, or transportation, but only of "surplus." And now Mr. Moulton exposes himself to the same embarrassment that caught up with Senator Maloney, to assure us that we need not be concerned about "the present tightness of the oil supply" because there "ain't any such animile." The only trouble, which isn't a trouble at all, is that there has been an "excessive growth in demand."

This will certainly be a comfort to the householder next winter if he is cold because he cannot get enough fuel oil for the oil burner that he bought under pressure from enthusiastic advertisements, paid for by distributors of the apparatus, who were willing to cross their hearts and insist that there would be plenty of oil. In such an event, the householder may assure himself that, on the authority of a great scientist and logician, there is plenty of oil, even if there is such a negligible factor as "an excessive growth in demand."

I am still hoping to read one of The Washington Post's impressive editorials dissecting Mr. Moulton's oil industry propaganda. Incidentally, neither had Mr. Moulton anything to say on the subject of whether the people should be despoiled of their tidelands for the benefit of the oil industry and "free enterprise." HAROLD L. ICKES,
Former Secretary of the Interior.

Nebraska Reaction

LINCOLN, NEBR.—In spite of a last-minute blast of heat that has somewhat reduced the corn crop, Nebraska farmers will share in the ground swell of high prosperity prevailing throughout the agricultural West. As for the ranchers in the western part of the State, there are fabulous stories of the growth of their wealth as cattle continue to bring record prices in the Chicago market.

This all adds up, politically speaking, to a Republican victory in November. That outcome is certain in the view of experienced observers here in Nebraska's capital.

It is Republicanism of the extreme right that will triumph with the reelection to the Senate of Senator Kenneth S. Wherry of Pawnee City.

As Majority Whip of the Senate, Wherry has thrown his weight on the side of reaction in almost every issue. At one point he clashed so violently with the leading Republican liberal in the Senate, Wayne Morse of Oregon, that the two came close to a fist fight.

He is also a shrewd politician who works hard at pleasing his constituents in small ways. Feeling confident of his reelection, he will devote more of his time to the national campaign than to the State elections. In his six years in the Senate he has risen rapidly to a position of influence in congressional and party circles.

WHERRY has a good working partner in Nebraska's other Senator, Hugh Butler. Butler, who dominates the Republican organization in Omaha, is also an ultra-conservative.

Through his machine Butler tried in the primary last spring to put over his good friend, Senator Robert A. Taft. He failed ignominiously when Nebraska voters favored Harold Stassen, who had made a vigorous campaign in the State.

Nebraskans made the choice between Stassen's active internationalism and Taft's cautious attitude toward the Marshall Plan. Moreover, Taft made a speech in Omaha asking some pertinent questions about the Federal subsidy system for agriculture and its relation to high prices. That did not go down well in a State largely given over to farming.

Butler, now in his second term, has been a close understudy to the more vigorous, aggressive Wherry in the blocking and tackling strategy of reaction in the Senate. Thus, almost single-handed, as chairman of the Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, Butler blocked Statehood for Hawaii, ignoring pleas that the move was essential for national defense if for no other reason. Certain powerful financial interests in the islands were opposed to Statehood.

There is a bitter irony in the fact that the Republican organization in the State should be dominated by men who think so narrowly. For 40 years Nebraska sent to Washington a great man who was also a Republican—the late Senator George W. Norris.

NORRIS believed that under our American democracy, government could become a partner with the people and with private enterprise for the common good. That was what he preached through the long years of his public service.

Here in Nebraska today you can find little trace of the beliefs that Norris stood for. It almost seems as though his career had never been. Secretary of the Interior J. A. Krug came out to Nebraska a year ago to dedicate a reclamation dam and never once mentioned the name of the man who more than anyone stood for power and water development.

But the fact is that Norris is a national figure. His chief monument is the Tennessee Valley Authority, which has worked a profound change throughout a whole region. Norris' name will live long after the Wherrys and the Butlers are forgotten, and I venture to say that will be true in Nebraska, too.

Norris was not afraid. He stood up against all sorts of threats and intimidation because he believed passionately in the power of America to grow and develop and the capacity of the American system to bring greater and greater benefits to more and more people. He was for the many, rather than for the few.

Wherry's Democratic opponent this year is Terry Carpenter, who ran against Norris in 1936. Carpenter is typical of the little clique that until recently has dominated the Democratic Party in this State. They fought Norris at every stake and helped to bring about the tragedy of his final defeat. There are undoubtedly many in the State who believe in Norris and his ideals, but this time with the choice between Wherry and Carpenter they have no place to go.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

The Story Of Peter: II

SOME OF the strange experiences of "Peter," one of the 12 to 20 million people who have been herded into the vast slave labor camps in the Soviet Union, have already been described in this space. In the camp to which Peter was sent, near Magadon in the Bay of Tausk, there were few Russians. Most of the prisoners were Volga Germans, Poles, Balts and great numbers of Jews.

These people were resigned to living the cruel death-in-life of the Siberian forced labor camps until they died. Death came soon, for the starvation diet and the terrible Siberian cold killed all but the hardiest in a few months or years.

Peter managed to survive his nine years in Siberia for the curious reason that he had been an art student in Moscow, and had some artistic ability. The chief guards were brutal and unlettered Mongolian Yakuts. But many of the lesser guards had themselves been prisoners before they were "freed."

Peter made friends with one of these, and the guard showed him a tattered photograph of his wife. From the photograph, Peter sketched a portrait of the guard's wife on the wall of his hut. The portrait was a successful likeness, and Peter's fame spread. Other guards, pathetically eager for some reminder of the life they had left behind them, begged Peter to decorate their huts. Peter became a favored prisoner, and was pampered with extra scraps of food, which made it possible for him to endure the terrible cold.

IT WAS also by reason of his high standing with the guards that Peter was "freed" in 1944, at the end of his sentence for "political crimes against the state" (he had visited the embassy of the country of which he was a national).

Other prisoners were simply informed at the end of their sentences that their crimes of imprisonment had been prolonged by official order. Peter's "freedom" was strictly limited, since he was still confined to the prison camp area.

Yet his condition was somewhat improved. As a "freed man" he received extra rations. He became a prison draftsman, and in that capacity he was taken on a number of engineering expeditions in search of further gold deposits, and, after 1945, uranium deposits. In 1944, as a "freed man," Peter was first allowed to write to his family, and to receive letters from them.

Until then, his family had heard from him only once in the five years since his imprisonment. In the railway wagon which took him to Siberia Peter had scribbled a message describing his fate, and thrown it through a grating. Some daring and sympathetic person found the message, and some months later Peter's family received it in a plain envelope in the ordinary mail.

PETER'S family must have been courageous and persistent. When his sentence officially ended in 1944, they constantly pestered officials to allow their son to return to Moscow. Nothing happened. Then, in 1945, greatly daring, Peter's family wrote a letter addressed to the great comrade Stalin, in the Kremlin, just as in other times Russians in distress would appeal direct to the Czar of all the Russias.

Again two years passed. Then, in late 1947, an unprecedented order from Moscow was received in the Siberian camp. Peter was to be allowed to leave for Vladivostok and Moscow in the open navigation season.

But Peter did not have the 3000 rubles for the fare. In a surprising gesture, the money was somehow scraped together by other prisoners and "freed men" who would never leave Siberia. They gave Peter the money, and asked him only not to forget them.

THAT IS the end of Peter's story, except that, in a way which cannot be described, he is now beyond the reach of the Soviet secret police. It is a strange story, which gives a curious glimpse of human beings caught in the iron grip of an inhuman system. For there is much that is very human in Peter's story: the nostalgia of the guards whose huts Peter decorated, for the life they would never know again; the sympathy of the anonymous stranger who sent Peter's scribbled note to his family; the anxious, courageous efforts of his family to help him; the generosity of the condemned men who gave him his fare.

Yet one senses also the dead, inhuman weight of a political system which has grown beyond the powers of the men who created it to control. Fear and suspicion gnaw at the heart of this system, so that Peter was condemned to the living death of Siberia merely because he visited the embassy of the country of which he was a citizen.

This fear and suspicion are clothed and concealed in a bureaucracy so monstrously inhuman that it can take no account of human beings alive, but must carefully record their fingerprints when dead; and so ponderous that years may pass between the giving of an order and its carrying out. Certainly Peter's story suggests some of the reasons why every year thousands of Soviet citizens risk death to flee to the West. It also suggests that the widespread conception of the Soviet system as a valid and viable alternative to the free way of life is one of history's strangest and cruelest myths.

Truck Strike Perils N. Y. Milk Supply

New York, Sept. 7 (AP).—New York's milk supply situation was said today to be "getting critical" as the AFL trucking strike ended its first week. Settlement prospects were slim.

The shortage of cardboard containers caused the trouble in distribution of milk. Manufacturing plants were jammed with them but they could not be delivered because of the idle trucks.

Hopes for a quick end to the metropolitan area walkout were dashed late today with rejection by employer representatives of proposals described by the union rank-and-file as minimum.

These included a 25-cents-an-hour wage increase and a welfare fund based on employer contributions of five per cent of payrolls.

Members Down Plan

Originally, the union officers had worked out a new contract with the employers calling for a 15-cent pay hike, but this was rejected by the rank-and-file.

Federal, state and city mediators will meet again Wednesday with union spokesmen.

Shortages of soap and soap powders and certain foods as well as milk were threatened as the strike dragged on.

About 9400 members of Local 807, International Brotherhood of Teamsters are involved in the walkout here. They were joined over the Labor Day weekend by 4300 members of Local 478 in New Jersey.

Members of some other teamster locals also were not showing up for work.

Newsprint Short

William Mapel, vice chairman of the Publishers Association of New York City, said one paper here had only a five days' supply of newsprint under normal operating conditions, and in the best situation had about a two weeks' supply.

However, he said some of the papers have reduced size and eliminated advertising to conserve paper. Newsprint is not being delivered.

Axis Sally 'Said No Wrong'

By the United Press

"Axis Sally" claims that she never told American soldiers to lay down their arms or said anything treasonable in her wartime broadcasts for the Nazi radio, it was reported yesterday.

That was the word from Edna Mae Herrick, Conneaut, Ohio, half-sister of Mildred Elizabeth Gillars who is in jail here on a Government charge of treason as the Berlin radio's wartime "Axis Sally."

A grand jury is hearing the Government's evidence against the 47-year-old Miss Gilars, who caled herself "Midge" in her broadcasts to Allied troops.

Mrs. Herrick, a 37-year-old dancing teacher, told a reporter with tears in her eyes:

"Mildred firmly denies ever having been anything but an American. I know she is innocent!"

She quoted Miss Gilars, whom she visited daily in prison last week, as saying, "I never talked politics; I never told those boys to throw down their arms or that their wives were unfaithful to them."

Mrs. Herrick said she could not understand at first why her half-sister did not return to the United States after war was declared, but added:

"She loved the German people. When hoodlums come in and take over, that's no time to run away."

She said Miss Gillars looked on Nazis "as we do on Al Capone and his gangsters."

Mrs. Herrick returned to her Conneaut home but assued her sister she would be "just a phone call away," and added:

"I am going to stand by her side. I want the world to know that's my stand."

Negroes' Aims Seen Linked to Those of U. S.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 7 (AP).—One of President Truman's economic advisers today said the political and economic objectives of the Negro were tied in directly with "our economic objectives."

"Of course, discrimination is bad under any conditions," said Leon H. Keyserling, vice chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers in the Office of the President, in an address to the National Urban League conference here.

"But it is wishful thinking to believe that we can realize our political and civil objectives fully without realizing our economic objectives at the same time. For if we get too far off the path of reasonable economic stability and reasonable security, people in groups will turn against each other in their competition for an inadequate number of jobs, an inadequate national income, an inadequate supply of housing, and an inadequate amount of security."

"Budget" Proposed

In his talk to the interracial organization whose aim is the social and economic betterment of the Negro, Keyserling proposed the adoption of what he called a "national prosperity budget."

"A national prosperity budget," he said, "would contain major goals for employment, for production, for housing, for education and for a few other major items. It would not be a 5 to 10-year plan. It wouldn't be imposed from above. It would not be a mandate to anyone in the sense of a war production quota. It would be a voluntary peace concept of America's capacity, as a frame of reference for cooperative Nation-wide effort.

"Then the specific elements in national economic policy, such as taxation and social security, and price-wage policies arrived at through collective bargaining, could be better tested and measured against their relevance to national objectives."

Also on the second day's program of the five-day meeting was Winthrop Rockefeller of New York, a member of the national board of directors of the league.

"The type of leadership which grows in the Urban League movement," Rockefeller said, "is not satisfied with talking civil rights alone. It is the type of leadership which combines with those rights the opportunities and appreciation of the responsibilities that go with any normal relationship between human beings."

Rockefeller was called upon to replace Leonard W. Mayo, vice president of Western Reserve University, who was unable to be present as speaker.

Warren M. Banner, league director of research and community projects, said that any concession to the Negro people is encouragement for them to hit harder for the complete measure of citizenship.

"Anyone among us who sells out is dead though he himself may believe that he made the deal without witnesses," he said.

"The philosophy of our movement requires that the Urban League work to assist colored persons in becoming live participants in all the various activities in the community. In accomplishing this aim the league must get colored persons to make use of existing facilities and services; and if these are closed to persons of color, it is the league's responsibility to work to open them."

ITU Denies Flouting Rule Of U. S. Judge

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 7 (U.P.).—The International Typographical Union (AFL) denied today that it has violated a Federal Court order directing it to obey the Taft-Hartley Act in dealing with more than 800 newspaper publishers.

In a petition filed with District Court here, the union asked Federal Judge Luther M. Swygert to toss out a Government motion to cite the union for contempt of court.

The Government motion was filed 10 days ago by Robert N. Denham, general counsel for the National Labor Relations Board.

Denham told Swygert the printers' union repeatedly has defied an injunction issued by Swygert last March 27.

The injunction directed the union to obey the Taft-Hartley Act in its dealings with the publishers until the full Labor Board can decide whether or not certain of the union's bargaining demands are illegal.

The union repeated its charge that Denham sought the contempt of court action at the direction of Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio).

The union said Taft "directed the filing of this petition at a meeting with members of the general counsel's staff—a meeting at which were present certain Chicago newspaper publishers who have an obvious interest in the successful prosecution of the petition for contempt."

Taft and Denham have denied that the Senator had anything to do with starting contempt action against the union.

Swygert has set September 15 for a hearing on Denham's charges.

Swygert's court order directed the union specifically to: (1) stop insisting that its local unions sign only "form contracts" drawn up by the International Union; (2) stop aiding or encouraging local unions to conduct strikes against newspapers for illegal contract demands; (3) stop demanding closed shop employment from the publishers and (4) stop trying to force publishers to discriminate against nonunion printers.

The union denied, point by point, that its policies since March 27 have violated these directions.

"The form contract was only a suggested form that might be offered as a local union's proposed collective bargaining agreement," the international union said in its answer.

"Contracts that have deviated materially from the substance of the form contract have, in fact, been offered by local unions and approved by the ITU."

The union also denied that the form contract causes employers to discriminate unlawfully against nonmembers of the ITU.

The union said that "in certain instances" it has supported "certain 'subordinate local unions in strikes."

But it denied that "any such strikes have been in furtherance of any objectives prohibited by this court's decree or any statute."

Bridges Pledge

Stevedores Will Load Army Needs

San Francisco, Sept. 7 (AP).—West Coast longshore leaders Harry Bridges agreed today his striking CIO longshoremen could work Army ships in struck ports—but on condition prevailing port wages are paid.

Bridges statement was made in Seattle in the face of a stiffened Army attitude that its cargo would move, strike or no strike.

Bridges spoke at a union meeting noting that a new contract with independent employers in Seattle called for a 15-cent an hour wage raise, and that this scale would apply to any Army work.

In Washington, an Army spokesman declared it would, if necessary, use military personnel to handle Army cargo destined for overseas bases if an agreement is not reached with striking stevedores in the West.

The strike, called September 2, has idled 28,000 men and 160 ships from Puget Sound to San Diego. It continued today with no indication of a break.

The strike developed when negotiations between ship owners and the union on wages and hiring hall provisions broke down after long and bitter controversy.

The operators withdrew all previous concessions after the strike, and announced that until the five unions, involved filed anti-Communist affidavits under the Taft-Hartley Act, negotiations would not be resumed. Bridges' union has refused to file such affidavits.

In his Seattle talk Bridges said military cargo could be handled either through private stevedoring companies, or by the Army itself hiring the longshoremen. It has done that on occasion.

"The only thing we insist on," he added, "is that the prevaling wage for the area be paid."

As to the declaration of the employers that they will not bargain with any other union that hasn't filed anti-Communist statements, Bridges said it was an attempt of the ship owners to substitute Communism for the "true issues" of the strike—wage increases, no work on Sunday, an 8-hour day, and retention of the hiring hall, with a union dispatcher.

New Orleans Port Attache Sent Here

A new "commercial attache" from a "foreign" government has taken his place among the diplomatic representatives here.

Bourgeois

He is Lewis I. Bourgeois, who does not represent France, but the Port of New Orleans as its director of commerce.

The Port of New Orleans, an agency of the State of Louisiana, has maintained an agent and an office her for more than 10 years.

The present importance of Washington in international trade matters caused the port authority's board of commissioners to move its commerce director's office from New Orleans to this city this month.

Lobbyist? Mais, Non!

Bourgeois who is 51, denies with a hearty laugh any suspicion that he might have been sent here as a congressional lobbyist. His job, he says, is to sell good will for the Port of New Orleans and generally promote more use of the port by shipping interests.

The job here has increased importance because of the European Recovery Plan, he explained yesterday at his office in the Munsey Building. He can be in closed contact with the purchasing missions and legations of ERP nations.

Also important is the fact that many private import and export agencies have set up shop here because foreign commerce is still pretty much under government regulation, through such agencies as the Office of International Trade, he said.

Tops As a Port

A genial booster for his port, Bourgeois noted that it has been in second place in this country for the past two or three years as regards the amount of goods handled—excluding such products as coal, grain and oil.

Oil Men Establish Allocation System

By The Associated Press

The oil industry yesterday set up a voluntary allocation committee to meet the petroleum crisis developing on the West Coast as the result of a refinery strike.

The committee will make recommendations to the industry and the Federal Government for the allocation of petroleum in the strike-bound area. It was established by the National Petroleum Council, industry advisory group to the Interior Department.

The Gallup Poll

Dewey Lead Little Changed As Campaign Fireworks Start

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 7.—As the presidential campaign enters its "fireworks" stage eight weeks from election day, the national standing of the principal candidates is as follows in the latest Institute poll:

"If the presidential election were being held TODAY how would you vote—for Truman, for Dewey, or for Wallace?"

Dewey	48½%
Truman	36½
Wallace	5
Undecided	10

Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, candidate of the Southern States' Rights Party, polls slightly less than 2 per cent nationally, but his party's ticket is not expected to be on the official election ballot in more than a small number of the 48 States.

President Truman's campaign opened up vigorously on Monday. Governor Dewey has also promised a "rugged" campaign, and Henry A. Wallace has conducted an eventful tour of the South. How these efforts effect sentiment will be shown in forthcoming surveys by the Institute.

The trend of sentiment thus far among voters who have expressed a preference for one candidate or another is shown below. It can be seen that there has been very little change up to this point in the campaign.

With Undecideds Eliminated

	June	Aug. 1	To-day
Dewey	53%	53%	54%
Truman	41	41	40½
Wallace	6	6	5½

Democratic leaders have been cheered by a number of recent events which they believe will strengthen their ticket. Organized labor has swung into line behind the Truman forces. The Wallace ticket has been barred from the Illinois ballot, by order of the State election board, and Democrats feel that this improves Mr. Truman's chances of carrying that important State. Finally, supporters of the Truman-Barkley ticket have begun counterattacks against the Dixiecrats in South Carolina, Alabama and Mississippi whose electoral votes at present are pledged to Mr. Thurmond.

How well the Democrats do in November will depend to a very large extent on turnout. Fresh evidence of the importance of the turnout factor comes from today's survey. If everybody were required by law to vote, as in Australia or in Holland, 1948 would be a horse-race between Governor Dewey and Mr. Truman.

Usually the turnout in presidential elections amounts to about one half to three fifths of the potential voting population. In mid-term congressional elections it is much lower, sometimes under one third. Because the stay-at-homes are predominately Democratic in their political sentiments, a small turnout hurts the Democratic Party.

Among the total potential voting population of 94 million (all persons 21 years of age and over) here is how the candidates stand today:

If Everybody Voted

Dewey	49%
Truman	45½
Wallace	5½

The Thurmond vote nationally on this basis is 4½ per cent.

As turnout drops from the theoretical potential of 94 millions to the 58 million figure which is likely in November, President Truman's percentage drops. To the extent that the turnout is less than 58 million the Democrats will suffer even more. The 58 million figure is what the turnout will be if the same proportion of people will go to the polls as did in 1940, the last election before the war.

The Democratic Party has already begun concentrating on getting out a big vote. Only last week President Truman expressed the hope that every eligible voter and "not just the customary minority of those eligible" will go to the polls.

Electronics Seen Means Of Converse With Dead

London, Sept. 7 (AP).—A leading spiritualist predicted today that electronic science will someday produce a device that will enable the living to talk with the dead.

"It will be as commonplace as radio and television," Ernest Thompson told the 70 delegates from 18 nations attending the first conference of the International Spiritualist Federation since the war.

Rise Continues In July Sales Of Appliances

By S. Oliver Goodman

Retail sales of electric appliances in Washington and two nearby Maryland counties continued upward in July as compared with the same 1947 month.

Radio sales more than tripled, while vacuum cleaner sales more than doubled, according to figures supplied by the Electric Institute of Washington.

Of 11 appliance categories, only three showed a drop in sales during July. These were electric ranges, oil burners and water heaters.

Sales of television receiving sets numbered 669 for July, a substantial gain over the 266 for the same month last year. However, the month's total was less than half of the 1575 in the previous month this year.

Sales trend for July and the first seven months this year compared as follows with the same 1947 periods:

	1947 July.	1948 July.	1947 7 mos.	1948 7 mos.

The figures are based on retail sales data filed by institute members and cover the District of Columbia, Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties.

MERGER RUMORED: A merger involving the Washington-based Capital Airlines and the Braniff International System of the Midwest is considered "a distinct possibility." Braniff is reported actively wooing Capital Airlines, which originated years ago as Pennsylvania Central. The proposed merger is said to have strong support from Pittsburgh banking interests, which hold a major interest in Capital Airlines, and also from New York investment banking houses.

ODD LOTS: District Theaters Corp. declared the regular quarterly dividend of 20 cents a common share, payable October 1 to stock of record September 15 . . . Formal public offering of common shares of Television Fund, Inc., will be made here today through securities dealers . . . Due to Monday's holiday, steel mill operations will decline to 94.5 per cent this week from 95.2 per cent last week . . . Census Bureau reports that exports rose slightly during July to highest point since last March. July exports totaled $1,022,000,000, including shipments under the European Recovery Program and other foreign relief programs . . . Merger of Westvaco Chemical Corp. into Food Machinery has been approved by stockholders of both firms. The new company will be known as Food Machinery & Chemical Corp.

NEW RATES PLAN: The Railway Express Agency proposed yesterday a single scale of rates for the entire country. It estimated this would increase its revenues by about 15 million dollars a year, based on the 1947 volume of express. At present there are two rate scales, (1) Eastern-Southern, which generally apply east of the Mississippi and (2) Western, which apply West of the Mississippi and on express moving between the two territories. The express agency asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to make the Western scale apply for the entire country. It described the Western rates as "generally higher."

HEADS CHEVROLET: C. E. Wilson, president of General Motors, yesterday announced the appointment of W. F. Armstrong as general manager of the Chevrolet motor division. Armstrong succeeds Nicholas Dreystadt who died last week.

Now a vice president of General Motors, Armstrong has been in charge of manufacturing and real estate staffs since August, 1944. The new Chevrolet head came to the Detroit central office of General Motors in 1930 as assistant to C. E. Wilson, then a vice president. He joined the Frigidaire division in 1932 and later was named assistant general manager. In 1937 Armstrong left General Motors and went with Nash-Kelvinator as a vice president. He rejoined GM in 1943 as a special assistant on the staff of Albert Bradley, executive vice president.

A. I. B. TO MEET: Hartwell F. Taylor, national vice president of the American Institute of Banking, will be principal speaker at the fall educational dinner of the Washington chapter. Construction In South Soars 49% in Year

Baltimore, Sept. 7 (AP).—With private building leading the field, construction contracts in the Southern States totaled $1,773,745,000 through August 31, the Manufacturers Record said.

This year's eight-month total was a 49 per cent increase over last year's and was the third highest in history, the record said.

However, the August total of $169,406,000 was the lowest monthly total for the year and marked a 23 per cent drop from July.

Public building ranked second with $393,369,000, of which $226,424,000 was for schools. The Record said school contracts for the current period are twice that of last year.

Highway contracts were in third place, up 24 per cent from last year to $324,601,000 and industrial construction was fourth at $287,299,000, down about two million dollars. Heavy construction went up 45 per cent, to $257,584,000.

Uruguayan Peso Drops

New York, Sept. 7 (AP).—A lowered value for the Uruguayan peso in "free market" operations of Banco de la Republic at Montevideo brought a decline of 4½ cents in nominal quotations for the peso on the New York foreign exchange market.

Auto Probers May Subpena Dealers Here

A number of District automobile dealers who have thus far refused to give information about their business practices to a congressional committee may face subpenas, a committee aide said yesterday.

John T. M. Reddan, counsel for the House Committee Investigating Questionable Trade Practices, said that most District automobile dealers had cooperated with the committee, but that a "very few" had refused to answer questions. Both used car and new car dealers were in the group refusing to give information, he said.

The committee wanted to get information on the resale price of used cars and the cost of extras attached to new cars, Reddan said. Representative W. Kingsland Macy (R., N. Y.), is chairman of the committee.

While the committee would prefer not to use its subpena power, Reddan said they would resort to it if necessary to get the desired data from the "few" holdouts.

The Macy Committee began investigating possible gray market activities in the local automobile market as an outgrowth of its steel gray market investigation this summer.

Reddan said yesterday that spot checks have been made of a "representative number" of both new and used car dealers in Greater Washington. So far, about 60 to 70 per cent of those queried have responded with the desired information. The committee counsel said he expects 90 per cent compliance by the weekend.

After the questionnaires have been analyzed, Reddan said the committee will decide whether to hold public hearings involving local dealers. If the hearings are to be held, he said they probably will be scheduled "for the middle of October."

Teach Son Trade, Begs Doomed China Colonel

Shanghai, Sept. 7 (AP).—A few minutes before the firing squad came to get him Sunday, Col. Tsin Tsai-you finished a letter to his wife.

It gave his wife this piece of advice: "Train our son as a rice merchant. Never let him become a government official." Tsin was accused of using his official position for extortion.

Army Commander Saw No Leader in Hitler

Nuernberg, Germany, Sept. 7 (U.P.).—Adolf Hitler's former commanding officer said today that the Fuehrer never rose above corporal in the German army because he showed no leadership qualities.

Fritz Wiedemann, former German Consul in San Francisco who was Hitler's company commander in World War I, told a war crimes court that Hitler served as front-line courier "in a brave, quiet, modest manner."

"It was only after the war that he developed all the terrible qualities which he later exhibited," Wiedemann said.

One on the Aisle—

Galsworthy Film Is a Rare Treat

By Richard L. Coe

IT IS SURPRISING that John Galsworthy's plays and novels have provided so few screen plays. As we noted at the time "Gentleman's Agreement" arrived, the English author (1867-1933) had attacked anti-Semitism a generation earlier in "Loyalties" (1922). His writings were outstanding for their fusion of expert story-telling with causes and ideas.

Now Twentieth Century-Fox has filmed his "Escape" in Britain with an English cast headed by Rex Harrison and Peggy Cummins. The picture opens today at the Playhouse and it's a good one.

In passing, one might note, too, that generally the producers go to great lengths to avoid using titles which already have served other pictures. You may recall another "Escape" of 1940, adapted from the Ethel Vance novel about refugees from the Nazis; this has no connection, but one rejoices that Galsworthy's title has been left alone.

For "Escape" fits Galsworthy's theme of a man who found that even though he was wrongly sentenced for a crime by society, he could not find escape even though he might succeed in breaking free from Dartmoor Prison. Society's laws are for the protection of us all and, unjust though certain decisions may be, there is no escape from them.

With this thought as his basis, Galsworthy gives us the clear-cut case of a man we can like and with whom it is easy to sympathize. Matt Denant passes a few innocent words in Hyde Park with a prostitute, when a policeman arrests her for soliciting. Denant argues with the copper, brushes him up a bit. Helping the policeman to steady himself, Denant is horrified to see him fall and hit his head against a bench. Denant urges the girl to flee, but he stays by the policeman; the officer is dead and a jury of his peers convicts Denant of manslaughter. The judge gives him three years in Dartmoor.

Solves Minister's Problem

Most of "Escape" concerns his attempts to get free. He escapes the old building on the moors, but evading the blockade is something else. In his adventures he meets many people; some befriend him, others don't. A young girl believes his thesis that he's been wrongfully jailed and compromises herself by aiding him. A village padre gives him sanctuary, but just as the padre is having to decide between the things that are Caesar's and the things that are God's, Denant realizes that he cannot implicate another soul in his misfortune.

He gives himself up to avoid incriminating the padre and is sent back to prison, softened in the knowledge that the girl will wait for his release.

In making his adaptation, Philip Dunne has moved the story up to the present, which does the whole no harm. Exactly how much he has accented the love of the girl for the escaped prisoner I do not know, but one has the impression that more than a bow has been made in the direction of True Romance, without which, presumably, the movie world finds it impossible to imagine that the rest of the world exists. Apart from this idea that Love Solves All Things, the reasoning is intelligent and is capably summed up by the young padre.

Rex Harrison is exactly right as Denant and the fetching Miss Cummins makes the girl a credible individual. The balance of the cast is thoroughly able, particularly Norman Wooland as the padre. Dunne's script is praiseworthy and, as an example of Anglo-American film-making, "Escape" is a welcome adventure.

"ESCAPE." Twentieth Century-Fox release produced by William Perlberg at the M-G-M British Studios, Ltd. Screen play by Philip Dunne from the play by John Galsworthy. Photography by Frederick A. Young. Music by William Alwyn. Directed by Joseph L. Mankiewicz. At the Playhouse.

SNEAK PREVIEW is plotted tonight for the Palace screen at 8:30; both before and after the surprise "A Foreign Affair" will be shown . . . Two other openings are listed for today, "Good Sam," a highly touted comedy with Gary Cooper and Ann Sheridan, and "Marius," the first of the Marcel Pagnol "Marius, Fanny, Cesar" trilogy.

THE PIX has entered the foreign film lists this midweek with a sock double bill, "Panic," a former Dupont hit, and "Shoeshine," which filled the Little last winter for weeks.

DONALD DUCK and his voice, Clarence Nash, are headed for Hecht's Walt Disney shop Thursday, Friday and Saturday . . . Nash has been Donald's voice for 15 years, and if you hear a normal-looking chap in average dress give out with a squawk these days, don't be alarmed . . . His name's Nash and he's probably headed for the W. Disney shop.

Many Irishmen To Return to Eire, Costello Hopes

Ottawa, Ontario, Sept. 7 (U.P.).—Premier John A. Costello of Eire said today that it was the hope of his government to draw back to Ireland large numbers of its people now scattered throughout the world.

Eire is trying to do this, he said, by discouraging further emigration and making conditions in Ireland so desirable they will "invite" Irishmen back.

Costello said the major problem facing Ireland today was the world shortage of dollar currency. He added that Ireland hoped to obtain a loan of 85 million dollars from the United States, possibly through the Marshall Plan.

Gambino Signs With Baltimore Colts

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

A BODY HIT the floor at Turner's Arena yesterday, and Jake Mintz, with his back to the ring, did a quick pivot to turn a pair of frightened eyes toward the fallen gladiator. Then he sighed relievedly when he identified the victim as one Floyd Gibson, not his man Ezzard Charles.

POVICH

"See, I'm nervous, sick-nervous," said Mintz. "I should know if anybody goes down it's gotta be a sparring partner, not Charles. But I got the jitters. The fight with Jimmy Bivins is getting bigger every day. And we're working too cheap anyway."

Jake's worries stem from twin founts, he says. "If we don't get over this one with Bivins I might as well tear up $205,000 in offers for Charles that I got in my pocket. And we thought Bivins was going to be a soft touch. Now it looks like he's hungry and trying to knock us off."

On that latter count, there may be justification for Mintz's worries. Bivvins, who never trained more than two weeks for any fight, has been at his New Jersey camp for two months, thanks to two postponements of the Charles fight that is now down for decision Monday night at Griffith Stadium.

"BIVINS WAS OUT of the heavyweight picture, we should of let him sleep," said Mintz. "We win two out of three from him and don't have to bother with him any more, and then we take this match in Washington. They tell me Bivins is dead serious again about getting back in the big money, and maybe we're dopes for giving him this chance. I tell you, it's making me nervous."

Earlier in the day, Mintz says, he was offered $20,000 for his fragment of Charles, and turned it down. Bo Bregman shook his head sadly. "They fluctuate," he told Mintz. "After Jackie Cranford knocked out Bernie Reynolds in Madison Square Garden, I turned down $20,000 for his contract. Three weeks later he got licked by Buonvino and I couldn't sell him for twenty cents.

Folks other than Mintz are apparently worried about Bivins. The bookies, who were offering 6 to 1 against him when the fight was first announced, have now revised their odds to 3 to 1, and by ring time the price is expected to go to 2 to 1. All of a sudden there is solid backing for Bivins.

CHARLES HAS SIGNED to fight Joe Baksi in November at Madison Square Garden, but Mintz dismisses that engagement as unimportant. "From Baksi I am not worried. We can lick his kind four days a week, but we have to get past the Bivins show or we're dead. They want us in San Francisco, in Baltimore and Miami, in New York and Pittsburgh. They don't want us if we don't beat Bivins."

However, the right uppercut by Charles that lifted Sparring Partner Gibson off the floor before depositing him on it, also gave Mintz a lift. "See, he's punching good again," said Jake. "I don't know why I'm so worried, except I'm worried: I got the greatest heavyweight in the world, and still I'm nervous. I won't weigh in at 132 by Monday night. I'm glad I'm not fighting."

When last seen against Bivins, Charles was doing very well. That was in March of 1947 when he walked out of the ring in Cleveland after knocking Bivins out in four rounds. He had improved progressively in three Bivins bouts. The first one he lost by a decision. The second he won by a decision, and the third was his four-round knockout win.

BUT MATCHMAKER Gabe Menendez who is not above ballyhooing the show, tosses in the reminder that if Bivins puts Charles on the floor, it would not be the first time. "Bivins had him down the first time they met," said Menendez. "You can't says Bivins don't know how to reach him. With Bivins it's all a matter of condition. If he's in shape he can lick Charles and all the rest including Walcott."

But as it rests at this point, Charles is the reasonable favorite, despite the fact that at 175 pounds he's giving Bivins a 15-pound pull in the weights. He has been hitting harder than any heavyweight except Louis, and he's smart and eager. Youth, too, is on his side. He's 25, Bivins is 28.

Ken Overlin, the old middleweight champion, was the first man to come East bearing tales of Charles. Overlin, probably the fanciest boxer of his time, prided himself on his somewhat handsome and unmarked features after a dozen years in the ring. He delighted in fighting local yokels and outstepping 'em, drawing the decision fine to make a rematch. But he showed up one day with a darkened eye and a widespread nose. "Some guy out in Cincinnati," explained Overlin. "Name of Ezzard Charles. He don't know when to stop punching."

Maryland Decides to Drop Effort To Play Him'

Baltimore, Sept. 7 (AP).—Lu Gambino, high-scoring halfback who has been the center of an eligibility storm at the University of Maryland, settled about $6000 worth of difference with the Baltimore Colts today and dropped out of school to play pro football.

The bald-headed streak of lightning around deft end, who led the Southern Conference in scoring last year, signed a contract with the All-America Colts after dickering for almost a week.

Robert C. "Jake" Embry, president of the Colt organization, declined to say what the legal document calls for, but he specified it is "a good but not unreasonable figure."

The dope was that the Colts had offered Gambino $9000 to sign and he wanted a three-year contract calling for $15,000 per annum.

An ace up his sleeve was the fact that the Chicago Bars of the rival National pro league have had their eyes on him for a couple of years and actually made an offer.

The signing came only an hour or so after Maryland announced it was giving up its fight to have Gambino declared eligible for another year of varsity football.

The Southern Conference executive committee decided last week that he had played three varsity years in addition to a freshman season. The initial year and one varsity season were at Indiana, before or during the early part of the war.

Gambino came to Maryland when he returned to civilian status. He sweated out the first year on the bench, when Clark Shaughnessy was guiding Maryland through a dismal season.

Then Jim Tatum came along from Oklahoma to take over the helm last year. He jerked Gambino off the bench and made him a star. Maryland won 7, lost 2 and tied 2.

Col. Geory Eppley, dean of men and faculty representative for sports of Marayland as well as vice president of the Southern Conference, said this afternoon there waas no use continuing the confreence battle over Gambino.

Lu Suits Up But Won't Play Friday

Baltimore, Sept. 7 (AP).—Cecil Isbell, coach of the Baltimore Colts, said today that Lu Gambino will be in uniform when Baltimore plays the Chicago Rockets in Chicago Friday night, but will not play.

He hopes to have the big back ready for action against the New York Yankees in New York September 16.

At College Park Coach Jim Tatum of Maryland University said:

"The football staff and the boys are sorry that Gambino's case turned out the way it did, for we feel that he deserved another year of play.

"I know that Gambino had two professional offers and I am happy he chose the Baltimore Colts. Baltimore is his home town, many of his fans are there. It is a team which I feel is a real contender for the Eastern Division championship.

A 'Squealer,' Too

Aussie Papers Call Quist A 'Sniveller'

SYDNEY, Australia, Sept. 7 (AP).—Australian sports writers today bitterly criticized the dominion's tennis administration and Davis Cup Captain Adrian Quist.

One commentator called Quist "a champion sniveller and squealer."

Nettled by the 5-0 defeat at the hands of the United States in the cup challenge round, Australian writers demanded:

1—Encouragement of youngsters to build up a new cup team.

2—Overhaul of the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia.

The Sydney Daily Mirror said Quist showed that "even if he was definitely finished as a Davis Cup player he was at least a champion sniveller and squealer."

Channel Swim Costly

LONDON, Sept. 7 (AP).—It costs 32 shillings ($6.40) to cross the English Channel by steamer and £500 ($2000) to swim, but plenty of folks of daring-do are still going the expensive way.

The best records agree that only 24 persons have ever succeeded in swimming the channel.

What a way to travel. For the che ap boatfare from Dover to Calais, or reverse, you can sit in the warm, wine and dine. It takes slightly more than an hour.

Costs are steep, but the minimum to swim the Channel would be about £500, including £150 ($600) for a launch and £50 ($200) for a pilot. The rest goes for hotel expenses waiting for the right wind, training and a matter of 14 pounds of body grease to keep warm in the water.

More Gambinos

CHICAGO, Sept. 7 (AP).—A list of Big Nine athletes who have sacrificed their eligibility for failing to comply with regulations is expected to be completed Sunday at a Chicago meeting of the conference's faculty committee.

The session is a continuation of the June 5 and 6 meetings of the faculty men on eligibility matters. The list of athletes who possibly will be denied the right of competition was reported last June to number 20.

All are not football players, although the Sunday conclave comes 13 days before the Big Nine grid seasons opens and apparently is timed to clear the decks before school starts.

Stagg Set for Season

Selinsgrove, Pa., Sept. 7 (AP).—The Grand Old Man of football opened another season today at Susquehanna University.

Amos Alonzo Stagg, sr., 85, returned from his home in Stockton, Calif., where he laid plans for the Crusaders' strategy this fall.

Operating on a copartnership arrangement with his son, Amos Alonzo, jr., the University of Chicago and College of the Pacific veteran coach once again will handle the offense while his son directs the defense.

"Father spent the summer thinking up new plays," the younger Stagg said. "I was very impressed with his plans."

Skins See How Good Gilmer Is Saturday

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

En Route to Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 7.—The Washington Redskins today directed their attention to next Saturday's exhibition game in which All-America Harry Gilmer makes his pro debut against the Green Bay Packers.

Because of a banged-up knee, Gilmer did not play in either of the Redskins' first two exhibition games. He's in shape now to bow in before his hometown fans in Birmingham.

How Gilmer, a singlewing passing star at the University of Alabama, will fit into the Redskins' T-formation attack has long been a question mark. An answer should be provided Saturday.

Harry's exhibition game appearance will also be a test of the threats of a lawsuit thrown at the Redskins by the Chicago Tribune, sponsor of the annual All-Star game.

Two Others Make Debuts

Under an agreement with the National League, the Tribune says, Gilmer can't be used in an exhibition game because he wouldn't play for the College All-Stars against the Chicago Cardinals last month in Chicago.

Two other backs will make their debuts with the Redskins along with Gilmer in Birmingham. They are Fullbacks Art Macioszczyk purchased from the Philadelphia Eagles and Art Russ, formerly of Rice Institute.

The Redskins would just as soon forget about what happened to them Monday night and concentrate on the future. The champion Chicago Cardinals romped on the Skins by 46-20 in an exhibition game in the Colorado capital.

Dick Todd, veteran halfback, sustained a knee injury which may keep him out of the line-up until the opening game of the National League season, September 26, with the Pittsburgh Steelers in Washington.

Line Not So Vicious

The loss to the Cardinals apparently proved two things:

1. The Redskin line isn't the man-eating unit that it appeared to be in the Skins' 21-10 victory over the Los Angeles Rams in the season's first exhibition game;

2. The Skins' attack still is principally a one-man, Sammy Baugh affair.

Baugh got in three touchdown passes, all the scoring that the 'Skins could manage. Two went to Hugh Taylor for 14 and 10 yards. The other connected with Rookie Dan Sandifer on one of the game's most exciting plays, covering 83 yards in the second quarter.

Bowie Ties Bogart for Medal at 71

Par got a close shave yesterday during the qualifying round of the District Amateur golf tournament despite some help from the morning rains which softened the Columbia County Club course.

Ralph Bogart, Chevy Chase, and Buddie Bowie, of the host club, came closest to it, touring the wet course in one-over 71s. Right behind them was young Billy Griffin of Prince Georges, shooting a 72.

Bogart and Bowie both lost a stroke to par on the front nine for 36s, and both tightened up on the last nine to equal par 35. Bobby Brownell, seeking his fourth District Amateur title and third in a row, came in with a 76.

Alan Weisberg, the 20-year-old Georgetown student who recently carried off the District Junior Open championship, just got in under the wire with an 81.

In all, 66 entrants played around the soggy courses yesterday. Thirty-two of them, with scores of 82 and under were called out for match play which begins on Thursday.

Pirates Make Triple Play, Defeat Cards

Pittsburgh, Sept. 7 (AP).—The ancient pitching arm of Fritz Ostermueller carried Pittsburgh into second place by a fraction of a percenotage point tonight as the Pirates defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 6 to 2, before 36,136 cheering fans.

The Pirates pulled their second triple play of the season in the first inning.

Al Schoendienst walked and went to second on Marty's Marion's single. Stan Musial, the league's leading slugger, then poked a liner which Shortstop Stan Rojek pulled down. Rojek stepped on second to get Schoendienst and his throw to Johnny Hopp got Marion trying to slide back into first.

Yanks, Bosox Open 'Crucial' Series in Boston

Boston, Sept. 7 (AP).—The red hot Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees open a vital three-game series tomorrow night that may go a long way toward deciding the American League pennant race.

With a sellout assured—upward of 34,000 fans can be packed into Fenway Park—tickets for tomorrow night's first clash are being offered by scalpers for as high as $50 a pair.

With the Sockers a scant game and a half ahead of the second-place New Yorkers, Boston fans are talking little else but these games. Single day tilts are slated for Thursday and Friday.

Eight contests between the two nines remain. Of the 14 already played, the Sockers have won nine, including the last five in a row.

The starting pitchers are Joe Dobson, Red Sox ace hurler, and Frank (Spec) Shea.

D. C. Boxing Solons Laud Themselves

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

THE District Commissioners yesterday learned what an excellent Boxing Commission they have from an authoritative source—the Boxing Commission.

In its annual financial report, the boxing group unblushingly took time to inform the Commissioners of its "enviable reputation among boxing people throughout the country."

It reported "much salutary comment in that premise from outside the District." And the Boxing Commission elaborated with a few well-chosen though anonymous quotes praising it as "a well-balanced commission," "a well-informed commission," "a non-political commission," etc., etc.

The et ceteras were the Boxing Commission's.

A somewhat brighter phase of the report was the fact that total receipts for the year ending June 30 were $252,238.29. Thus, the 61 fight shows staged attracted a greater total gate than the previous year's $239,489.17.

WITH BOXING attendance and receipts declining throughout the rest of the country, local promoters should be heartened by the increasing interest here.

The commission itself has more than an academic interest. Its 10 per cent of the gross gate deposited $28,418.21 to its account.

Even with its $1408.75 expenditures for a television set for "instructional purposes," the commission had a tidy cash balance amounting to $15,000.

Getting personal again, the commission felt it necessary to report that fewer brickbats were

Louis Boxes Here Sept. 20

Joe Louis will box Pat Comiskey of Paterson, N. J., in a six-round exhibition bout here September 20, Promoter Goldie Ahearn said yesterday.

The 27-year-old Comiskey is one of the few heavyweights who never has met Louis. He has a record of 50 knockouts, 11 decisions and one draw. He has been beaten eight times, twice by knockouts.

The boys will fight six two-minute rounds, wearing regular training gloves.

But the fighters will come into the ring in their fighting togs, without head protectors or sweat shirts to help absorb body blows.

According to Ahearn, both think it's enough of a test to call for serious training.

"That Louis can lose the title, you know," observed Ahearn, "if he gets knocked dead in the ring."

Louis has said he will not defend his heavyweight crown again but there have been rumors that he would like "just one more fight."

It might be that this fight, which is not a fight, will help him make up his mind.

Referee Eddie Joseph stopped the bout in the fifth because of a severely cut left eye of Charity's and a split lip. He had not been down.

Drake and Weik were with the Nats in spring training this year. Drake hit 30 home runs for Chattanooga this year.

Nine Local Boys Give GW Distinct Hometown Flavor

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

The 1948 George Washington University football team has a distinct hometown flavor.

Coach Bo Rowland can send nine Washington area boys into a game at the same time.

Guard Dixie Howell, Center Johnny Grinnell, End Dick Koester and Right Halfback Al DuGoff saw regular service last year.

Guard Clarence Drayer and Tackle Duke Mathieson saw considerable action as reserves. Joe Buell and Johnny Shullenbarger divided regular tailback duties on the 1946 G. W. team before becoming ineligible last season.

Only Left Halfback Andy Davis, of the Washington boys, has not played intercollegiate ball. After being chosen All-High back at McKinley Tech in 1945, Andy went into the Army and has since played on service and sandlot football teams.

Davis, Buell and Drayer are Tech High alumni, DuGoff and Koester played at Roosevelt, Howell at Eastern, Grinnell at Washington-Lee of Arlington, Shullenbarger at Coolidge and Mathieson at Anacostia.

Smallest of the Washington contingent at 175 pounds each are Buell, Shullenbarger and Davis.

Shullenbarger will be G. W.'s No. 1 punter. He averaged over 40 yards per try in '46. Buell will be one of the three passing threats. Davis, in early drills, has been the fastest and most deceptive runner on the squad.

Koester is also a key figure. In addition to his activities at end, Dick will play a lot of wingback this season. The 190-pounder showed promise as a runner on enr around plays last season. Now he's showing he can pass with accuracy, too.

Mathieson's 202 pounds are in his favor on a team whose line is light. Grinnell was used on defense last season, with Don Druckenmiller playing center on offense. Now with Druckenmiller gone, Grinnell has a chance for full-time duty.

DuGoff, who attends G. W. on a scholastic scholarship, was the team's best safety man last year, reveling off three punt runbacks of over 50 yards. He's up to 195 pounds, and is running harder.

Feature Won By Miss Prime

Timonium, Md., Sept. 7.—Miss Prime, who just wins and wins and wins for her owner-breeder, James N. Barnes of Owings Mills, Md., did just that again today. She drove to a convincing two-lengths triumph in the sixth and feature attraction, the Grange purse.

This was the tenth win of the year in 17 starts for the daughter of Swashbuckler-Marshy. She was installed the choice by the gathering of 5760 and paid $3.20.

Unfortunately the running of the contest was marred by a spill to Apprentice Edward Dosher, 23-year-old native of the Panhandle sector of Texas.

The track physician said Dosher suffered a possible concussion. He was taken to Baltimore's Bon Secours Hospital for further examination. He was pitched from E. L. Joston's White Easter when the latter appeared to stumble and slip while rounding the first turn.

Dosher had previously ridden Mrs. C. Hadaway's Famas Time to victory in the second race. Those who had the mare coupled in the daily double with W. B. Casilear's Boy Larkmead, a $3.40 winner of the 5½ furlongs first event, received $20.60 for $2.

Citation Arrives At Belmont Park

Aqueduct, N. Y., Sept. 7 (AP).—Citation, accompanied by other Calumet farm horses shipped from Chicago, reached Belmont Park safely today and are deemed certain to send the stable's 1948 earnings well past the million-dollar mark at the meeting which opens there Monday.

Until today, Owner Warren Wright's Calumet horses had gleaned $995,735 this season. Citation, the triple crown victor, is virtually assured of being voted 1948 horse of the year as well as the outstanding 3-year-old. Bewitch, a topnotch filly, and others arrived yesterday, while a third and last group is due at the big Belmont track tomorrow.

Garibaldi Family Wrestles Tonight

Gino Garibaldi, veteran St. Louis grappler, and his 18-year-old son, Leo, will be headlined on tonight's show at Turner's Arena.

The father-and-son combination will tackle Babe Sharkey, former champion, and Lavern Baxter.

Marvin Mercer of Boston and George Macricostas will meet in an added attraction.

Sid's Homer Decides 2d In Eleventh

Philadelphia, Sept. 7 (AP).—Heavy stickwork on the part of Sid Gordon brightened the pennant outlook of the New York Giants to-day as they swept a double-header from the Philadelphia Phillies, 6-1 and 8-6, in 11 innings.

Gordon drove in three runs and collected a pair of doubles in the opening-game triumph and then broke up the nightcap by socking his thirtieth homer of the season with a mate aboard in the eleventh inning.

The double win moved the fifth-place Giants to within 5½ games of the league-leading Boston Braves in the tight National League race. The Giants only trail second-place Brooklyn by 1½ games.

At the same time the Phils dropped from sixth to last place. The idle Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati Reds both moved up a peg.

Andy (Swede) Hansen went the distance for the Giants in the opener. Hansen yielded 10 hits, but coasted all the way as the Giants sewed up the tilt in the second inning with a four-run rally.

JOE MANDELL, in hand while well up early, moved up to challenge JETSAM on the furlong pole and proved gamest in final hard drive. JETSAM, restrained while forcing pace, move to front leaving backlane, then just failed to last. IRISEN set brisk pace and tired. FLAREBACK, trailer early, closed a gap.

Griggs Better After 'Beaning'

Melvin (Mickey) Griggs, former Maryland Park High School outfielder, is recovering at John Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore from head injuries suffered when he was "beaned" August 25 in Palatka, Fla.

The 19-year-old Bradbury Heights, Md., resident was playing for Palatka against Daytona in a Florida State League game when he was hit on the head by a pitched ball.

He was unconscious for several days, and had only partly regained his faculties when his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Griggs arrived in Florida and decided to bring him to the hospital in Baltimore.

Doctors are hopeful he can go home this week.

On the Town

A SHORT time ago we had occasion to talk to an old showman who'd been booker, trouper, publicity man and adviser in his day. This happened about the time the Metropolitan Opera bombshell claimed the public's attention. Everyone had his private idea on the subject and 99 per cent of them came right from the feed box. A few knew for sure that it was strictly a publicity stunt to hyp up the business. Others were equally certain that the board meant what it said. Then came an offer from Billy Rose to take over the opera, modernize it a bit and run it with a guarantee of no financial loss. Once again the straight-from-the-feedboxers had the real low down. It was publicity for the Rose Diamond Horseshoe. It was publicity for Rose. It was . . . well, perhaps the real answer will never come out, but it took our old showman back a number of years to the time the Steel Pier in Atlantic City was offered for sale for something over a million fish.

Shafer

As soon as the story hit Variety (the show world bible), offers came from every point in the country to buy it. One comedy team who had just started the run up the ladder, and have since made it, wired an offer to take the pier. Came the day for the money to be laid on the barrel head and the comics suddenly decided they didn't want the deal. Needless to say, any number of papers had carried the story of their offer before they decided to nix the deal. Answer? Obvious! Of course there were other offers from people who really wanted it, but it was a good example of what people will do to get their names in the paper.

JACK (JIVE) SCHAFER and his orchestra are back from their vacation, which reminds us that some time back Jack came out with the startling news that he was about to enter a theological college. It was startling in view of the songs that Jack has become famous for the past few years. Months have passed (it has been that long, hasn't it?) and Jack is still tootling the trumpet on the Casino Royal bandstand. Not saying, just asking—could it be that a couple of wire services had their wires crossed for them?

The rest of the Casino show consists of comedy juggler and M. C. Ralph English. The boy had the dropsy the night we saw him, or was that the comedy?

Barriera and Margarita go in for the interpretive South American dances, one of which depicts a hen and her boy friend, the rooster. They cluck and coo (pigeons aren't the only ones) around the floor and wind up laying an egg. Literally.

Fall will be here for sure when the Casino breaks out with a line of girls September 14.

Broken wing and all, Guy Lombardo will be here September 15 in the Embassy Room of the Statler. Guy, in case you didn't know, got the broken arm in a recent boat race.

Henrietta Carrick leaves the Annapolis Anchor Room tonight and will be replaced by Carl Parker. Carl, as you know, has played a number of spots here in town recently.

Reno Browne (Monogram movie star), who's been staying at the Wardman, flew up to New York last night with Opal Hadley, publicity gal for the hotel, for dinner with Eddy Dowling. Just by coincidence Eddy is thinking about a couple of musicals for Broadway this season. Could be that Reno (she hails from there, too) will find herself spinning a rope in one of the shows.

Tax Deadline Is Extended

A 30-day extension of the September 30 deadline for payment of real estate taxes in Montgomery County was approved yesterday by the County Commissioners.

The move followed the request for such action by County Treasurer John B. Diamond who said mailing of some tax bills had been delayed.

The delay, he said, was caused by the recent changeover in the county comptroller's office to new business machines.

The official explained that real estate tax bills ordinarily are sent out by the middle of August or the first of September. Rural residents have already received tax bills, he said, and suburban property owners will receive them in the mail within a month.

Imposition of one half of 1 per cent penalty for non-payment of taxes each month will not take effect until November 1 instead of October 1 as a result of the extension, Diamond said.

Grand Jury Fails to Act On Cornelius Accusation

No Indictment Found Against Tax Clerk Who Returned $572

The District Grand Jury yesterday refused to indict Robert A. Cornelius, 34-year-old former clerk and assistant cashier in the District Tax Collectors office, who last month disappeared for 24 hours with $572 in tax funds.

Cornelius, who lives at 2809 51st ave., Dillon Park, Md., and the money were reported missing August 16. Cornelius returned voluntarily after 24 hours and brought back the money intact.

Cornelius, a World War II veteran, was later dismissed by the District Commissioners. Officials said yesterday that he would not be rehired although the grand jury ignored an embezzlement charge against him.

Other Indictments

The grand jury indicted 36 persons yesterday. They included:

James W. Hawkins, jr., 22, of 605 Sheridan st. nw., on a charge of second degree murder of his mother, Mrs. Evelyn F. Hawkins, 44, also of the Sheridan st. address. Mrs. Hawkins was stabbed in the throat with a butcher knife July 20 in the kitchen of her home.

Hawkins later testified at a coroner's inquest that he had used the knife in self-defense during an argument with his mother when he tried to leave home. Her body was discovered by his wife, Mrs. Myrene Hawkins, 22.

Cleveland Sheard, 22, of 321 Virginia ave. sw., was indicted on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon, assault with intent to kill and of carrying a deadly weapon, all in connection with the shooting of Capitol Police Pvt. Fred J. Crenshaw, 1429 B st. ne.

Crenshaw was taking Sheard, who had been picked up for investigation on the U. S. Capitol grounds, to the Senate Office Building, when, police said, Sheard broke free, shot twice at the policeman and fled. The shooting occurred June 27.

Negligent Homicide

Isaac S. Marshall, 18, of 611 62d ave., Fairmont Heights, Md., was indicted on charges of negligent homicide and unauthorized use of a vehicle.

Police said Marshall was operator of a stolen car, which crashed into an electric power pole on Benning ave. se., near Kingman Lake Bridge on June 7. A passenger in the auto, Cecil Neal, 19, of 702 60th pl., Fairmont Heights, was killed.

A former Army lieutenant, Joseph H. Sullivan, 30, arrested in downtown Washington July 1 after a wild flight in a hearse, in a taxi and on foot, was indicted on five counts of robbery.

The chase began, after Sullivan allegedly robbed a clerk in the Mutual Credit Co., Inc., 901 10th st. nw., of $96. He was cornered a short while later in an alley in the rear of the 1100 block of L st. nw.

Sullivan also was indicted in the hold-up and robbery of $399 from an employe of American Airlines, Inc., on February 26; the theft of $40 from a Western Union employe March 30; of $32 from another Western Union employe April 9, and of $48 from a Lydia M. Tremblay, address not given, on April 20.

Edward Wallace, jr., 23, of 931 P st. nw., was indicted for housebreaking and the larceny of whisky, jewelry and cash, valued at $1070, from a home, rented by Secretary of the Interior Krug at 1400 29th st. nw., last November 24.

English Boys Astonished By Likeness to Americans

The Washington Post

THE AMERICAN WAY—Exchange students from England give their approval to an American automatic washing machine. They are (from left) Maxwell J. Tighe, 17; Jock Bruce-Gardyne, 18; David Savill, 17; Peter H. Reay, 18, and Neil Bramson, 18

Five English youths of 17 and 18, nearing the end of asix-week visit to the United States, agreed yesterday the thing that surprised them is that American are very similar to Englishmen.

The boys yesterday arrived in Washington on the trip sponsored by English-speaking Union, which conducts an anuual "youth exchange" between the countries.

"We all had a distorted idea of what Americans were like because of the Hollywood movies," declared Jock Bruce-Gardyne, 18, a student at Winchester College, in an interview at American University, where the boys are staying.

But as the talk went on, comparisons between the two countries brought out plenty of differences, after all.

And as for American radio—a chorus of "horrible"; "one thing we really don't like," and similar remarks compared broadcasts here with those of the BBC. They said they couldn't even describe what they thought of our singing commercials.

Neil Bramson, 18-year-old student at Bryantston School in Dorset, voiced a thought which seemed to express the opinion of all:

"The differences between our two countries which cause irritations sometimes, are only skin deep. I felt that way before I came here, and I feel still more strongly that way now."

St. Elizabeths Aide Indicted For Gaming

A photographer for St. Elizabeths Hospital was one of four persons indicted yesterday by the District grand jury on gambling charges.

He was Leo F. LoJacono, 39, of 3852 Halley tr. se., who was arrested July 7 on charges of operating a lottery and possessing lottery slips, after an elderly patient, named "Pappy", led police to him.

Police said they made several plays with "Pappy", whom they arrested. After a doctor talked to "Pappy" he agreed to turn over his number slips to the man to whom he customarily turned them in, they said. LoJacono accepted the slips in his dark room, while police watched the transaction through a partially opened door, they said.

The grand jury also indicted Ollie E. Green, 40, of 144 Adams st. nw., on charges of operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips. Green was arrested July 20 at the New Center Market, after a police vice squad undercover man made several plays with him with marked money, which was recovered.

Louise Cannon, 29, of 614 3d st. nw., and Geraldine Carter, 21, no fixed address, were indicted on charges of setting up a gaming table, operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips.

The two women were arrested August 15 at the 3d st. address by police, who entered with a search warrant. Police said they found a card game in process in the basement, and that Geraldine Carter was taking money from each pot. They also found a cigar box full of numbers slips on the first floor, they said.

Fuller Paternity Hearing Slated For October 4

A hearing to determine whether Guy H. Fuller, jr., fathered the 2-month-old baby of a 17-year-old Arlington girl is scheduled October 4 in District Juvenile Court, his attorney said yesterday.

Young Fuller, 19, was found guilty May 14 by an Arlington Circuit Court jury of seducing the girl, Miss Shirley Jackson, in her home at 5829 N. 15th st. Fuller's attorney, Earl H. Davis, said he would take an appeal to the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals this week.

Davis added that he would request that a jury hear the paternity charge in Juvenile Court. He said a blood test had failed to eliminate Fuller, who lives at 66 New York ave. nw., as the possible father of Miss Jackson's baby girl.

Fringe Auto Parking Plan Contracted

CTC Would Connect 2 Lots by Shuttle Bus; Temple Heights Project Deferred

Washington's fringe parking program has been temporarily whittled down to a proposal that would provide two parking lots linked by a shuttle bus service.

The lots are those at 3d and Constitution ave. nw., and at 25th and E sts. nw. Temporarily sidetracked is the earlier plan to include the Temple Heights area at 19th and Florida ave. nw., as one parking lot in the setup.

On the shuttle bus service, the Capital Transit Co. has applied to the Public Utilities Commission for extension of its R-6 bus route that would carry it to the Constitution ave. lot and past the 25th st. lot.

Would Experiment

Capital Transit President E. D. Merrill recommended that the shuttle bus service be authorized for a six-month "experimental period" starting September 20. At the end of the six months, the company could withdraw the proposed extra bus service.

Use of Temple Heights for a parking lot has been challenged by owners of the adjoining Wyoming Apartments, and a hearing on their protest has been scheduled for September 29 before the Board of Zoning Adjustment.

Zoning officials said the September 29 hearing would be confined to the question of where on the Temple Heights area the driveways should be located for the shuttle bus service that would link it with the downtown business section. The board already has approved use of the Temple Heights area for parking.

Too Close to Apartment

The hearing is an outgrowth of an appeal by John L. Barr, an owner of the Wyoming Apartments, filed by Attorney John L. Barr, jr., saying that one of the proposed bus driveways at Temple Heights would be 20 feet from the Wyoming Apartment property line.

Merrill's new shuttle bus application left out service to the Temple Heights area and also the earlier idea of special transportation fares being sold by the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency to users of the fringe parking lots. Standard fares would be charged and regular transfer privileges would be given on the shuttle buses under the new proposal.

In Hyattsville

Contract Let For Parking Meters

An $11,700 contract for 200 parking meters, to be delivered and set up within the next three weeks, was awarded last night by Hyattsville City Council.

The meters, to be installed on a nine-month trial basis, will be furnished by the Michaels Art Bronze Co., Covington, Ky., which submitted the lowest bid.

Councilman Hiram Lawrence, chairman of the police committee, moved the contract be awarded the Covington firm and the motion was carried by a 5-3 vote.

The council also heard a recommendation by Chief J. W. Just, director of the University of Maryland's fire service extension, that Hyattsville's present firefighting force be doubled.

Chief Just suggested the addition of three paid firemen during the day, and two more for night duty. The cost, he estimated, would be about $7500 a year more. His recommendations were referred to Councilman Frederick M. Coxen, fire committee chairman, for study and report.

The council also directed its attorney to prepare an amendment to the city ordnance to require a manual fire gong alarm system in apartment buildings.

Two Virginians—Dr. Paul Sanders of Richmond and Charles T. O'Neill of Charlottesville—were named yesterday by Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder to a national agricultural savings bond committee.

Soldier Shot In Near-Riot Held for Jury

Army Pvt. Eugene Butts, 22, who was shot by a policeman in a near-riot at Queen and Fayette sts., Alexandria, July 24, was held for the grand jury yesterday in Alexandria Police Court on three counts.

Butts, who is stationed at Fort Belvoir, was charged with felonious assault, obstructing justice and disorderly conduct, and was held in $2500 bond.

Police testified they answered a call and found a large crowd gathered. When they tried to disperse the crowd, they said, Butts refused to move. Officer Charles Baber arrested him and put him in the police car, but Butts jumped out the other side.

There followed a chase and a scuffle in which Baber said Butts and another man, Joseph Hunt, 20, of 720 Gibbon st., Alexandria, attacked him. When Butts tried to grab Baber's gun, Officer William Cater shot Butts in the groin, Baber said. Butts argued he tried to grab the gun only so Baber couldn't shoot him. Hunt will be tried today on similar charges.

Leroy to Teach Course In Aviation Law

Howard S. Leroy, member of the District bar, will teach a course in aviation law at National University beginning September 20, Judge George P. Barse, chancellor, announced yesterday. The course, to be given Monday evenings from 6:30 to 8:40, will cover international, national and local phases of aeronautical law.

Faulty Alexandria Ordinance Ends Daylight Time Too Soon

Alexandria, which has trouble enough telling time in the summer, was in a tizzy yesterday, when it was learned that a faulty ordinance had put the city back on standard time three weeks ahead of schedule.

The City Council, at a special meeting May 1, adopted an ordinance putting the city on daylight saving time. The ordinance provided that the city should revert to Standard Time September 6—instead of September 26, when Washington and the rest of northern Virginia will change.

After his telephone had rung all morning with queries, City Manager Nicholas A. Colasanto solved the problem so far as the city government is concerned, in a directive to department heads.

His solution: City clocks will be set back an hour to comply with the city law, and city employes will go to work an hour earlier than usual for the next three weeks.

City employes will go to work at 8 a. m. standard time, but since this is the same as 9 a. m. daylight saving time, there will actually be no change. The only change to be made by the city is the mechanical operation of setting back the clocks.

James R. Duncan, Civil and Police Court judge, said he would follow the same procedure. Court will be conducted during the regular time, but the clock on the wall will read an hour early.

Merchants questioned said they planned no change in their hours of business until Monday, September 27, when the whole area changes back.

Colasanto said Alexandria's time ordinance was passed at a time when it was not known when surrounding communities would revert to standard time.

Volunteer Firemen Study and Drill at M. U.

By Charles DelVecchio—The Washington Post

LADDER-CLIMBING LESSON—This might be a bird's eye view of firemen on a ladder. The young men, taking the short course for firemen at the University of Maryland, are (left, top to bottom) Thomas Mattingly, 16, of Leonardtown; James Yeager, 22, of Hagerstown; and Billy Mentges, 16, of Silver Hill; and (right, top to bottom) Dick Gulick, 18, of Landover; Thomas J. Boone, 18, of Mount Airy, and Paul Welch, 18, of Glen Dale.

More than 200 volunteer firemen who like their job well enough to devote their spare time to learning modern fire fighting methods turned out yesterday for the fifteenth annual course for firemen at the University of Maryland.

The men, from companies all over Maryland, were welcomed to the campus by James W. Just, director of the university's fire service extension, who started them on a four-day program of study and demonstrations.

Husky smoke-eaters eagerly jostled one another to be first up the long extension ladders in a demonstration conducted by Chief Karl A. Young of the Mount Rainier fire department. Others sat with furrowed brows as Chief Lloyd Layman of the Parkersburg, W. Va., fire department, discussed the intricate problems of pumps, pressures and friction losses.

Landon Walston, president of the Maryland State Firemen's Association, spoke to the firemen earlier in the day and L. C. Davies, consultant in the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, explained how to handle fires in crashed aircraft.

Today and Thursday more advanced study will be taken. The work these two days will include a demonstration on "Fire Magic," showing the ways fires start and spread, procedures on use of gas masks in smoke-filled rooms and problems of automatic fire protection.

Friday there will be demonstrations of fire-resistant paint, radio fire alarm system and "wet water," the chemical treatment to water to increase its effectiveness in fighting fire.

New Hearings Scheduled on Housing Fees

Commissioner Guy Mason said yesterday more conferences will be held before a final decision is made on new standard definitions for licensing public housing accommodations in the District.

A proposed new set of definitions was the target of sharp protest from hotel, boarding and rooming house operators in a hearing before the Commissioners.

Mason said interested parties would be given a further chance to talk over the definitions with the committee that drafted them. The committee is headed by Assistant Coorporation Counsel Milton Korman.

The second installment of public hearings is slated for 10 a. m. October 6 in the Board Room of the District Building on the allied question of proposed new fees based on the new definitions for different types of public housing accommodations.

D. C. A. Heavy Loser

Aim of the proposed new fee schedules is to make them cover the cost of licensing, inspecting, and supervising public housing accommodations. Korman's committee found that the fees now bring in about $187,000 a year, while the cost of the services is some $497,000 a year.

Biggest protest in the hearing was against a definition of "tenement houses" to be used in the setting up of new fees. As written, witnesses protested, the tenement house definition would apply to many apartment buildings offering "bachelor apartments with a bath but no kitchen.

Commissioner Mason said he agreed with those who objected to use of the word "tenement" in the new definitions. "It's a lousy word," he said. "They ought to find another term that's honest but still doesn't make a place sound like a dump."

One witness, Paul J. Miller of the Washington Guest House Association estimated some 4500 rooming houses are operating in Washington without the licenses they should have. He charged police had been negligent in checking such rooming houses. He claimed a house-to-house check would bring the District another $50,000 a year in fees.

Other witnesses included Attorney William E. Leahy and Charles J. Rush for the Washington Real Estate Board; Attorney Joseph C. McGarraghy of the Washington Hotel Association; Camden R. McAtee of the Pennsylvania Hotel, James A. Cobb of the Washington Housing Association, James Crane of the District Chapter, Institute of Real Estate Management; Charles J. Bauer of the Building Owners and Managers Association of Metropolitan Washington, Leon L. Sclawy of the D. C. Housing Operators, Inc.; Ernest F. Henry, who said he spoke for the Petworth Citizens Association, as a member of the Homebuilders Association, and as counsel for several clients, and Norman Altman, representing Fairmac Corp.

Citizens Council to Meet

The North Washington Council of Citizens Associations will discuss area problems tonight at 8:15 in the Sixth Precinct police station, Nicholson st. near 14th nw. Dr. Benjamin Striner will preside.

Spider Web Derby

1 Snake Free, 1 Snared in Arlington

The score in Arlington's spider-versus-snake struggle yesterday read: One snake free, one all tied up.

Free and slithering about in its native habitat yesterday was the slim, 6-inch snake caught in a spider web in the basement of Harmon J. Swink's home at 4866 Old Dominion dr.

According to Mrs. Swink, the reptile freed itself yesterday morning from its basement noose and dropped to a wash tub below. Mrs. Swink's 10-year-old son, Barrett, then freed it in some nearby woods.

Arlington County's Animal Welfare League, meanwhile, was concerned about the second snake, still trapped in a spider web in the basement of Army Sergt. Robert H. Anderson's home at 4200 S. 4th st.

League President Mrs. Paul M. Twyne, who had wired the American Humane Association in Albany, N. Y., for instructions on her legal rights, said the national organization had advised her by phone that:

1. The term "cruelty to animals" includes maltreatment of such cold-blooded specimens as turtles—and snakes.

2. This definition stood a court test in 1890.

The Animal Welfare League, however, will not take legal action, Mrs. Twyne said.

3-Month-Old Twin Found Dead in Crib

A 3-month-old infant was pronounced dead at Gallinger Hospital at 9 p. m. yesterday shortly after it was found unconscious in its crib.

The discovery was made by Mrs. Edith Pine, 1361 C st. ne., who had been taking care of the baby, Stanley Lee. The child was one of twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lee, 611 H st. ne. Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District Coroner, will perform an autopsy today.

35,000 in Area Begin School Terms Today

Public schools in Prince Georges County and Alexandria will open today.

Fairfax County public schools and some parochial schools in Alexandria and Arlington began their fall terms yesterday.

In Fairfax, school officials expected enrollment to reach 12,000 within a month or six weeks.

An estimated 23,500 Prince Georges County children will troop back to school today.

Only one school, the newly built Landover Hills School, will not be ready. Children who will attend it will register there today, with classes expected to begin Monday.

District and Montgomery County schools will open Monday, followed Tuesday by Arlington County schools.

Meanwhile, registration of District students will be completed Thursday, with all schools open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Registration for Montgomery County students will be held Thursday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at all schools.

Today, however, all students going into junior high school who did not attend an elementary school in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase areas will register at Leland Junior High School from 2:30 to 4 p.m. They may also register from 3 to 4 p.m. there on Thursday.

Arlington school children will register Monday, the day before classes take up.

The opening date for parochial schools is Thursday in the District, Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties. St. Mary's Academy, Alexandria, will also open Thursday.

St. Thomas More School, Arlington, will begin Friday.

$180 Theft Reported

Milton Polinger, real estate man, reported to police yesterday that thieves jimmied a cash drawer in his offices, 1015 11th st. nw., durlug the Labor Day weekend and removed $180 in bills. Entrance was through a rear window.

County P-TA Plans for Fight On 'Anti-School Propaganda'

Leaders of Parent-Teacher Associations in Montgomery County will study methods of combating "antischool propaganda" at a P-TA workshop set for September 15.

Without mentioning by name a Bethesda parents' group that has been critical of school leaders, the county council of P-TA declared in a release yesterday announcing the workshop:

"The council has become increasingly aware of the need of training P-TA leaders in methods and techniques of organizing community support for better schools and combating antischool propoganda.

At the workshop, to be held at Richard Montgomery High, Rockville, at 7:30 p. m., leaders of the county council will emphasize "values of shaping a constructive and effective approach to the solution of local school problems," it was explained.

President Nathan R. Gilbert of the council said the workshop would also concern itself with "governmental and community lethargies or outright reaction with respect to the school crisis."

Present "serious" conditions in county schools were blamed by Gilbert on overcrowding, too few qualified teachers and inadequate financing. He said present school deficiencies are not the fault of the board of education or school officials.

Proposed changes in the county school curriculum are to be acted on today by the Board of Education at a special meeting in Rockville at 8 p. m. The changes were recommended last month by a workshop sponsored by the board of education, with 4 teachers participating.

Va. School Equalization Test Slated For Today

Negro Proponent To Scan Changes Ordered by Court In Facilities

The issue of equal educational facilities may come to a boil in Virginia today when Martin A. Martin, Richmond attorney and Negro leader for equalization, inspects the King George Training School for Negroes.

Martin said yesterday he will see if improvements at the school comply with Federal Judge Sterling Hutcheson's order that facilities be equalized. If they don't, then he will appear for any of the approximately 30 pupils he represents at the Negro school who wish to apply for enrollment in white King George County schools Thursday.

Official's Solution

Greater use of both Negro and white consolidated schools was proposed yesterday as a solution of the problem by Dr. G. Tyler Miller, State superintendent of public instruction. He said King George County might try to follow the example of Stafford County, which has a contract with Fredericksburg, under which Negro pupils from the county are taught in the city's Negro school.

Martin opposed Dr. Miller's proposal, saying:

"Actually he is proposing regional, not consolidated schools. Perhaps all the white high schools in the county might be consolidated into one large school, but the colored children, with fewer pupils per school, probably would be consolidated into one school for each three or four counties. Some colored children might have to travel 40 or 50 miles to attend.

"In Working Condition"

T. Benton Gayle, division superintendent of schools in King George and Stafford counties, advised that Martin would inspect the King George Training School, said:

"I hope there won't be any trouble. I would prefer he wouldn't, but I don't suppose it makes much difference. The school is in working condition. Eight of its rooms are used for high school training, six for elementary grades."

The Fairfax County School Board, meanwhile, rejected a petition signed by 186 residents asking the county to pay tuition at District schools for Negro high and junior high pupils.

County School Superintendent W. T. Woodson said the board rejected the proposal because the county already helps maintain a regional high school in Manassas for Negroes from four counties, and the Virginia constitution forbids teaching whites and Negroes in the same school. A similar petition was rejected last spring.

5 Added Here To Polio List; 2 Are Adults

Greater Washington's polio count rose to 120 yesterday with a holiday weekend listing of five new area cases in District hospitals.

The new cases were: A 9-year-old boy of the 1700 block of Hay st. se., admitted to Children's Hospital September 1; a 9-year-old girl of the 800 block of M st. nw., admitted to Gallinger September 3; a 9-year-old girl of the 2800 block of 13th st. ne., admitted to Gallinger September 3; a 33-year-old man of the 2500 block of Q st. nw., admitted to Gallinger September 4, and a 35-year-old Falls Church, Va., woman, admitted to Gallinger September 4.

In addition, a 7-year-old girl from Leesburg, Va., was admitted to Children's Hospital September 4 for polio treatment.

The new cases brought this year's District polio count to 65, and the count for nearby Maryland and Virginia communities to 55. The corresponding figures for the same time last year were 6 District cases and 14 non-District cases from nearby areas.

Man Shot 7 Times Ruled a Suicide

The bizarre death of Tang Chim, who was found shot seven times in the abdomen last Thursday, a .32-caliber automatic pistol at his side, was ruled suicide yesterday.

The 35-year-old Chinese had jumped ship to enter this country illegally and feared deportation, police said. At the time his bullet-riddled body was found in bed in his room at 518 H st. nw. he was under bond, pending a deportation hearing, according to police.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said it was possible for the man to have shot himself seven times because the bullets pierced his liver and thus did not cause immediate loss of faculties.

Police reported they had to force open the door to Chim's room, locked from the inside after they had been summoned by a maid.

Butter and Egg Man Fined

A wholesale butter and egg dealer, who forgot to appear in District Court as a prospective juror for the September petit jury, was fined $25 for contempt of court yesterday by Judge Jennings Bailey.

He is William F. Huhn, 1312 C st. ne., who explained that his business kept him so busy that he didn't remember he was t obe a member of the jury panel this month.

Thank YOU, Mrs. Civitate, for helping us tell about Post "Apartment Wanted" ads!

The Washington Post Company

Gentlemen:

I wish to take this opportunity in thanking you for helping me secure just the right kind of an apartment.

When I married in May of this year and was looking for a place to live, everyone kept telling me it was impossible to find an apartment in Washington for the price an average person could afford to pay. But I had heard so much about the good luck people got from running ads in The Post, I decided I would at least try it.

I put my ad in The Post to run over Saturday, Sunday and Monday. At 9:30 Saturday morning, I began receiving calls. The calls were for all kinds of apartments -- from light housekeeping rooms to buying the furniture in order to get the apartment. But I still held out for something I really wanted. So finally on the third day, I not only found the kind of apartment I wanted but $10 less than I had expected to pay. And I was still receiving calls on the fourth day, even though my ad only ran for three days.

My utmost thanks to The Washington Post.

Sincerely yours,

Mrs. Frank Civitate

By Elizabeth Maguire

TOP rank of the Navy attended the reception given yesterday by the Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral Louis Denfeld, and Mrs. Denfeld. The party was held at the admiral's house at the Naval Observatory in honor of Admiral Sir Henry and Lady Moore, whose marriage took place a little over a week ago.

It was a farewell party, as the Admiral and his lady are leaving for London soon. Sir Henry will be replaced as head of the Navy staff of the British Joint Services Mission here by Sir Frederick Dalrymple Hamilton. Yesterday's gathering was to have served as an introduction to Sir Frederick and Lady Dalrymple-Hamilton as well, but the Queen Elizabeth on which they arrived in New York docked later than expected, and they were unable to reach Washington in time.

When addressed as "Lady Moore" at the party, the former Mrs. Theodore Wilkinson laughed and said, "I still jump." She was charmingly costumed in powder blue crepe and a small white hat. On her shoulder were pinned a spray of small white orchids and a gardenia corsage.

Decorating Flair

Mrs. Denfeld wore a long pink frock pinned with orchids. Her flair for decorating has turned the Admiral's house into one of the most attractive spots around Washington. She has mixed soft blue chintz with old gold hangings and blue prints. In the different rooms, there are pictures of ships, and models of ships, with space and air around everything and no sense of clutter.

At yesterday's party, masses of peach gladioli decorated the house. The Navy Orchestra played on the winding veranda and guests strolled out on the parklike lawn. In the blue dining room, tea and coffee were served, along with cakes and sandwiches.

The Secretary of the Navy, John L. Sullivan, attended, as well as the Undersecretary of the Navy and Mrs. W. John Kenney and the Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air, John Nicholas Brown.

Gen. and Mrs. Omar Bradley were among the first to drive up to the house. Other early arrivals were Gen. and Mrs. Hoyt Vandenberg and Gen. and Mrs. Lauris Norstad. Admiral William D. Leahy was there, and attractive Miss Pauline Morgan, who has just returned from a trip to Canada and Maine.

Diplomats There

A diplomatic contingent included the Minister of New Zealand and Lady Berendsen, the Minister of South Africa and Mrs. Andrews, the British Minister, R. F. Hoyer Millar, and the Naval Attache of the Australian Embassy and Mrs. Spurgeon.

Still others were Lady Wilson, Capt. Floyd Ferris, Admiral James Holloway of the United States Naval Academy; Maj. Gen. and Mrs. J. A. Gascoigne, Capt. and Mrs. Walter Karig and Capt. and Mrs. Howard A. Yaeger.

It was the first big party of the season, attended by over 250 guests.

Divorcee Who Lives in Community Where Her Status Is Considered a Stigma, Is Dropped By Suitor; She Wonders if Gossip Moved Him?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 28 and have been divorced for the past year or so. As to the divorce, I had no alternative, and I feel it to be a great misfortune, but I live in a neighborhood where most of the people seem to regard it as a stigma, and consequently I have developed an inferiority complex.

Recently a young man in the community, a passing acquaintance, began getting friendly. He asked me to accompany him to the theater; we had five or six dates thereafter, and during this time he showed signs of becoming quite seriously interested. I'm sure he admired me and I felt his admiration growing deeper.

Then suddenly he passed out of the picture, giving no explanation, which puzzles me profoundly. I am serious minded and don't believe in playing around and he impressed me as being the same. He gave me no reason to think otherwise.

Girl's Family Reproaches Her

MY FAMILY is of the opinion that he didn't know I was divorced until somebody told him, whereupon he dropped me, thinking I had been trying to "put one over" on him. They say I should have told him in the beginning, but I don't agree. First, of all, I took for granted that he knew; and secondly, I don't feel that I should have discussed personal history so soon.

If the question of marriage had arisen, naturally I would have felt obliged to tell him, but in the circumstances I didn't think it necessary at the time. After all, what's so wrong about being divorced? If he or any other man really loved me, would it matter? If another gentleman asks me out, should I tell him right off I'm divorced? I am very despondent about the situation and fervently solicit your advice. F. C.

Girl's Attitude Unduly Hangdog

DEAR F. C.: Although you don't owe passing acquaintances or would-be beaux an introductory announcement of your divorced status, I think that in fairness you should disclose the fact to any man whose trust and affection you are courting, if he seems not to know it. And you should read it into the record well in advance of lovemaking or marriage talk.

There is nothing infamous about divorce, per se, so you don't need to feel guiltily reticent about it, especially if you weren't the defaulting party.

If divorce were a social crime, it would be prohibited by law, which instead authorizes legal dissolution of marriage, as a humane service to the plaintiff (if imperfect solution of the trouble), in cases where the defendant's neglect of duty or disorderly behavior is manifestly damaging to the plaintiff's welfare.

Her Environment Is Handicapping

SO MUCH for that. Now for the rest. The young man's disappearing-act, also your family's unpleasant disposition to blame you for his ungallantry, suggests that you live in a problem-environment, amongst problem-personalities, where negative influences are so strong that you were early conditioned to feel "small" and despised, and where the potentials of good human relations hardly exist.

All of which means that your reverses in love, thus far, ought to be reckoned part of your general misfortune, and not your "fault." In all probability the Recording Angel grants you "A—for effort" in trying to grope your way to a life worthwhile.

The young man didn't drop you because you are a divorcee and hadn't mentioned it. He ran from serious interest that was beginning to develop on your part or his; something he hadn't counted on when he initiated the flirtation, I daresay. I think he had light intentions in mind from the first, sparked by gossip he'd heard about your divorce, and took to his heels when he realized you weren't the play-girl type and were looking ahead to a declaration of love and marriage offer. M. H.

Spankings Don't Always Help

If you are a stern parent who advocates an old fashioned spanking as a corrective for a spoiled child, you probably won't succeed in helping him mend his irritating habits. However, the other extreme—sweet reasonableness—is not effective either.

The best ways of handling a spoiled child, says Evelyn Beyer in The Woman's Home Companion, is a firm, good-humored approach to his problems. Also mothers should keep a double check on their nagging irritability—because their children reflect the same attitude. It is a wise parent who realizes that both excessive indulgence and excessive demands damage the formative years of a youngster's life. As a final hint the Companion urges: Take some of the grimness out of rearing children. It is not the indulgence that spoils, but the spirit of the indulgence.

Slim Waistline Is Needed for Fall Clothes

By Ida Jean Kain

Shortly after Labor Day many a woman is vexed to find the cleaner has shrunk that good dark dress she had counted on to start the season. It fitted perfectly when it was sent to the cleaners at the end of spring. Now it isn't fit to wear. The very idea... she will have to get something new.

"What size, please?" the salesgirl inquires, surreptitiously measuring her with a practiced eye... "An 18?"

"Size 16," indignantly. (She's taken a 16 for years.)

"Why this is ridiculous!" she fumes. (She has never taken anything larger than a 16 in her life.) But finally she is forced to face the fact that she cannot blame the cleaner, or the designer. And she thinks back to all those picnic suppers and cooling beverages. Although she has gained only 6 or so pounds, she drifted through the lazy summer days without taking any exercise and the result is flabby muscles.

Generally it's the waist that pinches. There is a 2-inch difference at the waistline from one size to the next. The accepted standard of the dress industry in misses' sizes goes like this: 25 inches for size 12, 26½ inches for size 14, 28 inches for size 16, 30 inches for size 18 . . . let's stop there.

As our customer stands there in her pink slip and a dilemma, wondering if she should take the 16, let out, or break down and take size 18, she is weighing her future in the balance. If she's smart she will not take either. She will go home and get down to proper size before buying anything. If she takes the size 16, altered, she is fooling herself that she can still wear her same size. If she settles for an 18, there is room to grow—bigger.

AT LAST, THE LOOK YOU'RE LOOKING FOR The "YOU" Look

This Kind of Look and That Kind of Look and Some Other Kind of Look are constantly being featured by stylists these days.

But, of course, any Look that is too impersonal to pay any attention to YOU is looking in the wrong direction.

As featured by us, the "YOU" Look is not some vague abstraction we have put into a phrase, but an intimate reflection of YOU as its source.

The "YOU" Look looks to You for its Inspiration, and to Us for its expression and the Result is quite Different from Ordinary Looks.

Yours for the You-ness of "You"

Teen-Agers Dance With Servicemen

Parents of Washington teen-agers chartered the SS Potomac last evening for a moonlight cruise. Several hundred marines now stationed at Quantico were guests on the cruise. The parents who gave the cruise are a group comprised of religious, social and business organizations.

The same committee of parents were hosts to two battalions from Fort Meade and other service units on Monday night.

Houskeepers Alliance To Dissolve

The D. C. Housekeeperss' Alliance will write finis to its 40 years of history in the Nation's Capital by converting its treasury balance into a gift for Children's Hospital. Augmented by donations from former members, the money will be presented to hospital officials, Thursday 2:30 p. m. at the hospital entrance on W st., between 12th and 13th. The gift will be used to purchase a baby's incubator.

John Martin, assistant director of Children's Hospital, will receive the gift from Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, who served three terms as president of the Alliance. Also representing the hospital will be Dr. Joseph S. Wall, chairman of the medical staff.

At that time the unique organization, devoted to homemaking—the oldest of the arts and the newest of the professions—will formally dissolve. Following the death of the Alliance's president, Mrs. Mary Wright Johnson, in September 1946, the members voted to disband and to donate the treasury balance to Children's Hospital.

Of the 14 women who served as president of the organization from 1906 to 1946 only four are still liiving. These include Mrs. Ruth Snodgross, Mrs. Henry Fenno Sawtelle, Mrs. Frederick Newburgh and Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley.

Organized in November, 1907, definite aim of the Alliance was to improve the efficiency of domestic workers and to study the domestic problem from the standpoint of the homemakers and the workers. To accomplish its objective, the Alliance took up the work of a committee of women who banded together in February 1906 to equlp a kitchen for the training of colored domestics. This was done in cooperation with a private dressmaking and millinery school already in operation in the city. An experienced cook donated her services for six months. Later the school itself assumed operation, with the Alliance giving moral and financial support. Later a sanitary laundry was equipped under the direction of the Alliance and operated at the school. Eventually a school of housekeeping was established to train domestic workers in practical household work.

Other accomplishments of the Alliance included establishment of an adequate reference system in employment agencies, a study of wage schedules for trained and untrained workers at the request of employment agencies, a registry and an exchange bureau.

What to Serve at October Luncheon

Can you help me with some suggestions for an October luncheon for which I am chairman? As we get only 40 cents for our luncheon, we are limited to a budget. Usually we serve between 45 and 50. First about the decorations, I would like to use something other than pumpkins and goblins. In the past at the luncheons a salad or hot dish, dessert and coffee were served. As I am new at this sort of entertaining I will appreciate any suggestions you can make. I would like to make preparations in advance. M. P.

A harvest theme for your luncheon would be appropriate in October. For decorations you could use many colored autumn leaves, dried ears of corn, autumn fruits or a combination of any of the above. If you serve the lunch buffet style, the serving table could be made colorful by using a huge bowl of autumn fruits in the center with small branches of autumn leaves on the table radiating out from the fruit bowl. Or, with a little extra work, you could have the fruit tumbling out of a horn of plenty in the center of the table. The horn could be made by rolling a heavy piece of brown paper in a cone shape and fastening it with tape. If you wished to decorate the cone you could wrap stripes of yellow and orange crepe paper around the cone. To do this, fasten the paper strips at the small end of the cone and wind them spirally the length of the cone, fastening them with tape at the large end. These decorations arranged on a pale yellow table cloth would be beautiful.

Because of your limited budget, perhaps one of the committee would furnish the fruit with the idea of having it for her own use later. As for a menu, here's one which should come within your budget nicely: Ring of Plenty (recipe follows); relishes and pickles or tossed green salad, baked apple with hard sauce or apple pie, coffee.

The Ring of Plenty is a very substantial macaroni ring which has a different flavor and is really very good. Here's the recipe:

RING OF PLENTY

- 3 cups cooked macaroni (½ lb. uncooked)
- 2 cups diced cheese (yellow mild American)
- 2 cups soft bread crumbs
- 2 tablespoons minced parsley
- 3 pods pimiento, minced (one small can)
- 6 tablespoons butter or margerine
- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 2 cups milk, scalded
- 2 eggs, well beaten
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper

Cook macaroni in 4 quarts boiling salted water until tender (about 15 minutes). Drain and cut into ½ to 1-inch pieces. Combine with all other ingredients. Pour into butter ring mold or loaf pans and bake. Place the baking pans in pans of water before baking to prevent over-cooking and possible separation of the ingredients. Unmold and serve hot. Bake at 350 degrees F for 35 minutes. This recipe will serve 10 persons very generously.

PETUNIA!

I mixed it with OOPS!
For goodness sake!
. . . It would have been
A lovely cake!

Too bad, Petunia! But those slips wouldn't happen if you'd just put a damp cloth under your mixing bowl.

We are going to move into our new home in four weeks and I have several questions that I hope you can help me with—all about our floors. They are parquet, laid over a radiant heat system and here are my questions: Will rugs cut down on heating efficiency too much?

Heating engineers seem to agree that the use of rugs on floors containing radiant heat pipes does not materially decrease the efficiency of the system. When thoroughly heated, the rugs become the temperature of the floor and then they radiate heat in much the same way the bare floor would.

My son is getting married at the end of September. The bride is wearing white with a veil. She is having four attendants with a flower girl. What should the groom and his attendants wear? The wedding is going to be a church affair at 8 o'clock in the evening. We all think that formals should be worn. G. C. G.

For an evening church wedding, the groom and his attendants may wear tuxedos with black tie or the strictly formal evening tail coats, white tie, vests, gloves and shirt with a stand-up wing collar preferable.

Is there a way to launder "feather pillows" and still retain the softness?" J. B.

Unless you know the pillows to be filled with feathers, I would suggest you not attempt to launder them or clean them in any way. But, if they are feather pillows, with care they can be laundered at home successfully. First, transfer the feathers to another bag, more porous than the ticking and at least twice as large. To transfer the feathers, sew the openings of the two bags together so that you can shake the feathers from one to the other with none escaping. Now, wash the feathers in the larger bag. Wash gently by hand, squeezing the suds of mild soap and lukewarm water through them. Or, you could wash them in your washer, not letting them run more than 5 minutes. Rinse well and hang on the line in the bag to dry, punching the bag occasionally during the drying process to fluff them and separate the feathers. You will find it much easier to dry them if you wait for bright, low humidity weather to wash them. When feathers dry too slowly they develop an unpleasant odor. Be sure to dry them thoroughly before putting them back into the washed or new ticking.

My husband's olive drab cotton shorts which he had in service have become too large. They are made of unusually fine heavy cotton material and he likes them. Besides tailoring, is there anyway of making these shorts smaller, by shrinking (by what method) or any other means? R. H.

It seems there is no way to reduce the size of these shorts except by tailoring, as you suggest.

I would like to paint my living room rug. I have heard this was not too hard to do. Can you tell me how to go about it? What kind of paint to use, etc. It is a fiber rug. It is also reversible, but it has had things spilled on it that have gone through to the other side. H. L.

It is not at all difficult to paint a fiber rug. Use awning paint, or a good quality of house paint thinned with turpentine in the proportion of one part turpentine to three parts of paint. Have the rug as free from dust and grease as you can get it, then place several layers of newspaper under it. As you apply the paint, work it well into the fibers of the rug.

When I removed two satin down puffs from the box where I had them stored for the summer, I found them full of tiny holes. I have "bombed" them thoroughly although I see no traces of moths or other insects. Do you know of any place where I can have them recovered? Should I do anything else to them? C. C. B.

A firm which recovers and renovates comforters can be reached by calling Ordway 1812. When they remove the cover and see the condition of the filler they will be able to tell you whether or not they need more than covering. If you find the filling is undamaged, the holes in the cover might have been caused by silverfish. They feed on rayons and the sizing in fabrics and have been known to do extensive damage to such things as wedding veils, etc. So, the next time you store it, it would be wise to put some fresh pyrethrum power to protect against silverfish into the box.

Non-Wrinkle Ribbon

Taffeta ribbon now being woven on nylon should retain its freshness and shape. A crisp bow will not wilt, it is said, and though wrinkles may appear temporarily when the ribbon is untied from a bow, they will hang out and in a short time the fabric will be smooth again.

Fresh Beef

Raw beef should be firm and elastic to the touch. The color of the lean part should be bright and glistening and slightly mottled with white. The fat should be white and firm and free from blood stains. The juice should be bright red when the meat is cut.

HAROLD GOODING, head interior decorator at the William E. Miller Furniture Co., and Miss Eva Bryant, assistant decorator, plan the arrangement of the furniture in the spacious living room of a "Home of '48." The house is located at 5203 28th Parkway in Hillcrest Heights near Silver Hill, and will be opened to the public on September 12

Clear Colors, Modern Lines Used in Monterey Home of '48

By Lucia Brown

LIGHT, CLEAR COLORS and fine contemporary furniture will make the Monterey-Modern house in the "Homes of '48" show both lovely to look at and easy to live with.

The sort of modern furniture of which one doesn't tire will be used by William E. Miller Co., in the house built by Paul F. Stone.

"You might call it 'dignified' modern," says J. Harold Gooding, head interior decorator at Miller's. "It's lines are smooth and sleek and its colors are unusual. But there are none of those contorted shapes and loud tones sometimes associated with exaggerated modern."

The house itself, located in Hillcrest Heights, is the inspiration for the way the Miller company is furnishing it.

Built on a hillside, it has two huge picture windows in a combination living room and dining room that looks off down a wooded valley. The entrance is through a reception room in the basement, and the living room is on the second floor in front, though it is ground level at the back. Over the entrance is a recessed Mexican balcony, with an iron grillwork railing.

Light and Airy

The furnishings will be in keeping with the light, airy architecture of this modern house. Beige, coral and green are the colors used in the T-shaped living-dining room. Walls are minted green, woodwork a slightly darker green, and the deep-piled rug is beige.

A wall of glass brick separates the room from the stairway from the downstairs reception room. Against this is a bookcase painted green outside and coral inside, with a fluorescent lighting arrangement on top. Draperies are off-white, flowered in chartreuse, cedar green and coral. There are green-and-white striped compantio nchairs, a green sofa, and two coral chairs.

A smoky, London gray was used in carpeting the master bedroom of the house, where the furniture is a combination of dark African mahogany and blonde Korina mahogany. Three walls are papered in gray and the third in a modern floral print of cocoa, green, gold and gray. The cascade draperies are green.

Limed oak is used in the second bedroom of the house. Walls are chartreuse and draperies an unusual floral print in fuchsia, gray and chartreuse. Chartreuse spreads and fuchsia scatter rugs emphasize the color scheme.

Homes of '48 To Open Sunday

September 12 is the opening date for the "Homes of '48" exhibit, which will include this Monterey-Modern model house and 12 others. The public is invited to inspect the homes, located in various sections of the city, during a four-week period. All homes open simultaneously at 12:30 p. m., September 12, and will be open thereafter from 2 to 9 p. m. weekdays and 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. Sundays through October 5.

The Washington Post, 13 furniture dealers, and 13 builders are sponsoring this housing show.

THE bedroom suite in the Hillcrest Heights hodel home is made of two types of mahogany—blonde Korina and rich, dark African

A message to the Jewish Parent:

Do you plan to DISINHERIT your children?

Of course, you don't! But you may if you overlook or postpone a great—yet simple obligation—your children's Jewish education!

Rabbi Meir said: "Whosoever studies the Torah is not only meritorious but renders all of humanity indebted to him. For such study imbues him with friendliness, love of God and love of man; it clothes him in humanity and reverence; it enables him to become just, pious, upright and faithful; it keeps him from evil and brings him to virtue, so that mankind may derive from him counsel, knowledge, understanding and strength."

"SRHCS" Sounds Like New Federal Agency

Earl S. Leonardo of 2409 N. Upton st., Arlington, Va., is a man after my own heart. He's the founder of S. R. H. C. S.

That stands for "Society for Returning Humor to Comic Strips."

Like most Americans, Earl likes to read the funnies. But he points out that many of them long ago stopped being comic, and are now merely illustrated stories—some good, some not so good.

In the interests of campaigning for more strips which specialize in humor rather than plots, Earl rates the comics in this order:

Top flight: Penny, Barnaby, Dotty, Myrtle, Donald Duck, Mickey Finn, Steve Roper.

Second flight: Ozark Ike, Rex Morgan, Terry, Steve Canyon, Mark Trail.

Bringing up the rear: Mary Worth and Palooka.

We need more of: Grin and Bear It, Webster and Off the Record.

I'm inclined to agree with the Top Flight rating, except that I'll make an exception for two "plot" strips, and include Terry and Steve. They're both good boys, and I've got to find out what happens to them each morning.

If you think I'm inconsistent in liking "plot" strips when I say that comics should be humorous, perhaps I am. But I've got company.

Earl puts Mickey Finn and Steve Roper in his Top Flight—and they're both in the "plot" category.

Anybody else wishing to get into this argument is welcome to join the fun. Just as in political debates, the Penny fans won't be able to sway the Mary Worth fans, or vice-versa. But everybody will feel better for having had his say.

ON BEING TRIMMED

"I don't see where the barbers get the gall to talk about raising their prices to $1.25 for a haircut," growls F. J. K., of 1126 16th st. nw.

"I'm one of those fellows with not much on top and just a fringe around the sides. I had my hair cut a couple of weeks ago, and the barber was finished in six minutes flat. Cost, $1. And now they want to raise it.

"Incidentally, I got such a lousy job I had to get another haircut when I was in New York the next week. I got a much better haircut there for 60 cents."

I think I know how F. J. K. feels. Too many of our barbers seem to have learned their trade in a butcher shop. And very few of them will take as much as 10 minutes with you before sending you on your way looking like a shorn sheep.

In one shop in a downtown hotel, the barbers are constantly on the telephone, checking up on their manifold racing interests. They seem to be extremely anxious to get rid of their customers as quickly as possible.

Every time I walk in, I get the distinct impression that I'm intruding.

And, of course, my 15-cent tip gets the sneer it deserves from these big operators. What else can you expect from a man who has $5 riding on the last half of the daily double?

There are a lot of changes needed in barber shops, but I doubt very much whether a 25 per cent increase in prices should head the list.

All you barbers who are drooling at the thought of getting me as a customer for a shave can relax and put away your whetted razors. From now on I think I'll shave myself.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Taft Has Big Surprise for Dewey

(Ed. note—While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

Senator Robert Taft has a big surprise up his sleeve for the Dewey high command.

The able, forthright Ohioan intends to become a member of the crucial Senate Foreign Relations Committee in the next Congress.

Taft

There will be two committee vacancies. Senator Arthur Capper, Kansas, and Senator Wallace White, Maine, long-time committee members are retiring from public life. Taft's high seniority entitles him to one of these places if he wants it. He wants it. He is prepared to give up his chairmanship of the Labor and Education Committee or his seat on the Finance Committee to shift to Foreign Relations.

If Dewey is elected, Taft's presence on his key committee will mean headaches for the Republican Administration.

Taft has firm views on large-scale foreign spending and foreign ties. These views, in a number of respects, do not square with those held by Dewey and his two principal foreign-relations advisers, John Foster Dulles and Senator Arthur Vandenberg. Also, Taft has no peer in Congress as a resourceful and determined fighter.

No Shutout

In the past year, under Vandenberg's deft chairmanship, the Foreign Relations Committee has been overwhelmingly "internationalist." Practically every important vote has been 13 to 0 that way.

That unanimity will cease with Taft on the committee.

Last spring he reluctantly bowed to Vandenberg's stand on Marshall Plan spending and other foreign questions because of the split GOP command in the Senate. Taft was in charge of domestic affairs, and Vandenberg the foreign field. Also, both were presidential possibilities and, for the sake of party harmony, Taft accepted Vandenberg's leadership in his special field as the latter did Taft's in his area.

But those factors will not exist next Congress. Taft will have a free hand, and he plans to use it where he thinks it will do the most good.

Note—Taft does not aspire to the role of Senate GOP floor leader. He can have it if he wants it. He doesn't. His choice is Senator Kenneth Wherry (Nebr.).

Hard Decision

President Truman is gingerly grappling with a new kind of "Red" issue.

It involves making a choice between two conflicting personal friendships and doing justice to Alaskan Indians. The President, apparently, is finding it a hard decision because he has been stalling on it for weeks.

Interior Department officials drew up an order to establish a number of reservations in Alaska. The Indians claimed these lands under provisions of the Alaskan purchase treaty. The Federal Council of Churches and other organizations are vigorously supporting the Red Men's demands.

But Northwestern fishing and timber interests vehemently oppose the reservations. They will cut into their lush profits. And fronting for these interests is dapper young Senator Warren Magnuson, Washington, who makes a great pretense of being a staunch New Dealer. A White House crony, Magnuson has exerted potent undercover pressure to stall creation of the reservations.

But down in New Mexico another White House crony is very irate over this. He is Former Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson, running for the Senate against flamboyant Maj. Gen. Pat Hurley. Anderson is clamoring for speedy approval of the reservation order.

New Mexican Indians vote this year, and in the close contest their ballots could be decisive. Further, Hurley is ready to pounce on the issue as an example of the President's "insincerity" in his civil-rights pronouncements.

It will be interesting to see which way the President and Interior Secretary Krug jump on this question.

Housing Crisis

The big Greco-Roman National Archives Building, on lower Pennsylvania ave., is up against a serious housing shortage. It is running out of space to store the endless flood of Government records and files. Archives officials see no other alternative but to ask Congress for a new building.

The bulging condition of National Archives is an illuminating commentary on the stupendous amount of paper work ground out by Government agencies. The Archives Building is only 14 years old. Starting with one million cubic feet of storage space, the structure is fast filling up its last 150,000 feet. Meanwhile, permanent Government records that National Archives must preserve are piling up at the rate of 250,000 cubic feet a year.

Maryland veterans of the famed 29th Infantry Division are blasting the Army for demoting their wartime commander, Maj. Gen. Charles H. Gerhardt, to the grade of colonel . . . Justice Department officials say positively there will be a perjury indictment in the Chambers-Hiss case, but won't indicate which one will be prosecuted.

Among My Friends

I like to meet with friends and talk . . . About the things they do . . . And whether anything they know . . . Is interesting and new . . . I like to hear their problems and . . . Compare them with my own . . . Because when they are quite the same . . . I do not feel alone . . . I could not tell my friends in full . . . How much they mean to me . . . But they are always in my heart . . . And in my memory . . . They make the sunshine brighter and . . . They keep the rain away . . . With all their smiles and all the words . . . Of cheerfulness they say . . . They lift me up when I am down . . . And offer me their aid . . . In every way I ever need . . . To make a better grade.
